Thread: Thread creator online/offline symbol in the market section. [\[Example in thread\]](#)

Xylon - January 14, 2013, 12:30 am

I hate when i need to get something fast and i need to go through 300 threads before i find someone who is online selling the thing i want. Therefore i think it would be great if a online/offline symbol could be shown somewhere would make it alot easier if you really need something. I mean showing this little dude  would be enough :P

Example:

Yep this would be a great idea. Especially if you need a product straight away.

It has that "little dude" next to their username.
Isn't this enough?

What are you talking about? This already exists.

I'm talking about to make it next to the thread name so you can see it just by browsing so you don't have to go into the thread and see if the user is online. So you just see it by browsing threads in the list. You can see how i think in the thread now I just made an example.

Sorry to say that I don't think this is going to be implemented.
If it interest you, just click the users name.
Omni probably won't add something because you're lazy.

Gørilla - January 14, 2013, 3:57 am

If you take the time to go into the thread you can see who is online and offline. This would probably just be another wasted feature and cause people to become lazy.

How can you say this is not important? Yesterday i was looking for someone who sold bots, i browsed over 100 threads to see if anyone of them was online so this would make something alot easier if you're looking for something many peoples sell but you want the thing directly.

Rihsky - January 14, 2013, 10:53 am

I support, but I think that it would look better if the online/offline symbol was on the left side of the thread title.

Max ?? - January 14, 2013, 10:55 am

I support, it'd be a lot more effiecient, and user-friendly.

Apathy - January 14, 2013, 11:00 am

This is so lazy, and your reasoning would only be relevant to a few parts of the forums.

Ofcourse it was just an example how it would work because people didn't understand me correctly.

Well, I've experienced many times when i really need something fast and it would be much easier if that existed.

That would require too much load on those pages and either an extra join statement or a new query. In either case this won't be implemented.
