i have found myself wanting to download some 3d models of my various things but have hit a problem. i have no credit card with which to make online payments and do not wish to spend money anyway, i wanted to download some of the models on the sites but need advice on how to "hack" them so that i can download without needing to pay. on the 3dcadbrowser site it says all i need to do to be able to download models is to get "credits" for a number of uploads. i have uploaded but no one is coming back to me about it (some fool decided that the uploads have to be approved). i tried the free google 3d warehouse for similar models but all the ones on there of the thing i want are very low quality, i was thinking that as a few times i have managed to post on forums where i did not have permission to post by changing an " @f" or "@false" in the address to "@t" or "@true" there might be a similar trick with these sites.

i do not want to have to properly hack the site but may consider doing it if there is no simple trick such as this. i could not try the "@t" or "@true" as there was no point in the address saying "@f"/"@false" so think this might be more difficult.

please help.

thanks for any advice.

I am also trying to get a download link out of a model that doesn't allow me because of the damn credits.
