Thread: [\[REQUEST\] Looking for a Black-Hat Mentor? \[/REQUEST\]](#)

Kit-Kat - November 15, 2012, 4:45 pm

Hello, I am DISTRACTION, I am looking for a Black Hat (Preferably good in the areas listed below) Hacker that may be able to teach me, I do not wish to be spoonfed. If that's all you're going to do is spoonfeed me, the don't bother replying.

My Skype name is [Skype Removed. I don't like DDoS].

I prefer you be atleast good in 2 of the areas listed below, it is not MANDATORY but it DOES help;

1. Website Defacing
2. DDoSing
3. Bot-netting
4. Keylogging
5. Javascript
6. CSS
7. HTML
8. C++

Thanks. Hope you read. If you did and you can help, leave a reply below!

Those things are more grey hat really, they are pretty simple to do just search for some tutorials.

Maybe I should change it up. Those are just the root of the extent of what I would like to learn, tutorials aren't as easy to follow as it is when you can actually type/talk to the person teaching you and clarify if what you're doing is right.

Hmm, I'm interested. I'll PM you when I'm not busy sometime.

That. Punctuation. And. Capitalization. Gave. Me. Cancer.

I can SEE why you have -3 rep.

ALSO, Did I see what I just thought I saw? Fake CC's and ID's? Fake Credit Cards don't do anything. And fake ID's don't either. Unless you run your own website where everything is $0.00

Not really, black hats are there usually to make a profit from hacking.

Exactly. Also, I prefer you link me your Skype in the PM, for one reason, I don't have 10 posts, and I don't want to go shitposting to get it, so if you could, when you PM me, send me your Skype in it.

Last few are coding, and DDoSing isn't "blackhat".

Blackhat is making profit off of hacking, like things not allowed to be talked about on the forum.

facepalm I did not say every one of those things was going to be blackhat, did I? I said it would be nice if you knew some of these things.
