Crazy Tech Forums (CTForums) is a newly constructed forum for professional and enthusiastic users. Our aim is to create a professional forum with premium contents and provide support to the users. The forum is dedicated to discussions based on technology, hardware, software, gaming and other such topics.

This is a new forum and its still growing. If you could contribute to the forum, it would be much appreciated. CTForums is a good place to advertise your forum, company or products. I started this website to learn more things and also help others learn by providing tutorials, tips and by other means.

We offer complete Do-follow links/images in signatures and also have a special back-link forum and a place for advertising your websites and also a marketplace where you can sell or buy stuffs and rate users. Registration is one click process.

All suggestions positive/negative are welcomed. Forum is hosted for an year, so it's future proof guaranteed. If you like it, sign up and I will meet you there.

We are looking for staffs and partners. We are also offering free advertising on our forum. If you are interested, just PM me with your banner. We only accept leaderboard banners (728*90) and for other advertising contact me.

It looks a little cluttered, and the page goes down a bit too far.
Maybe less categories?

Maybe less categories?I totally agree with this!

It seems like you just want to attract as much people as possible...

There are thousands of tech forums. Most look way better. I highly doubt this will get too active. Sorry but I am being honest.
