ProductOfIsolation - November 18, 2012, 10:30 am

Hi there!

Given that quite a few HF members have decided to take advantage of our available services, we would love to have your opinion considered during the remodel of our website.

We've been running a successful thread here, and have already noted many of the comments there.

If not on the website itself, perhaps you may have some valuable input on our products, or the marketing itself. We are all ears!

Thanks in advance!

Highest regards,

tomakemymessagelonger..How do you obtain the back links so fast?
Also with penguin isn't getting back links that fast bad? I heard you should only get around 4 back links per day.

We have a small data center, which allows us to make us of large amounts of bandwidth and other resources. Very helpful!

The amount of backlinks you should be aiming for, is a consistent amount. The actual number should be dependent on the age of your domain.

Ask yourself, how a new booming website would control the amount of links that it received? Wouldn't it then be on the road to a penguin slap?

Consistency is the important factor with that inquiry. :)

We also offer high quality contextual links. This means your link is placed within directly relevant content for the greatest effect.

Additionally, your link is the only outbound link. These have been very useful post-penguin.

With all content, or changes within a page - you can help control when Google is notified through the use of a ping tool - this notifies Google of a change on a page and more importantly your link placement.

It would then be ideal to ping a gradual amount of links each day, after they have already been created.

Would love to hear some ideas on improvements / areas currently lacking.

Our affiliate and reseller programs are vastly unorganized, and while are operational. were not anticipated to be complete until after December.

We'd love some suggestions in that regard too!
