its not a company its individuals sellers there , but just like ebay if u find one with great feedback and comments u can be safe to get what you buy.

just know that most clothing and accessories there are fake... they try to work around it saying its 100% authentic leather and shit like that but ask them directly to be sure.. brand names are fake other than that.. i bought things before too

Well, it's like ebay. People list and sell shit there. So, yes somewhat if you do research.

I have done a lot of trades on there, they let you sell most things.

A year ago they were notorious copycats of each other, so you'd look at 10 postings with 100's of products in on post and all were pretty similar.

You can negotiate with the sellers and see what previous buyers paid. I remember asking a seller for a shirt in a pic, 3 weeks later I had it to my door and worked with seller multiple times since.

it's like ebay. Check their feedback. I have sold there some stuff before
