Thread: Newbie Guide to 'Hacking'

FroFro - October 5, 2012, 10:57 am

I wrote this to try and cut down on threads like

"How do I hack Facebook"

"How do I hack OMGPOP"

(it most likely wouldn't work but hey! It's worth a try!)

I'd like to point out the following things We don't have a hack button - We can't just go around hacking things

Hacking isn't just taking passwords and trolling some fat guy with a RAT - It's learning how computers work, and trying to make networking safer and for some a way of making money

BUT there are ways of taking facebook passwords - There are ways to get coins on Runescape!

Try making up your own idea - You can try to DOX someone

Keylog/Rat them

You can even DDoS someone offline

There are tonnes of other ways, they're just my favorite.

If you were good enough or someone was just fucking stupid you could even Social Engineer \(section closed but has useful resources\) them into giving you their password.

So, instead of posting 'HOW DO I HAX FB' try one of these.

Most likely, this tutorial is utter bullshit and your cat could write a better one ?

this is not bullshit, its quite useful for newbies infact.

it help them to understand more and change their "how to hacking this and that" mindset, thank you for this ;)

You should include several different links to questions like "Where do I begin?" "How do I get a rat?" "How do I DDoS someone?" etc.

Try clicking the links in the bullet points.
All of the methods work.
