iTunes Album Downloader.NET

[img]http://image.noelshack.com/fichiers/2012/31/1343667919-itad-net.gif[/img]

Hi hackforums. Well, I've been away again for a long time, and I recently saw the last project of Marvinn called "iTunes Album Ripper".

I just loved the idea, so I decided to fix most of bug, and added a GUI. The program seems to be pretty stable now.

In fact, the only thing he coded himself was the simple ReGex Function (No offense), so I think he only really deserve credit for the amazing idea. I personally don't deserve anything for this program, I only fixed what he did, and added some functions. The code isn't clean btw, don't be rude with me. A thanks is always appreciated, Have a nice day ?.

Thanks for the share I already have a itunes ripper but im sure alot of people will find this useful.

Weakky. - July 30, 2012, 10:52 am

Thanks for the comment man. Appreciated :).

Albert - July 30, 2012, 11:10 am

Thanks for this bro, i love it. // If only i could give Rep.

Weakky. - July 30, 2012, 11:18 am

I shared it to a friend, and he told me that some song weren't downloaded. I just realized that the HTML source code was not the same for the 'Explicit' songs. Source code is now updated, and fully working. Enjoy.

This is really awesome! Thank you so much bro :D

Thank you for saying thanks man. Almost 40 downloads, and only 3 posts. I'm gonna remove the link if it goes on.

010100111001 - July 30, 2012, 1:56 pm

Downloading this now, don't have .netframework as I just reinstalled windows.

Eclipse - July 30, 2012, 2:04 pm

I love you forever, no homo. (:

But really, thanks for the share, and thank you so much for fixing any bugs and glitches. I'm sure everyone who downloads this will be very thankful.

Xuanson.

Bong Hits - July 30, 2012, 2:06 pm

I like that you put it into a GUI, it makes the program more functional and appealing. Thanks to you and Marvinn!

010100111001 - July 30, 2012, 2:07 pm

Hmm, it just crashes on me, but I have .net installed..

Weakky. - July 30, 2012, 2:11 pm

Could you tell me when does it crash ? At Runtime ?

TrackPro+ - July 30, 2012, 2:19 pm

It takes time for people to comment :D, but thank you for releasing it with GUI and thanks Marvinn for the original releasing.

Weakky. - July 30, 2012, 2:22 pm

It takes you 2 seconds, while it took me more than 2 hours to do all things.

TrackPro+ - July 30, 2012, 2:26 pm

True, but not everyone likes this section :/ and most people that is in this section usually look at other pages instead of the first one.

Eclipse - July 30, 2012, 2:26 pm

It works, but it downloads only x amount of songs. I was getting Maroon 5, and there were 13 songs it only downloaded 6.

Is this a common problem, or is it supposed to be like that?

TrackPro+ - July 30, 2012, 2:30 pm

The website that searches for the songs and downloads them probably doesn't have the following songs..

I'm one of those "40+ downloads, 3 posts" guys because I download something like this, look at the code, and delete it about 4 seconds later because it's so fucking jumbled. You really need to work on efficiency.

I'm a dick sorry (Besides that last part, I guess I can keep that since it is just constructive criticism). My bad dude

I'm a dick don't mind me :)

No I flame shitty posts too. You're contributing, that's great, but I get pissed off when people act like their code is all that and more and say "ohh I'm going to make this PM only, no download link." If you don't want people to download and leave then don't post it.

What he said is completely true, I downloaded it, looked how scrambled/unorganized it was then deleted it. I was considering to re-write it but I got lazy to try to understand all the random code.

.... LOVE this application... downloading shit load of music :)

Eternal Darkness - July 30, 2012, 8:20 pm

Guesstimated based on small amount of songs tested while optimizing the code.

Has about a .75% chance of getting the song. Based on my experience.

5% of the time it finds a different song with the same title (not really a fault, probably should search with artists name or something). 20% of the time it doesn't download because of the youtube-mp3 problems.

Not bad, but needs a new method to be efficient currently. xD

AliveAgain - July 30, 2012, 8:28 pm

Wow this is a pretty good way of getting songs, great app :D

Malloc - July 30, 2012, 8:30 pm

Lostintehdark - July 30, 2012, 11:43 pm

Really nice program however i have found a few bugs. One involving the correct save pathing. as well as a second bug that doesn't download the right song. infact when i was trying to download one of "Miss May I"'s albums, it gave me a tobuscus song as one of them. Thats when i knew something was up.

Thanks for your statistic :P.. - Yeah, I think that I've made a mistake. I'm not on my PC now, but I think that the program search song with the song name only. I'll add the artist name before the song name, and it should find all songs with a higher percentage :).

And thanks for all others comment. Appreciated.

EDIT: Well. Binary version updated. It now search with "artist name song name". I have no idea if it will change something. It was only one line, so I didn't update the source code version. Change it yourself if you want.

Besides the fact that you download the songs from youtube, this is really nice

Weakky. - July 31, 2012, 3:27 am

Yea when I first looked on this thread yesterday, I had hopes it was downloading songs directly from itunes..

I skimmed trough the code and found out it was downloading(With a third part website) from youtube, based on the artist and songname.

But it seems to be a great program and well written Downloading songs directly from itunes is probably impossible man xD.. And if I had done that, I would never give the source code ?.

I'm currently working on a MP3Skull Version, which would download only 320kpbs songs.

I went straight to the main.vb file and almost got scared back out, you wrote so unorginized! I mean if I am in a haste or are testing out something, I also write quite messy, but I use to orginize the code afterwords to make it readable for later.

You should sort most stuff into Regions to make the code easier to navigate.

Always separate methods by a empty line unless they overloads eachother.

Make your If statements as short and easy as possible, ex:

Code If Not SongName = NothingCode If SongName IsNot Nothing

Instead of putting a gigantic block of code into a if, use:

Code If True Then Exit Sub

If True Then Exit Property

If True Then Exit Do

If True Then Continue For

If True Then Continue While

Besides that, you seem to know what you are doing. Something which I cannot say for most sources I've had a look on at HF, that's why i'm bitching at you ^^

I'm not gonna react as yesterday with Tedd, 'cause instead of simply bitching me, you gave me some tips.

Well. I know that my codes are not clean and unorganized..

But as I said to Tedd yesterday, I'm only 15, and I've been learning .NET by myself, looking to source code and using google. Alone, and without any fucking help. And now, I'm full of bad habits.

So yeah, that's true, it's horrible, and I'm sorry to don't have the skill to create something better. But nobody learnt me to organize my source code, and if I had the skill to do it, I would not share something like that. Thanks anyway for reading me and for your tips. ?.

All the tips he gave you can be summarized into one word. OOP (Object Oriented Programming).

Start with that, afterwards learn patterns when you master OOP.

I tried to open source code: Didn't work!

I tried to download an album: Said it had worked but now files.

Might be me but I'm not sure it's reliable

Weakky. - August 27, 2012, 11:26 am

Why the fuck didn't you manage to open the source code man ._. ? - It works perfectly for me, what album did you try to download ?

Nope.

In the programs folder it made a folder with the name of the album and in the program it said they all downloaded but:

Nada.

cant express my feeling for this programm :D

Thanks so much again ???

Edit:

After testing it : The single download for a music file doenst work :/

And what i ment was, that you could take the link from itunes and paste it in the " single download " and it downloads only the single file.

what it says in the programm is : Download music by name... :/

u got wht i wnt to say?:D

I believe that you are getting the unable to copy file errors because the username TRANSLU6DE does not exist on your computer so therefore the dll cannot be sent there. You will need to change the source so it just grabs it from yours and doesn't need to be sent.

I haven't looked through the source so I could be wrong.

shebang - June 27, 2013, 9:32 am

This isn't going to work as Youtube-MP3 is under maintenance. It's also unreliable in regards to quality, as this is using an MP3 converter for YouTube based on it searching for the song title.

Here's essentially what the program does.

Visits iTunes URL

Parses for song names

Searches them on YouTube and parses for video ID

Uses YouTube-MP3 API to download an MP3 version

Loops for all songs

Ohhh, so if the song isn't on youtube, this method will not work. Also, if the first(?) result on youtube isn't the song, this also will not work.

Every single iTunes song will be on YouTube, come on it's YouTube -incorrect. And depending on the method used, the first result will be the song if searched correctly.

(judging from my experience coding a similar tool) This is a bad method though, your getting 128kbps when all of these songs are available in 320kbps.

That's because the YouTube-MP3 servers are down for maintenance, which it's using to convert. YouTube-MP3 has updated the way they send the data. The function needs to update the headers.

Not because they are down because the headers were changed from having "/api/" in them and replaced with "/a/". So the downloader won't work.

Servers came back online about an hour after my comment. And it's obvious some header changes are needed.

Weakky. - June 28, 2013, 6:02 am

Come on guys, I've made this little project one year ago, I don't even understand why it's still at the top of the board. There's maany better solution, because as iRtehLeet said, all the songs that you would download using this way will be in 128 kbps, which is a pretty low quality song. Just send a song on Youtube-MP3 recording the headers, and update the code, it shouldn't be that hard ..

Renpt0 - February 10, 2014, 2:15 pm

I have tried this out and I will tell you that I freaking enjoyed it but the problem is I would love to see this work on a mac laptop! :)

PREsENCE. - February 10, 2014, 2:19 pm

Holy shit, so this downloads from iTunes for free? Definitely copping this. Thanks for this shit man. Also, you might wanna upload a virus scan.

Separate - February 10, 2014, 2:41 pm

My ideas:

Change the website the songs get downloaded from...

As you know the current website you are using has the following issues:

~Bad quality (128kbps)

~Copyright claims

~No videos/songs over 20minutes

For this to be successful the songs need to be 320kbps+ imo. You should change the website to something that has good quality downloads, no copyright blocks and any length videos. Maybe even create your own YouTube to mp3 site to make the power into your hands. lol cheesy.

Add a downloading status bar. Next to each song add a percentage of how much the song has downloaded. Just makes it look and feel better.

Another thing is, I haven't tried the program yet _-, but maybe you could add a feature where it finds the album artwork and correct information for the song/album automatically.

To be honest, I don't know what I'm talking about ?, I am talking from a consumers perspective.
