You will also need to fill out a short survey in order to download. I make you do this because it will keep it FUD longer cause lazy people won't download it (those are the types of people that upload to VT.com) and It will fund me further for VB.net lessons. In turn I will be able to release more free programs to this community.

If you need a tutorial on how to download from SC see here:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=337952>

If you need a compatible binder, look here:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=228245>

This is a simple program, with simple functions and features. If you would like a personal copy with more advanced features and unique stub(s) send me a PM with what you require and we'll work something out, cheaply.

YOU DO NOT HAVE MY PERMISSION TO REDISTRIBUTE OR RE-UPLOAD ANYWHERE!

Pokeefer,

All of your posts are one liners and most are unappreciative and/or just plain negative. I asked nicely to not clutter my thread, and you did it anyway. I see you are new to the community, and that's great; glad to have you but you may need to practice being a little more positive if you want to make any friends here.

This is just my opinion, no hard feelings.

It will show up in your running processes. Go ctrl+alt+delete then find whatever you named your server.exe and end the task.

What i meant to say is the site is working but i tried filling out the surveys many times but i still am unable to download it...

First a huge thank you to you duckyshucky for the share. Your hard work is appreciated! Quick question with what I hope will be a simple answer. On the infected computer every so often the .net framework dialog box appears and shows "failure sending message" (like when the WiFi drops out). This wouldn't be a problem except for the fact that it gives the user the option to kill the application. My question is, is there anyway to keep that dialog from appearing? Or even a way to make it so that if the user chooses to quit the application (when that dialog box does appear) it still does not quit?

Also forgive me if this question has been answered a million times, I used the search function for about 10 minutes with no results. Just results regarding to other framework keylogger issues.

EDIT: Or even any other option that you guys are using to get around this? Any feedback helps. Thanks. (=

King24,

Actually no, I've never been asked this before... and really, I'm not sure how to answer it. I'll have to do some research, it's a good question. Though if you have 'add to startup' the next time you restart your computer, you will be back in business.

Mozzwigan,

Ty, you are welcome :D

king24 - March 17, 2010, 2:25 pm

Ducky,

Thank you for the quick reply. I'm finding that this is the case with all of the keyloggers (I just chose to post here because yours is definitely the cleanest). If the computer is running but does not have an internet connection you get that nasty little .Net Framework box. It would be nice if there was a way to make them "sit in silence". If the log can't be sent at a given point in time, well that's great, just sit there and try to send it again at the next given interval (without giving me a dialog box). Ha ha.

Also if there is any information I can give that would help you just let me know.

Thanks again

Yes, I think every .net keylogger does this. I've tried a couple recently and it's doing the same as mine. I'm still researching, trying to resolve the problem.

This is just a very basic keylogger. I have private versions with screenshots and a lot more really cool features. Though screen shots are basic enough... I'll probably include it in my next free release.

ducky can you send me an other link to download it ? tnx duckyshucky - March 18, 2010, 7:51 am

I've noticed a TON of bad downloads due to a lack of offers for particular countries. I've now re-uploaded the Keylogger to another host, in addition to the regular upload. You will still have to fill out a short survey, but you will actually be able to download it.

Kind Regards,

Read my OP, I asked you not to clutter my thread with that crap. I also said, you don't have my permission to re-upload. There are two download links, if you can't figure it out, you probably won't be able to run the .exe even if you are able to download it. Just give up. (Mar 19, 2010 06:43 AM)

To the ones who get only windows, and no typing. Perhaps you don't have .net framework, or maybe you need to update it. I'm just guessing though, I really have no idea. I just downloaded and ran it. It works perfectly for me.

taketheheat,

You are wrong in both of your statements.

1) Ardamax keylogger is not the most powerful keylogger because "the best" is based on opinions that are based on different peoples needs. For example:

Joe says, I like ardamax keylogger it has everything I need.

Sally says, I don't like ardamax keylogger it packed with so much junk that is useless to me.

This is obviously an oversimplification of how a real conversation would go, but I still think it stands. Also, it's detected by everything.

2) 50% of people have .net framework? I'm not sure where you got that number, but you are way off. It's much, much higher than that.

ducky

It does have two link choices of links. Like I tell everyone who PMs me begging for a regular link:

This stops lazy leechers, or people who are not intelligent, who probably don't contribute a single thing to this forum and who would likely upload to virustotal.com etc. It also supports me a VERY small amount to help me afford more lessons in vb.net. If you don't want to support me by clicking the links, it's no problem - just don't clutter my thread with BS like I asked you not too in my OP!

If he executed the program on his self he just needs to go ctrl alt delete and look in his processes. Find the .exe that he named the server and end process. Also, the program is still 100% FUD - Not sure why or how he got a virus alert.

No. I guess I'm gonna have to link to another tutorial on 'how to download from $sharecash'. If you will notice, this program has been undetected since I've posted it. The reason for that is, the people who would most likely upload to vt.com can't because they are not able to download the file they want so badly in the first place, due to lack of common sense. Which = my file is still FUD.

I'm not targeting you specifically tejaslok, you may be sharp as a tack. I'm just making an observation. Try searching Google until I get another tutorial linked.

It keeps saying email is incorrect when i am putting the correct email? Can anyone help please

Jetli - May 23, 2010, 7:00 pm

Nice work! Unfortunately. I tried to download the file, and ended up with no success.

1. The SC guide does not apply to the website anymore since they changed it so you can no longer see it.

2. Most of the offers go on for EVERR, it took me 3 mins and i still didnt get to download...

Over all, I think this is a great piece of art... but i wont be able to enjoy it with the rest of the community.

once again, goodjob mate.
