

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: [\[Suggestion\] Add Deal Disputes Database as a Sub-Category to Deal Disputes](#)

Roxox1 - December 30, 2012, 6:02 pm

I understand that Omniscient has already opened a thread about it, but I believe that the Deal dispute database should have it's own sub-category in the Deal disputes section as it would show up a bit more predominantly in the section, whereas I did not notice the thread until actually looking for it.

Pretty much, make it stick out more :)

Ove?lo?d - December 30, 2012, 7:46 pm

A whole section for one single thing? Yeah no.

Also all deals on HF are at your own risk, so this would be incorporating it more into HF.

Pred?tor - December 30, 2012, 7:51 pm

(Dec 30, 2012 08:46 PM)Ove?lo?d Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) A whole section for one single thing? Yeah no.

Also all deals on HF are at your own risk, so this would be incorporating it more into HF.

No, just a link to the dispute db as a "subforum" to deal disputes, even though it isn't actually a forum.

I like the idea.

Ders - December 30, 2012, 7:57 pm

Not a bad idea, although I don't think Omni wants suggestions for site layout. Nice thinking though

Paradoxum - December 31, 2012, 3:40 am

I support, but everything would be easier if members learn to read and understand stuck threads made by Omniscient are important and should be read.

Dan. - December 31, 2012, 8:57 am

I agree. A simple redirect forum would do the job just fine. Even if the vouch system will make it obsolete, it's still worth doing for the time being, would take all of 5 seconds.

VoidEx. - December 31, 2012, 5:01 pm

Yeah I like this idea. It will make it easier to open the database instead of having to first open the thread.

Temper ? - January 1, 2013, 4:42 am

Hmm, sure... Good idea, but if people read the stickies then we'd be all good. Yeah, makes it a bit easier but people should really be reading what Omni posts.