

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Nevermind this is not relevant anymore.

Traitor-Panda - March 13, 2010, 1:55 am

Nevermind this is not relevant anymore.

The Forgotten King™ - March 13, 2010, 1:59 am

You will have to contact your buyers to give them back and from next time take payment as gift because it will be safe okay?

Traitor-Panda - March 13, 2010, 2:54 am

(Mar 13, 2010 02:59 AM)anish123jain Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You will have to contact your buyers to give them back and from next time take payment as gift because it will be safe okay?
You didn't answer regarding my question of creating a second paypal account.

Cathodes - March 13, 2010, 2:56 am

With the second account this is considered fraud but it is possible to do if you make sure to clean your flashcookies or LSOs after ever sign out. However, you are likely better off just having them send it into your main and req. a gift with a no return disclaimer ghelatin1 - March 13, 2010, 3:46 am

No! Don't create another paypal account, they will only trace you back. Verify your account and get the money every time you have been paid. That's the best way.

Traitor-Panda - March 13, 2010, 4:19 am

(Mar 13, 2010 04:46 AM)ghelatin1 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No! Don't create another paypal account, they will only trace you back. Verify your account and get the money every time you have been paid. That's the best way.

Is it because my paypal havent been verified that the payments has been seen as unauthorized? :O

Factor8™ - March 13, 2010, 4:22 am

(Mar 13, 2010 02:55 AM)Traitor-Panda Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) However a day after, all the payments got held back because paypal was suspecting them of being unauthorized.

Now it's kind of hard for me to prove that I actually sold the accounts since its a virtual good (I don't have tracking number etc.)

Mind posting a screen-shot of the limitation in your PayPal?

RUS7Y - March 13, 2010, 4:27 am

(Mar 13, 2010 03:56 AM)Av917 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) With the second account this is considered fraud but it is possible to do if you make sure to clean your flashcookies or LSOs after ever sign out. However, you are likely better off just having them send it into your main and req. a gift with a no return disclaimer

Two paypal's are allowed by same ip ,as long as both are not personal accounts .

Factor8™ - March 13, 2010, 4:31 am

(Mar 13, 2010 05:27 AM)Rusty_v™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Two paypal's are allowed by same ip ,as long as both are not personal accounts .

To be more concise PayPal allows you to have one personal account and one premier/business account in your name. :)

Traitor-Panda - March 13, 2010, 4:50 am

Thanks for the answers guys. Paypal are simply holding back my payments saying that they might be unauthorized. Which they are not - I'm so frustrated I'd rip the flesh off the next paypal employee I see.

So you guys think I should make a business account also? so that I can send the payments instantly to it as I receive them, thus avoiding any chargebacks? Is it possibly to do so?

Factor8™ - March 13, 2010, 4:54 am

That does not really matter, if it's an unauthorized claim, you have to wait for PayPal to investigate and wait for the outcome, they decide the case in 15 days time :(

Traitor-Panda - March 13, 2010, 5:02 am

(Mar 13, 2010 05:54 AM)factor8 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That does not really matter, if it's an unauthorized claim, you have to wait for PayPal to investigate and wait for the outcome, they decide the case in 15 days time :(

yea I know but I was referring to future payments. I mean say I receive a payment from a guy on 100$.

Now as soon as I receive the payments I would send them directly to my other account before paypal holds them back.

I mean if I've transferred the money again paypal wouldn't hold back the payments would they? :O

Factor8™ - March 13, 2010, 5:05 am

Look, PayPal ain't dumb, instant withdrawals/transfers put a flag on your account ok, Always hold the money for 24-48 hours in your account (if it is a substantial amount), that helps you in the long run.

Traitor-Panda - March 13, 2010, 5:07 am

(Mar 13, 2010 06:05 AM)factor8 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Look, PayPal ain't dumb, instant withdrawals/transfers put a flag on your account ok, Always hold the money for 24-48 hours in your account (if it is a substantial amount), that helps you in the long run.

Ahh okay.

Why do paypal keep holding back the payments I receive saying it's unauthorized? Is it because I wasn't verified? I've just gotten myself verified now btw.

Factor8™ - March 13, 2010, 5:10 am

-. , make sure you fully verified and use all real details ok, and unauthorized claims are no way related to your verification status, it's required to remove your spending limits on PayPal as part of KYC (Know your customer) norms.

Traitor-Panda - March 13, 2010, 5:13 am

Okay but if the unauthorized claims are not related to verification of the account then why have paypal held back my last 2 payments? =(

Carlos_es_muy_contento - March 13, 2010, 6:59 am

This may take little time to do but you should of contacted your customers and ask them if they could contact paypal via phone and tell paypal that the payment were authorized and the problem would be solved. These things happens to most people. Speaking your voice to paypal will make things easier. They are not mean people on the phone. Do not create another PayPal account because both accounts will be limited due to your exact name on both premier accounts. You are only allowed to have 1 personal, 1 premier and 1 business.

Traitor-Panda - March 13, 2010, 8:04 am

Okay I see. The fact is just that the scum denies having paid me thus leaving me hopeless...

Factor8™ - March 13, 2010, 8:51 am

(Mar 13, 2010 07:59 AM)Carlos_es_muy_contento Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) . You are only allowed to have 1 personal, 1 premier and 1 business.

Correction: One personal account and one premier or a business account.

Carlos_es_muy_contento - March 13, 2010, 9:02 am

(Mar 13, 2010 09:51 AM)factor8 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Correction: One personal account and one premier or a business account.

Wow big deal bro!

Factor8™ - March 13, 2010, 9:03 am

(Mar 13, 2010 10:02 AM)Carlos_es_muy_contento Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Wow big deal bro!:) It is not,just stated a fact.

Carlos_es_muy_contento - March 13, 2010, 9:48 am

(Mar 13, 2010 10:03 AM)factor8™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) :) It is not,just stated a fact.

? ok m8 thanks for the correction

Factor8™ - March 13, 2010, 9:48 am

(Mar 13, 2010 10:48 AM)Carlos_es_muy_contento Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) ? ok m8 thanks for the correction Your welcome :) .

Traitor-Panda - March 13, 2010, 2:32 pm

(Mar 13, 2010 03:56 AM)Av917 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) With the second account this is considered fraud but it is possible to do if you make sure to clean your flashcookies or LSOs after ever sign out. However, you are likely better off just having them send it into your main and req. a gift with a no return disclaimer

So you're saying that they can't claim the payment to be unauthorised if the payment was sent as a gift? :O

Also what is a no return disclaimer?