You should be uploading your infected files to sites such as:

Make sure you do NOT upload to dropbox, mediafire, or any sites that distribute samples to anti-virus companies.

No problem. I just have a question though. What makes your JDB a "#1 JDB Generator"?

its not really #1 (At the moment) but you see alot of people putting #1 in their products because they think its #1 because they made it.

In reality there is not many different features that we can offer that aren't already on the market - otherwise, well, they'd be on the market.

We are however thinking up our own ideas as well as strategic and functionalism ideas to improve this JDB Generator. Also, feedback is always appreciated.

Network. - October 29, 2012, 7:57 pm

Ahahaa i love the replies from Ass Pirate. You are correct man :) but this JDB has all the features already that you need and he is still adding/updating it. It works amazingly! I've fully tested it.

NoodleBot™ - October 29, 2012, 8:00 pm

Thanks for the positive feedback and review Nine.

And yeah, as I said there is not a lot of variety in a product like this - and if it wasn't us, it would simply be someone else. It is always being updated - nearly everyday atleast an update or 2, small fixes, GUI, and major improvements all come along.

Can i ask why it's so expensive? $40 Lifetime access to it? It's not silent for Google Chrome, it'll ask you?

If it's not silent for Google Chrome, then it's same as the other ones (?) + Can i bulid unlimited JDB's with this file generator? If so it's cool.

I wouldn't say $40 is expensive for this JDB generator, you get to generate unlimited JDB's, it's FUD, i provide the offshore hosting with a nice domain which is automatically uploaded by the program itself.

Just a heads up to all customers and members who are interested.

Do not ever, absolutely never, host your files on DropBox.

They distribute your file to many companies and it will be 30/35 very shortly after uploading.

Use ge.tt or sharesend.com

If you use a dropbox link, you will complain the JDB is not FUD, when in reality it is your link.

?Omgrazza™ has successfully implemented the Upload files button.

You may now skip ge.tt and dropox.com altogether by simply uploading with your Epic Java client, and then using the same link to build your JDB.

;) Open for sales, one more hour. Will be heading out soon.

It has been rumored, thus most people will believe it.

"I never use it for spreading, only to update my bots to a current FUD status."

Umm... Problem is, I'm sure those bots have antivirus software ????. Antivirus software does what?
Sends files back to HQ ?.

Dropbox has not been proven to give files out.

Here is even more proof for you: <https://forums.dropbox.com/topic.php?id=5170>

I guess it is a common misconception. I just want people to be aware that there is also more than one sharing site, as if everyone uploads shit to dropbox, obviously after a while they will either start to distribute, keep distributing or shut down their service and start taking more security precautions and civil punishment.

I believe it would go for any website. Too many reports of malware will cause them to change their file acceptance precautions.

Epic Java itself has been updated nearly everyday with new features and a refund even if not necessary.

If you've built and closed already, simply generate another website exactly the same and read the buttons carefully.

The Java Applets Name can be chosen.

This will work on all current and up to date Java systems.

Publisher will always be Unknown, we are working on a way to change this.

Most things on the JDB you create are customizable in sense that you can pick the window/tab's name in internet browsers and the Java Applet itself's name.

Updates are free if you are a customer within your license period, you will recieve them at the same time as everyone else in an autoupdate administered through Netseal (Gizmo downloader for netseal can be detected by AV's - turn off AV's when using our product.)

Either an .exe link or ge.tt works just fine and is what I recommend.

I don't think we can honestly get publisher info to be changed as you need either ssl security certificates or something else, I have not looked into it as of yet.

The jdb is working. New domains to be added ASAP (just need some decision makin on the names) and we are currently refudding. Looks like a banned/charge backing customer has virus total'ed the jar.

We might have to implement a host file change to restrict such sites.

Shiroyasha - December 11, 2012, 9:28 am

Is it still available and FUD ?

Also, if we host and link to client.jar and server.exe remotely on some other ost or server, is there any chance/risk of my site's domain getting blacklisted by AV ?

Everyone who is a customer of Epic Java.

I apologize for the lack of updates within this past week.

Omgrazza, our coder for Epic Java has been in school and is dealing with family issues that I'd rather not state unless Omgrazza himself decides to alert you about it. I am doing everything in my power at the moment that I can to get the product reFuD'd and add more domains. I do not want to add more domains until the project is FuD again as there is a chance of any domains I added get a useless detection as well.

As I've said, I offer a license extension to anybody who claims they haven't gotten to use the product to their full extent (Obviously just the customers within 2 weeks) and I will give you a license time increase. Please message me if you need any extra time, I'm glad to give it to you.

Thank you for being patient with us and I apologize once again.

If you are still angry at me or Omgrazza; redirect your hate towards <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=1447224> (midiwiyawenyo) who has chargebacked Epic Java and most likely virustotal'd to screw over you, the other customers that PAID.

I can't account for if you have virus totaled or not, but what I do realise is there is no use speaking with a banned customer for breaking Terms of Service and committing fraud.

Once again, there is no lie as it was clearly 1/35. Your screenshot proves that.

When you purchased, we were FuD and just finished adding the custom java applet naming.

Get off the thread. Go chargeback something.

NoodleBot™ - December 24, 2012, 10:02 pm

I am waiting for me and my Coder to be on during the same timezones. I have been at work for the past week or so and I assume him at school as well, I have just finished work tonight til Saturday or so. I apologize for the delays.

Check if your file is using 127.0.0.1 or your No-ip, sounds like you used a testing server instead of the one you intended to spread or something, or the file itself is UD as well.

We are currently 7/35, and I am doing the best I can to fix this for you guys.

The jar you guys are using now I have managed to get it

[\[img\]http://elementscanner.net//image.php?ID=15b14dc13373066c2e0dc89f1bef4703](http://elementscanner.net//image.php?ID=15b14dc13373066c2e0dc89f1bef4703)[\[img\]](#)

But I also have

I have to be on the same timezone to send these to him and see what he can do to fix it up and make sure it will work as designed for Epic Java.

I wish I could go into more detail for you guys but I am only the seller and basically have no Java experience on my own.

Again, I'm doing the best that I can and anyone who is not pleased with their service can post here or PM me for extra license time added to your account. I apologize and that is the best I can do for you until we are ReFuD'd, and I will add the new domains + drop down menu to select them for more choice.

Thanks, and please, you've all been patient as it is, and I am grateful. I appreciate you as customers and once again I'm doing the best I can.

Having a small problem updating users from Epic Java's first set of updates (v1) to v2, this will be fixed shortly.

It is not your antivirus interfering, though having it off is advised to keep your JDB FuD when it is created on your PC.

We're still looking for a good offshore host, until then, you will not be able to upload to our host. You can still generate Java Drive-By's but cannot upload to the host.

If you know a good offshore host, please do PM us.

And because we don't have a host at the moment, you will receive double the time it took for us to get a host.

NoodleBot™ - January 24, 2013, 12:17 am

We're working on it as best we can, we're getting a new host and the jar can be made in seconds when we're prepared to upload everything at once. Please be patient, as all license times have been/will be extended. If you did not receive one, please message me your netseal username.

Razza™ - January 25, 2013, 10:02 am

I have now got a host and the domains are propagating, everything should be up and running tonight with around 3-4 domains to choose from.

We haven't had a host for 5 days, we will be adding 10 days on to everyone's account when we have the host up and running.

You can also expect a FUD jar update very shortly (currently 2-3/35), I have also been working on a NEW design (GUI) and should be out tomorrow.

Hello guys, I'm really sorry about the delay! I've been working hard on the new GUI and new features including a Skype bot, so you can even generate Java drive-by's from skype :).

We're having problems with our current host but we are buying a new one tonight which seems very reliable. When the host is up and running you will be able to choose from 3-4 domains, upload files to our host and even use the skype bot to upload your JDB to our host.

Iv'e added some new options such aswell

- Upload files to your own host automatically.
- Enable notifications.
- Open the JDB files folder upon build.

We have also Re-FUDDDED the Jar file. All of the skype bot information is stored on the "Skype bot" tab on Epic Java. the update is now out and you can still generate JDB's even though the host isn't available yet.

- Omgrazza.

NoodleBot™ - February 5, 2013, 1:23 pm

Wonderful update the hosting Is all we need now :)

The skype bot is so unique, this is a brand new feature for any JDB and you will be surprised with the results and how fast it can be!

Thanks

We have not expanded to the silent JDB applet as of yet, personally I don't see the point if you do the research on the infection rate - but it's the users choice - we might decide to add this soon as either a seperate package or easily fit it into the same GUI for a different price.

Razza™ - February 6, 2013, 3:48 am

We are experiencing some problems with the Jar files, Oracle has released Version 7 Update 13 for Java fixing over 50 vulnerabilities.

We are working as fast as we can to resolve this issue, as everything else is fully functioning and up and running, we will compensate all customers for their losses.
If you think you are able to help us resolve this problem at a quicker pace, contact me and we could reward you with a license for Epic Java to use at your own free will.

NoodleBot™ - February 16, 2013, 11:38 pm

Apologize for the delay in any news.

I am thinking of some ideas to compensate everybody rather than end the project, everyone who owned it loved it and I'm reminded all the time that people can't wait to use it again.

Seems just as we fixed everything better than ever with a brand new GUI, something else happened. We're trying to find any old backups, or thinking of another generator to create.

Stay posted, keep in touch.

Hello everyone, I just wanted to post this to say a brief goodbye and to let you know we will resurface very soon.

This started with my good friend Omgrazza wanting my help with selling a program that he coded himself. Having no clue what I was getting into, I accepted and we began taking sales for this wonderful product. Support was our number one priority and updating the JDB with as many unique features that no other competitors had at the time was a tough challenge.

This isn't the end of Epic Java. We had such wonderful reviews, amazing and super loyal customers, patient and friendly and all, that it would be a shame not to continue with the project in some way, and to meet with many more friendly folks and have a good time.

We have not had a single charge-back in our time of closure or fraudulent payment - something not many salesman or sellers on this website can vouch.

All in all, with a wonderful 75+ customers we are thankful for your continued support, your loyalty as a customer, your patience as a human being and we thanks again for understanding and choosing us!

We will be back soon. This is not the end of Epic Java.

We'll be seeing you soon!

Che Guevara - April 14, 2013, 5:28 pm

Vouch for my friend this JDB is epic and works great !
