

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Dayo Cloud - Secure Searching. \(AES + SHA-256 + MD5\)

Olap - November 3, 2012, 11:47 pm

Dayo Cloud

Search in the clouds.

What is Dayo Cloud?Dayo Cloud is a secure, encrypted, and sleek search engine.

Encryption? Please be more specific.We do not want to fully disclose our setup at this time, but our system consists of multiple layers of protection. Multiple encryption methods, such as AES and SHA-2, are available and are used by our search system. The server has absolutely no idea about what is happening. Your data is never logged. Your data is securely encrypted and decrypted by your own computer, not ours.

Why is Dayo Cloud so slow?As stated above, the many layers of protection we deploy on each request requires time to route through our servers. We're constantly trying to find ways to make this response time faster.

Heard enough? Try Dayo Cloud today!

Kotei - November 4, 2012, 12:10 am

It's a nice idea and such, but it takes a long time. I'd work on making the encryption speeds faster, if possible.

Olap - November 4, 2012, 12:11 am

(Nov 4, 2012 12:10 AM)Himura Kenshin Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's a nice idea and such, but it takes a long time. I'd work on making the encryption speeds faster, if possible.

It's not the encryption, actually. It turns out it's the proxies that we use.

Rozyn - November 4, 2012, 12:11 am

You should quit posting this site EVERYWHERE.

Olap - November 4, 2012, 11:50 am

We're still open to suggestions people. Please post yours below.

Oxycodone - November 4, 2012, 12:15 pm

lol.. This is why I won't use this search engine.

Can't even find anything about one of the most used sites/search engines of all time.
[img]http://i.minus.com/iLTNlx8Lj7UNK.JPG[/img]

Olap - November 4, 2012, 12:29 pm

It's a common error with our beta system. This portion of the site is still in beta, while we sort out the problems.

I actually think I might have a solution to it...

EDIT: Fixed the issue.

coolant - November 4, 2012, 1:43 pm

you will not get anywhere with a dot.tk domain if you cant afford a cheap 6$ to 10$ domain from namecheap.com it pretty much tells me u must be using free hosting and that means u will fail even more

Olap - November 4, 2012, 1:48 pm

(Nov 4, 2012 02:43 PM)coolant Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) you will not get anywhere with a dot.tk domain if you cant afford a cheap 6$ to 10$ domain from namecheap.com it pretty much tells me u must be using free hosting and that means u will fail even more Sigh

<http://www.dayosearch.com> <-- This versus:
<http://www.dayo.tk> <-- This.

I do have a .com domain. I just use the shorter version because it's easier to remember.

cRunctiMe - November 4, 2012, 9:26 pm

I would rather dayosearch.com then going to a .tk domain tho...

Olap - November 4, 2012, 9:41 pm

(Nov 4, 2012 10:26 PM)cRunctiMe Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I would rather dayosearch.com then going to a .tk domain tho...

Dayo.tk is more memorable and easier to type in.

Sorry, but I've tried switching to our .com... it doesn't receive as much traffic as our .tk domain.

cRunctiMe - November 4, 2012, 9:46 pm

Lol the domain name has nothing to do with the name...

People don't search Google because of it's name...yeh it's easy to remember cause it's known but it's the functionality that really makes it work.

So having a .tk in the longrun isn't gonna help you that much...

Olap - November 4, 2012, 10:00 pm

(Nov 4, 2012 10:46 PM)cRunctiMe Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Lol the domain name has nothing to do with the name...

People don't search Google because of it's name...yeh it's easy to remember cause it's known but it's the functionality that really makes it work.

So having a .tk in the longrun isn't gonna help you that much...
Google doesn't judge websites based on their domains.

coolant - November 4, 2012, 10:31 pm

(Nov 4, 2012 11:00 PM)Olap Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Google doesn't judge websites based on their domains. actually google mainly indexes TLD's and .tk is not a TLD

its very very rare to see a .tk domain listed in google unless u actually type

dayo.tk in google search then u may see it

Olap - November 5, 2012, 5:31 am

(Nov 4, 2012 11:31 PM)coolant Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) actually google mainly indexes TLD's and .tk is not a TLD

its very very rare to see a .tk domain listed in google unless u actually type

dayo.tk in google search then u may see it

It is, actually. I think I would research before you type.

.tk the TLD for the territory for Tokelau.

Read more.