No this is a unique version.

And if you want me to release some stupid, shitty unfinished version, then SURE I WILL GIVE IT TO YOU NOW.

But if you want a QUALITY advanced version, then just wait a few weeks. =_ =

Excuse me for trying to make a quality product.

Sorry but your tone came off as condescending and whining about how long it takes.

Sorry.

T1kT4k - July 28, 2012, 4:47 am

Shame the stub size is so big, or I would buy.

You guys really need to work on reducing the size of the stub, maybe make it 50-150kb.

600kb in autoit is very good. I once made a downloader in autoit, it was fud but the output was

1.2mb. :(

Will get the LE when I get home if theres any spots left.

Thanks for the speedy update Razor. Nothing rivals this crypter atm, except possibly Darkeye, which is not for sales atm.

Also I did have this question.

Is the Razor LE allowed to have crypting services? I thought it was created for longer FUD time due to privacy? Thanks for your help.

What's the execution rate like on this crypter?

Not2EXceL - August 1, 2012, 7:34 pm

Did "ESET" buy a copy of this crypter as well? like you had stated in the other thread. Cuz if they bought both, it'll be easier for you to figure out which license to remove.

i paid $40 for update to advanced version. but instead you release a limited edition wtf, i think your just scamming ppl from the advanced realesing this. shouldnt you have released the advanced version first. ppl have paid you for that already. ?

unkn0wn© - August 6, 2012, 1:13 am is crypting service allowed with this? seems more interesting than your 30$ version for me..

greetings!

Mister Spiderman - August 6, 2012, 1:37 pm

what have been the fud times on this compared to the regular version?

greetings!

Wouldn't crypting service defeat the purpose of this being a limited edition? Just wondering, if it is limited to 20 users and 2 or 3 have a "crypting service" and they do 20 each that quickly jumps to like 60 users real quick.

Not2EXceL - August 6, 2012, 3:23 pm

For me the FUD times hav been longer. Also the crypting services aren't allowed according to the coder.
