There is already a section on HF for this, but I would like to help out with the caseload by taking part in this service. If you need help, just PM or post a description of the problems you're having.

When you say "PC Clean", what're you talking about exactly?

For example, I'd like to format my laptop to as if it were new, straight from the factory.

Would you be able to help with that, with knowledge that I have no clue where the cd you get when you buy it is?

Yes, I know how to format your PC. What operating system do you have? Do you have the disk for it? Also, do you have your drivers disk (it comes with your computer sometimes)?

Yeah, but that means you'll need to either re-purchase or torrent Windows 7. Other than that, drivers will need to be acquired ahead of time (only networking drivers) so you can download the rest later. Just look into it on your motherboard, computer properties, or sometimes the box/manual. I recommend getting a driver updating program to find them all the drivers 'automagically'.

For one thing, Windows 8 is probably having compatibility issues with whatever you're playing. For your overheating, I would suggest checking your fans i.e. cleaning them and making sure they work properly. If that doesn't do anything, then I would suggest getting new fans and/or an inter-cooling system. If you're not computer savvy then I suggest you get a professional to do it.

Yo man so if I have a windows 7, you could upgrade it for free or how does that work?

SuaveSalmon - September 6, 2012, 4:24 pm

Not trashing, but there are plenty of easy guides here

What kind of upgrade are you looking for? Your operating system? Software? Hardware?

Well you could upgrade to Professional, but I really don't see any reason to do so. If I were you, I would wait for the release of Windows 8. I'll help you with it when you get it.

Upgrading to another version of Windows 7 won't be free and really won't be worth your time. Look [HERE] for a comparison of Home Basic, Professional, and Ultimate versions of Windows 7.
