Thread: [\[JAVA\] jDropper \[Bind / Drop your files\] \[WIN MAC UNIX\] \[6 KB STUB\]](#)

redpois0n - October 10, 2012, 10:44 am

Hello! jDropper is a program, where you can add your files to another file, where the another file will drop those files into a preset directory and execute them.

jDropper is written in Java and will export a .jar file, so do not ask for .exe files.

This is free. Please post any questions below and I will help :)

make sure to check the site for new updates often!

Press projects then download it!

1.2.1

It now can encode (base64) files. That means they will stay fud until dropped.

Yeah, it wont encrypt them or anything, but I will add that shortly, but it will just drop them and run them normally, so you still need to crypt them

I meant when you run the file the dropper exports.

And .jar, is a zip archive renamed, to match "java archive", and it will prob compress the notepad.

The bin AKA dropper.jar is only 4kb and does not open when i run it.

The dropper.jar is supposed to be 4 kb and you should not run that, run jDropper.jar

Dropper.jar is where it builds from. Dont touch it. Try and tell me your results.

Callum. - January 20, 2013, 4:04 am

Vouch for jDropper.

Viraavy - January 20, 2013, 6:35 am

Friend,

Is it possible to add LINK in place of FILE in your dropper. If not, will u please create this feature also.

I bind an image & a rat server and create xyz.exe dropper server but when I upload & run on a slave, nothing happened. No image open on his coputer..why?

(limposhare)

redpois0n - January 20, 2013, 6:51 am

You cant open images and you have to make it a .jar

And downloader will be made in the future.

Did not even know you can embed files with Java, Is this fully cross platform?

redpois0n - March 26, 2013, 2:35 pm

yes, it is, it will embed files into the jar then drop

MrBenny - April 3, 2013, 4:20 am

So if you bind a .exe to the jar, and then run it on a Mac, the exe will work?

Because usually Macs can't run exe's

redpois0n - April 3, 2013, 4:24 am

No, the executable wont execute on mac.

redpois0n - April 11, 2013, 10:51 pm

This is updated yes but not refudged

tr0x - April 17, 2013, 5:19 pm

Hey, I've discovered that when using jDropper on Mac (I'm running OSX.8.3) the dropper will only run if you select 'temp' or 'desktop'. Temp is a preferable option but I just wondered if you were aware it didn't seem to launch if any others were selected? Also I just found that the 'temp' option sends the dropped files to my Documents folder, not as subtle as I'd hoped.

redpois0n - April 17, 2013, 9:49 pm

Yes, as I found out, temp on mac will be deleted as soon java application exists, i think, so I solved it with documents

redpois0n - April 23, 2013, 7:52 am

Hello, if you don't like my answers then do not use this thread. Do not use anything to question me or my projects.

1. No. They have nothing to run JARs with so No.
2. Nope. Not done yet. Can be custom written.
3. You need to run it with Java. A .jar.

It does not encrypt the archives in it. Try encoding it.

legendrock7 - July 14, 2013, 11:05 pm

Hi, I've downloaded the files. I got the Builder to work, but i'm guessing that once the file is created, i go to dropper? Well, when i try to open that jar file, it won't open. Also, how do i make it into a .jar? Does the dropper need to be open and then on the dropper, it has settings on it or what? I'm confused, thanks if you come back to me.

redpois0n - July 15, 2013, 2:40 am

You build the file and export, make sure it ends with .jar

legendrock7 - July 15, 2013, 12:20 pm

what is the dropper jar file for then?

redpois0n - July 15, 2013, 12:21 pm

Bind your files together to a cross platform jar

legendrock7 - July 15, 2013, 1:17 pm

Do i need it to do this method? all i want is the .exe inside the jar file so when someone opens the jar, they'll get the virus.

redpois0n - July 15, 2013, 1:17 pm

Yes, then I recommend using this tool.

autorunman22 - July 15, 2013, 6:40 pm

may i ask one thing? how did you put an extra button in the top right corner before those 3 ones?

redpois0n - July 16, 2013, 2:40 am

Can you explain more what you mean?

autorunman22 - July 17, 2013, 4:01 am i mean the extra button besides minimize, maximize and close buttons. would you mind sharing it? thanks, i find it cool.
