YESS OMGMOREKINO!!!

No information has been published by any western sources yet, so you guys will have to do with the Japanese ones.

Not that I'm expecting any Kinofags to be here, but for those interested.

I'll remake and poke this thread when more information gets released.

Spoiler (Click to View) I am going to slit my wrist if this turns out to be fake ;_;

1. Don't worry about it, I enjoy my chinese cartoons anyway ^^

2. No need to watch the OP, it's the articles themselves that matter.

3. Sorry, Byouki was released in 2007, but all the other adaptations came out between 2003-2005. Read about it here: <http://myanimelist.net/anime/486>

Also guys, I have confirmation for a continuation of Mushishi and Rozen Maiden. For fucks sake my mind can't handle the bliss, 2013 will be best season! ?

Mushishi

Quote:"While Hiroshi Nagahama indicated that a Mushis-shi or DMC anime could be in the works, Artland producer Chihiro Okamoto offered more hints, such as the involvement of character designer Umakoshi Yoshihiko, to suggest a new Mushi-shi anime, tentatively scheduled for next fall or winter was in their pipeline."

"I also attended the panel "More Mushi Please!" hosted by none other than the director of Mushishi, Hiroshi Nagahama. The panel name means just what it says. There's going to be a second season of Mushishi! Yay! I'm so happy! xD Well, I didn't get to hear him talk for long since it overlapped with KOTOKO's performance, but I did catch him on Sunday at a much smaller, informal panel ... So I asked him to explain his new project. He couldn't tell me much since everything was still "in his head," but he did say that Mushishi 2 would involve the same staff and that it would "become more" than the first season."

Rozen Maiden

Just woke up when I wrote that, kinda silly calling 2013 a season ?

But yeah, so many things to look forward to next year.
