Thread: ???The Monetizing Section Needs To Change???

[[[- September 16, 2012, 8:09 am

---UPDATE--- Messaged Omni with a bunch of stuff to propose a change. He replied with "Sadly I only read 3 sentences" so apparently he doesn't think the monetizing section needs anything done.

If you've read through this thread and want change to happen, you can help support the cause by using the signature code below!

Which looks like this:

Tired of wasting your time and money in the monetizing forums? Visit this thread to help bring change!

I've been coming to Hackforums for a long time, it has been a great source of information and has helped me learn a lot. A huge part of what I have learned is about making money online, and I am sure that is why you are here reading this. Sadly, there are huge problems with the monetizing sections of Hackforums. For those of you who have been around for a while, you probably already know what I am talking about. But for the new members, or people who aren't very intelligent, you may not realize what I mean. The monetizing sections (mainly Monetizing Techniques and Free Money Making Ebooks, but a lot of this applies to the Ebook Bazaar and Premium Ebook Bazaar) are filled with scams, lies, and misleading information.

Getting to the point where I am at now took a very long time. Over the course of a couple of years, reading through hundreds (maybe even a couple of thousand) threads, and wasting a lot of time AND money, I finally got to where I am today.

This is the problem. It shouldn't take that long to be able to learn a decent amount of good, working methods of earning. Users shouldn't have to waste days of their time to learn this stuff. This is where change comes in. These monetizing sections need to be fixed. They need to have the quality and content improved a lot.

I say, that only high quality threads should be allowed in these sections. No more "get rich quick" schemes, no more shitty threads where the OP gives a super general/brief description to draw people in and then he sends them a referral link, shit like that. These sections should have only high quality threads made, that include thorough descriptions of what the method is, how it works, and how people actually get paid. If the thread includes payment proofs and other important stuff like that, even better.

By having people creating only high quality, useful threads, it will make these monetizing forums a lot more useful to everyone, newbs and experienced earners alike. In these better quality threads, we can all discuss the methods thoroughly and everyone can learn a LOT. These sections NO LONGER need to be considered a joke, they can be taken seriously and used as an incredible source of knowledge for years to come.

If you are sick and tired of wasting your time and money on stuff that never works, if you are sick of playing guessing games on whether or not the thread you click on next will be useless, then speak up. The only way we can get these forums to change is by voicing our thoughts and opinions.

If all of us here at Hackforums want to finally have a place to reliably learn to earn; we need to not only change the quality of our posts, we need the Administrator's/Mod's help too. Here is a rough idea of what I think could/should happen (feel free to post your thoughts/opinions/ideas as well):

- Admins/mods need to start clearing out all of the completely obvious bullshit threads. There is an enormous (almost disgusting) amount of these extremely LQ threads. By removing these, it jump starts this whole idea by making it easier for users to find threads that aren't a complete waste of time.

- Admins/mods need to start giving more severe consequences for threads that are removed. For example, if a thread is a super obvious LQ/terrible thread, give them a serious warning that tells them next time they do that shit they will get temp banned. If a thread is LQ but at least shows a good attempt at being useful, then just a removal and warning should be good. Obviously the Admins/mods can figure this stuff out, these are just general ideas.

- Us users need to start making high quality threads. Threads that give detailed descriptions on the method, how it works, how they get paid, etc. Besides just high quality threads, we need high quality replies as well. We need responses that generate discussion, add more information, etc. Besides the obvious benefits of good replies, it also makes it so that people are more likely to make more high quality threads. If a person sees that a bunch of people like what they wrote, appreciate it, and contribute themselves, people will be more likely to continue making high quality threads (positive reinforcement).

- Don't be afraid to share what you know. If you know about a method / technique that really works and you have the information, take 10 minutes and write out as much as you know, make it look nice, and take pride in the fact that you will be helping out your fellow HF members. It really does not take that long to write a high quality, informative thread. This longass thread you are reading right now took me 15 minutes to get to the point you are reading right now, and I was writing while watching TV.

- A very good way to increase the quality of the monetizing sections would be to get people who actually earn a good amount of money posting what they know. If we can get a good group of earners who are willing to contribute to the cause and write what they know, it will be an amazing boost to the forums quality and will help a lot of people out.

So that is all I really have to say. I hope this gets taken atleast somewhat seriously, because I really want to see these forums become what they really could/should be. I've learned a lot from Hackforums, and I am incredibly grateful. However, it took a lot more time/work than it should have, and that was with me doing an enormous amount of research outside of HF. I know there are TONS of people who have had the same issues as I have, and who want to see change happen in these monetizing sections.

If everyone (Admins, Mods, Experienced Earners, and the rest of the Users) all work together and actually commit to this change, these forums can become incredible. A huge source of knowledge, for everyone to learn.

Thank you for taking the time to read this. Let me know what you think!

Write out your thoughts/opinions/ideas, no matter how small or big they are.

-EDITS-

-Added a poll to get a better idea of how people feel about the monetizing forums.

-Added a signature code for people who want to support the cause!

I cannot stress enough how right you are. I absolutely agree with you.

I also have a suggestion, but I don't think it's possible. Eh, whatever, I'll post it. Most people are doing Post/PM threads in order to keep the thread alive. I think it would be great if someone could program a script or whatever that requires you to post in the thread in order to give you the download link. I hope I was clear enough.

Anyways, respect for you br0wnie.

Your suggestion is good. I know some other forum systems that allow this. Members have to answer the thread in order to show the hidden links.

I think it could be a good idea.

iClick - September 16, 2012, 9:13 am

Yes, exactly. That way members could show appreciation for OP, get the product and keep the thread alive (for more members to see it).

Nothing against you of course, I'm just trying to say that people will learn more from his threads than from 80% of the e-books which are currently in this section.

I 100% agree with you bro, some LQ member's posting useless shit to get some traffic to their website and their methods are not tested and some of them don't even work .

I hope to see the Monetizing section a High quality section with HQ threads .

itachix - September 16, 2012, 9:28 am ofc bro ... who the heck would sell a book for 5$ about making 3000$ a month

i mean give me a break , how you actually win the money is by writing rubbish on a 5 pages pdf , then sell copies for 10$ each ... if you really knew how to make only 1000$ a month you wouldnt waste your time trying to sell a few copies , or even worse trying to get 1$ from sharecash LOL you would also not expose your niche , because we all know : you give away your niche to 100 people and in 1 month there will be 10000 guys trying to do the same thing

there are ofc legit $$ ebooks, but you wont find them saying you that you can magically get 2000$ a month ... reasonable gains are 10$ a day for a starter if they put on some effort , getting a lot of money will come if you are sharp , but you will have to figure out on your own

I totally agree with you. In the other hand experienced monetizers already know is it useful to read thread or not by just seeing title or couple of first sentences in thread.

Anyways it really need changes, because sub-forum is so overload of useless topics.

I have been reading ALL of them and it was taking a lot of my time.

In the end I started earning something decent by thinking my own way not using those threads which are really useless.

Thanks to you for posting this thread, I hope some of the head staff may see it and agree with you.

johnroberts602 - September 16, 2012, 9:53 am

Problem is you have 98% of people , the ones who can monetize, looking for info and methods from the 2% that can.

Noone is going to give away a method unless it gets them more money.

shinigami_sam - September 16, 2012, 10:05 am and from my own experience i've always faced one major problem which is fileice and sharecash links....as my country doesn't get surveys that you can actually complete to get the file....i use

proxies, vpn, ip changing, you name it....yet i can't get any files :/...some OP have an alternative for that which you can pay them 1$ or so via paypal and get the guide, again paypal doesn't support my country...so i'm really stuck with nothing, i can't get any guide which could actually help me earn money...so i'd suggest that OPs should make some exceptions for some members who can't get the file cause they are facing some problems like mine and give them the guide through a direct link

Thank you, I'm glad you agree! I believe I understand what you are saying.. and if I do then it isn't that bad of an idea. Before Omni made the no Post/PM thread rule, that is what every single thread was made up of, just people posting asking for a link.

Maybe if the monetizing sections had an additional option for when a thread is created, the OP has to input the website link/program link/whatever before the thread is created. This stores it, and makes it so that Admins/Mods can check the link and remove it and the thread if needed (if it was a referral link, some spam link etcetc). But really the hard part is setting it up so that people can only get the link(s) once they actually write a legitimate, worthwhile reply.

Thanks again for your idea, maybe an Admin/Mod can think of something based off of this.

Yeah it is a good idea, but like I said in reply to the guy above, it would need to be managed and set up so that only good replies can get the link, to encourage people writing HQ content.

Exactly, they just post these terrible "methods" to get a quick buck from referral links or some other thing. It really drags down the whole monetizing section.

Exactly. I honestly do not understand how so many people can fall for all of these completely obvious "scams", that all claim ridiculous earnings, or earnings without doing any sort of work at all. It just doesn't happen.

And about niches and similar things, stuff like that will make it a little bit harder for people to write HQ threads, because good niches can't be shared with too many people or it will become saturated. So when people write threads about PPD/CPA methods, they are probably going to just write how to advertise properly, how to research good keywords, how to attract "customers" better through their word and color choice, shit like that. But still, all of that will help people even if they don't give away their niches.

Yeah, I know that more experienced earners can easily spot bullshit threads simply by title (I learned to do this a while back, I HAD to), but they shouldn't even have to do that. If the content in these sections was managed closer, then EVERYONE (noobs and experienced alike) can save time, effort, and money.

Yeah I know what you mean, and sadly in most cases this would be true. However, if we get a large enough group of people who are willing to improve these sections, then people will be a lot more willing to share. People need to be willing to teach and share what they know, so that others can learn and then be able to improve and discuss new ideas. Because like you said, as of right now a large majority of people in these sections don't know what works and what doesn't.

However, if people actually put in the effort to teach them and help out, then everyone would start learning and would be able to start progressing on their own. Once they start progressing on their own, they will be able to "self-teach", and learn a lot of new shit by themselves. Once a lot of people are able to "self-teach" themselves, there will be a lot more HQ content around because these people were able to learn and develop new and innovating ideas and methods. Then (in theory) this cycle keeps repeating. That is my hope atleast.

I understand what you mean, however if you think about it there really aren't many real, HQ monetizing forums out there on the web. While HackForums is just that; a forums based around hacking, it DOES have an extremely large monetizing section, with tons of users who are active in all sorts of stuff related to money making. HF has a huge opportunity to become an actual HQ monetizing forum (alongside the hacking part of it).

Nothing will ever change if no one wants things to change or puts any effort into changing them. This can easily change, we just need the help of Admins/Mods, and people as a group need to put in the effort to contribute and help as much as possible.

I do see your concerns, and I understand. However, I still think this is well worth the try, and many people feel the same. I will try to help change this part of the forums, maybe it will work maybe it won't we will have to see.

Well in these parts of the monetizing section there aren't too many people who give away their money or get scammed financially (that occurs in the marketplace and other sections like that), the "scam" here is people making bullshit threads wasting peoples time and effort.

I also should add a suggestion that if members don't warn the user that it is a survey or redirect in the thread then they will get a warning themselves.

It will save time and improve the quality of this section.

I agree 100%, I know I am a LQ member tho :p Since I am new

TheBurningTorch - September 20, 2012, 5:09 pm

I agree 100% It needs to change! Haven't found this section super helpful since its alot of re-post and methods I have seen hundreds of times.

Prospect - September 21, 2012, 10:09 am

You're totally right OP. I can't stand it when I see all these threads, like "make 10 grand per month or more". Who the fuck would share their method of earning 10k per months in reality? No one. And all those "post here and PM me" threads need to go, they're annoying and 90 percent of the time people send you shitcash links with e-books most of us have read more than 10 times already. Other 10 percent does it for reputation.

It would be nice if we could have somekind of semi-private forums with methods and such, and users would have to apply for it to gain access to those.

EDIT: And I'm also a newb when it comes to making money online, I barely made $300 so far during the last few months :/

firesteel55 - September 25, 2012, 12:11 am

I agree with everything that the OP has said. This forum section needs to change. There aren't a lot of working things in this section. I could see one of those reasons being , "I didn't have the time to try out this method and make sure it works and works well.", but that shouldn't be an excuse for every single thread here. I have an idea that Omni could implement that might make the section better. Alright, say Omni got a new moderator for this section. Instead of this being a section that you could just post what ever you please, you would submit it to the moderator for them to check it and make sure it wasn't just complete LQ bullshit. That would get rid of the worst of the problem.

Also, do you guys know how HF is supposed to be getting a vouch system set up? They could design something similar for this section. Each thread could have its own vouch count, and everyone could give it positive and negative vouches.(Like the rep system.) Once a thread reaches a certain negative number, it could be automatically deleted. That would allow us, the community, to get rid of some of the stuff that is written well,(So it isn't deleted by the mod.) but still doesn't work. Also, there could be a reward for giving out a lot of working, HQ methods to making money. You could get something like rep, access to a hidden section. I know this is kind of long and if you made it here, I appreciate it. Well, thanks for reading this and I hope something does happen to this section.(Also, OP. I read everything you have said up to this point.)

Laziness is one of the problems, people think they can just make a quick buck here and there and it's not the case. Although agree with the scams good sir, they need to stop ;)

ebonie101 - September 25, 2012, 11:39 am ahh i would love to see change! tired of these crappy reward websites and go to my website to do surveys stuff. of course they are all trying to make money for themselves

beastrsbots - September 25, 2012, 5:03 pm

I agree with this thread 100% There need to be some changes to this area of the forums.

That will be hard to implement I think.

Yes I agree that a semi private forum would be good, but I do not know how that would play out with the admins

I really like the thread vouching system, it is a solid recommendation.

Jaszczomp25 - September 27, 2012, 8:22 am

I saw on other forum system for keeping thread alive, part of a post is hidden as long as you don't leave a post. After you leave a post you can see content.

I like the idea in theory, but that won't fix the problem of everyone just posting LQ replies in order to get what they want. That would pretty much be the same thing as the post/PM me threads.

Drainingpower - September 27, 2012, 1:11 pm

It's true, I agree. However, do you think they will actually do something about it? Of course not. The only thing they did was make an ebook section and restricted post and pm threads in the monetizing section. But I don't even visit the ebook section anymore. It's spam, it's the same shit over and over. Anything that requires a survey I don't do, but when I did it was the same thing just reworded. However, people need to grasp the idea that no one will give out free niches.

[[[- October 18, 2012, 7:00 am

When I get the time I'll PM Omni with my ideas and potential plans, if he likes them maybe something will change. But who knows.

---EDIT---

So I have been extremely busy lately, and never got around to PMing Omni about this thread and the ideas mentioned in it. I will hopefully be able to get to this today, but if not I should be able to by the end of this week.

Hopefully something can change!

offspringtw - October 18, 2012, 9:25 am

More STRICT rules should definitely be applied. The majority of threads are mostly spam, and will waste your time.

Yes that would be a key part in cleaning up this section, as you said most threads are terrible.

Messaged Omni with a bunch of stuff to propose a change. He replied with "Sadly I only read 3 sentences" so apparently he doesn't think the monetizing section needs anything done.
