Beilinder - December 24, 2012, 11:21 am sad, and true. I wonder if its the cancer that brought Apple where they are today....

Skorp - December 24, 2012, 11:27 am

That is a good statement that can be a influence in the development of Apple. Hmmm.

VVrath - March 26, 2013, 12:01 pm

I agree. This hit me hard. Inspires me to go all out, (:.

?osmo - March 26, 2013, 1:09 pm

Well this is why I always tell my parents I love them after I talk to them over the phone, I tell all my family that I love them before I go to bed/when I hang up.

Skorp - March 26, 2013, 2:25 pm

I am glad this had an effect on you guys. ?

Natas - April 5, 2013, 1:17 am

Sorry OP I started listening to this and heard the sad music and turned it off.

I really dont want to be sad lol so im just going to go back to watching sons of anarchy ?

A great speech from a great genius. This man had a remarkable life with remarkable success.

jbnsmr35 - April 5, 2013, 2:14 am

Ya that was powerful stuff summed up shortly. Definitely got his point across to me anyway.

Thank you for posting this. Sometimes I need a reminder of why I wake up and continue on everyday.

Thanks and take care!

Funny that I had to analyze this speech in college last week and then I find it here. It is awesome. This is just an excerpt of the speech he gave in Stanford, you can watch the entire speech here, its totally worth it.
