V2.0 Functions (In-Depth):

- Built-In FUD File Binder

That's right. This is probably the most requested function; it does what you expect it to do, it'll bind the keylogger's server to any .exe you want. Also, since the binder uses a unique non-fail dropping method, after the program is run the first time, your keyloggers code is removed from the binded file and safely placed in their system :). Leaving the original file as just the fake program/malware you tricked your victim with.

Have fun spreading like a champ.

- Built-In Remote Downloader

Oh yes. The name basically describes this function; when the virus is first run on your victim's computer, the given URL will be downloaded to their system files and ran. This is a great way to spread both your keylogger and your botnet!

Warning: Make sure the software being downloaded is 100% Runtime FUD, otherwise you'll probably end up giving the keylogger's position away to your victim.

- Add To Startup

This is probably the most easy to understand function; it adds a registry key to tell the computer to open the virus on startup. Also, if the registry key is ever deleted, it will immediately be re-written. (Checks every 0.001 seconds)

- USB Spreader (Not Working on Windows 7)

Another fairly obvious function; the USB spreader does exactly what it says. When someone put's their USB into a computer infected with your keylogger, the keylogger will immediately copy itself to the USB in a hidden directory, and it will also write an autorun.inf file on the USB to tell it to always run the keylogger immediately when it's plugged into any computer.

(E.X. If Computer A is infected, and the USB is plugged into it, and then plugged into Computer B, Computer B is now also infected.)

- Send Screenshots

If this option is selected, along with receiving a text log after every time the interval you set is reached, you will also receive a full screenshot of your victim's computer. This is very useful as it gives you some general information about them.

(E.G. What timezone their in, what they like to do in their free time...what kind of porn the watch, etc!)

- Log Clipboard

A very nice function; whenever your victim copies something to the clipboard using (Ctrl+c) the keylogger steals a copy of whatever they copy and adds it to the log. (You can see an example of this in the SMTP Log picture above). Useful for getting sensitive information such as confirmation codes/passwords.

- Display backspace as -1 letter in logs

The title basically tells you what this does; you can either see [Backspace] in your logs or 1 less letter for every time the victim presses backspace. This may make better logs, but most people tend to spam the backspace button way to much, causing the log to become inaccurate.

- Clear Password/Cookie Cache

This function runs an extra command when it's first run, deleting a number of registry entries/temp folders that hold cookies. This is useful because it forces your victim to re-enter their username and passwords for any account they previously selected "remember me" for. (Such as steam).

- Melt Original File

This is a very nice little function. Basically, after the keylogger has successfully infected your victim's computer, it deletes the original .EXE you sent your victim.

P.S. This isn't one of those fail functions that makes a .bat file telling it to delete itself, this is the real deal.

- Kill Taskmanager/CMD/Regedit

This function simply disables the victim from using the selected system application. Rather than using the registry to disable them, I use the program itself; this is seen as less effective, but I feel that keyloggers are more about stealth, and with this method people won't get an error when they attempt to open these processes, they just won't open. (A lot of the times, people will Google the errors they get and then fix their problems).

- Hidden Process (Epic)

This is my favorite function. Credits to Scout for the source code, I modded it a bit to make it usable for this application. Basically, when your victim starts up task manager, everything will be normal, but the virus will NOT APPEAR. That's right guys, they can't end the process if they can't see it, so....yea. (Also, programs that are made specifically to find hidden processes will not detect this, since it's a simply blink function on a timer of 0.0001).

- Display Mouse Clicks

After getting a lot of complaints from people who said their FTP/SMTP were getting flooded by [Left Mouse Click] I decided to make it toggle able. If the option is not checked, mouse clicks will not be recorded.

Thanks for all your support and help everyone from HF and LC.

Special Thanks to:

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ):

Q: Can i have free plz?

A: No sorry, IQ Requirement of 50.

Q: The built server isn't working on my RAT victims!

A: Firstly, make sure the server works on your computer. If it doesn't contact me on MSN for support. Once you know it works on your local computer, make sure you know what RAT your using. RATs such as CyberGate/Spynet rename sent files to >ID Number Here<_OriginalFileName.exe, and better yet they send it to your victim's temp folders. If a program is run from the temp folder that they send it to (not like, the one in My Documents) it can't make changes to the computer.

Basically, if you want to infect someone on your RAT with this keylogger, wait until they're AFK, then just manually download it using remote desktop. Simple.

Q: *Insert Function Here Doesn't work!

A: Add me on MSN and we'll figure it out :).

Q: I suddenly stopped getting logs from my victims on my SMTP! HALP!

A: Mmkay. The cause for this is not what you expect, it's not a fault in the code. It's in fact a fault in the SMTP server provider. The thing is, all SMTP servers normally have a limit on how many emails can be sent from one email a day. So let's say the limit is 1,000. But if you have over 100 infected victims on your computer, you're probably gonna be receiving about 10,000. The thing is, after your "from" address has sent 1,000 e-mails, it can't send anymore until midnight the next day.

As soon as you notice your logs cutting off, you should immediately update the link(s) to the keylogger with new links of server's with new "from" addresses.

Also, to avoid losing very important logs, keep an FTP backup!

Sorry Mom. I'll do better next time.

P.S. The binder isn't ripped. I made it myself. There are only so many different ways to make a binder these days, since all you're doing is putting two files' information together. I'm not gonna get into a flame war with you ^^. You're a better coder/flamer than me and I respect that.

Don't worry that's just from NVT's personal scanner, it won't be detected.

At this time there is no remote removal; the only way to accomplish that is by sending the infected person the vaccine which isn't very smart.

Here's my reviewish thing:

- works nicely, most features work, got a couple bugs that I will list below
- logs are sent consistently, I didn't get the starting log though with stolen firefox info, etc. but I still get the logs
 - a heads up to other people planning on using this, don't use a gmail account for sending the emails, it will get locked. Use hotmail.

broken features include:

listing a backspace as -1 letter in the log : if someone clicks then presses backspace, then instead of appearing as [LEFT CLICK] in the log, it will appear as [LEFT CLICK, and if someone presses backspace a few times, then you get shit like [LEF and then stuff that they actually type, which completely fucks up log files.

usb spreader: only tested this on vista, but when you run the server in admin mode on vista, it CONSTANTLY tries to write to the USB drives that aren't even there.... and when they aren't there it gives error messages, infinite error messages, literally doesn't stop until you restart your computer.

Thanks for the review, the -1 backspace option is being fixed/removed in next version. Besides, it's an option. You can just not use it if you want.

As for the USB spreader, I fine-tuned it to adjust itself to those kind of situations.

Thanks again.

I wish keyloggers capture the mouse clicks, because many games like WOW and Maplestory and other games all have pin and i can't hack them without knowing them so it's really shitty if you add it, i think many people will buy it including me.

Samuell - April 3, 2010, 5:02 pm
It does capture mouse clicks mate.

Just look under options o.O.

Quote:- Display Mouse Clicks

After getting a lot of complaints from people who said their FTP/SMTP were getting flooded by [Left Mouse Click] I decided to make it toggle able. If the option is not checked, mouse clicks will not be recorded.

Review Time!

Okay - Though my reputation is nothing hopefully my words mean something.

First off - the feature that are being sold already are worth more than $10. The builder works very well and stub updates are provided as soon as he can give them, which in my case was less than hours after I needed them, so the anti's are always updated.

In terms of customer support, it's fantastic! Talks to multiple people who have bought it and helps with their problems (if ANY). The amount of information it logs is astounding, I infected myself as a demo and wow... if that hit me... I'd lose everything from Personal details, Website Logins, Game Keys... I mean everything!

I urge many of you to buy this. It's by far one of the best deals going at the moment and you really do not want to miss out. This is SERIOUS BUSINESS

Anyway - Later ! Thanks Classical ! ?

It's FUD, if it becomes un-FUD within a week of you purchasing it, you will get a fresh FUD stub. Any longer than one week and additional charges may apply.

I've decided to completely re-write the code in V3.0, it's gonna be epic. Adding some features that I don't think have ever been seen in a keylogger before.

Release Date: 5/15/2010 (If everything goes perfectly, which it won't.)

Thanks for a great product. :D

Samuell - May 11, 2010, 11:11 am

V2.1 is out.

Update Type: Stub

Added Features: N/A (Bug Fix Update)

Fixed Features [overview]:

- Firefox Stealer.
- USB Spreader.
- Not Infecting on Windows 7.
- Logs being full of unreadable garbage.

This was a much needed update as the un-announced update of 2.0.5 brought some major issues. This should fix them all up, I've also re-FUD'd all stubs. PM me for a free update if you purchased V2.0 or higher, if you only purchased V1.0, there will be a $2 charge to update.

P.S. This is NOT the V3.0 update I've been working on, it won't be out for a while still.

Samuell - May 11, 2010, 1:50 pm

I'm back online, message me on MSN for your updated stubs!

foaooad - May 11, 2010, 5:01 pm

I decided to write 7 questions which get me confused, I hope you could solve my doubts.

I noticed that with version 2.1 you fixed the Firefox Stealer.

1) May I know what has been fixed exactly?

I ask this, because my friend have infected a victim but he haven't received its Firefox passwords (using version 2.0, if I recall correctly).

Plus, for a test I tried to infect myself through a virtual machine, using my friend's server (keylogger file), and I noticed that the following files have been correctly created in a hidden folder:

- C:/WINDOWS/system32/explorer/pic/lmg%.jpeg
A screenshot done when the machine got infected.

- C:/WINDOWS/system32/explorer/csrss.exe
27.5 KB file, I don't know its purpose.

2) What's the purpose of csrss.exe?

- C:/WINDOWS/system32/explorer/winlogon.exe
1.4 MB file, I think it's the server.

3) What's the purpose of winlogon?

- C:/WINDOWS/system32/explorer/cd.txt
It contains a list of games without keys, because no games are installed on the virtual machine.

- C:/WINDOWS/system32/explorer/Decrypt.txt
0 KB file, I don't know its purpose.

4) What's the purpose of Decrypt.txt?

- C:/WINDOWS/system32/explorer/firefox.txt
It contains the Firefox passwords of the virtual machine.

As you would have noticed, I am very curious, so I decided to open with a Hex Editor the file winlogon.exe.

I've found some interesting ASCII strings:

- email, something like *@gmail.com (instead of the real account name, I've put ****)
I've found it 2 times in the file.

- smtp.gmail.com

5) Would *@gmail.com be the mail my friend would have used to receive the logs?

6) Would smtp.gmail.com the SMTP server my friend would have used to send the logs?

Some posts back, I've read from a user the following statement:

"a heads up to other people planning on using this, don't use a gmail account for sending the emails, it will get locked. Use hotmail."

7) May this be the reason for my friend of not receiving the Firefox passwords?

Well, I really hope you would have the time to answer to these 7 questions, so that I could think for a purchase...

P.S.: tested OS is Windows XP SP3.

Samuell - May 11, 2010, 5:29 pm

Here you go foaooad.

1) May I know what has been fixed exactly?

A1.) It was causing a glitch in the infection process if the victim had a certain version of firefox.

2) What's the purpose of csrss.exe?

A2.) Uhm. Not important! ;D. (I don't want to expose stratageys I use in my programs)

3) What's the purpose of winlogon?

A3.) It's the main hub for the keylogger.

4) What's the purpose of Decrypt.txt?

A4.) Decrypts passwords it steals.

5) Would *@gmail.com be the mail my friend would have used to receive the logs?

A5.) Yes, however I'm going to be encrypting the information (MD5) soon so hex editing won't reveal that.

6) Would smtp.gmail.com the SMTP server my friend would have used to send the logs? A6.) If your friend had an @gmail.com, yes.

7) May this be the reason for my friend of not receiving the Firefox passwords?

A7.) It may of contributed to it, or it may of been because the person he infected did not have firefox to start with.

If you have any other questions, feel free to PM me.

Imulative - May 11, 2010, 9:26 pm

Cant wait for V3 think you will include a gui update?

Samuell - May 26, 2010, 10:39 am

Notice:

I am aware that the program is being detected on runtime by some antivirus programs such as Avira, BitDefender, and Norton 2010. I'm writing a bypass for all of them, for now remember that you can try to avoid being detected by using reshacker and changing the:

- 1.) Icon
- 2.) Assembly Info
- 3.) .Exe Name

Thank you for your patience.

Samuell - May 26, 2010, 2:34 pm

Hehe. It's a well known fact that NoVirusThanks is kind of out of date, so even when it tells me 0/19, I'm not too sure it's truly 100% FUD.

VirusTotal is 100% up to date, but the problem is if the program is detected by even 1 AV, all the AV's will soon have it on their detection lists.

Check it out:

FAT EDIT: Zzz... Yet another paypal has been limited, I'll need to sort this out.

FAT EDIT #2: If anyone is an expert in paypal and/or can someone hook me up with a verified account, let me know.

V2.1.5 Change Log:

- Cleaned up some junk code that was slowing the program down.
- Made it once again fully FUD scantime and runtime. (See the scan above)
- Decreased stub size by 300kb.
- Changed some internal information for a more stable infection rate.
- Removed some un-needed resources.
- Tightened FTP log support.
- Began to design UAC bypass, although not yet fully implemented.

some small samples of V3.0 to, I think you know why it's taking so long, and just how epic it shall be :).

I've added a few modifications to both the stub and the builder; both too minor to need a major update, but any new copies purchased will now include:

Builder:

- A more eye-pleasing Terms of Service Page.
- The Closest thing to an Auto-Updater I can reasonably make.

Stub:

- UAC Bypass (Just kidding, only 50% done ;P)
- Eliminated some old drops that are useless now; so more runtime FUD.
- Decreased stub size to about 150kb.
- Added a few Try statements where they were missing, so less chance of an exception being thrown.

Samuell - May 28, 2010, 9:25 pm

I don't know why I've suddenly decided to change so many small things O_O!

Small Tweaks:

Builder:

- The stubs are now built in; So no more worrying about opening them by mistake! Yippee!
- The program will now say who it's registered to on the title of the form.

Stub:

- Added a UAC "bypass", it's really not that good and I'm not satisfied with it, going to keep working on it!
- Decreased Size Again.
- Changed Icon
- Re-FUD'd both scantime and runtime.

P.S. Woot 500th Post :D!

UAC = User Account Control, a setting in Vista/7 that forces certain programs to be run with administrative rights.

Yea, the clear cache/cookies is currently terribly coded and basically one big glitch. I'll work to fix it up asap.

SMTP/FTP shouldn't make one bit of difference; you're experiencing a glitch in my program. Please talk to me on MSN so we can figure it out; I have a feeling I know what went wrong.

Edit: I'm starting to go insane; I've been on HF/MSN all day and I need to get out of my house lol. I always have at least 30+ windows open in MSN and I'm starting to lose it. Seriously considering hiring a sales rep. to help me deal with all of this. But I want to nail out some of these glitches first, which I will do tonight.

Known Bugs:

- ResHacker Corrupts the server when the icon is changed. (Sometimes)
- The binder is not 100% FUD anymore. (3/19)
- The Clear Password/Cache is not working.
- [Insert Other Glitches Here]

P.S. A lot of people have been PMing/MSNing me about being my sales rep; so if you're serious about it, send me a PM with:

- Language(s) You Speak.
- Past Experience(s).
- What you want to get out of this.
- What you think you could do for me. (E.G. Support, Sales, etc.)

I've noticed that while testing the server the USB spreader causes error message boxes to be created where it has been unable to access a certain media device (there is actually no media device plugged in, but it continually attempts to access it). This causes an error message box to keep popping up on screen for each device that it tries to access. The message box gives me the options "Continue", "Cancel", and "Try again". However, whatever option is chosen the error messages continue to return and don't stop at all. I'm sure this can be fixed somehow, I'm just letting you know the problem exists so you might be able to start work on a fix. =)

Otherwise, great program! Very satisfied.

As a Harkonnen, Ive come across sellers that don't always seem to commit to their customers. The difficulty in getting your questions answered deprives the user customer of satisfaction. Classical however, is none of these, hes just as his name suggests, classy. Kid is young, yet mature and always around to help his customers.

Transactions were smooth as a baby's ass, no hiccups, or broken links. The logger itself is unbelievable and relatively user friendly and incrementally continues to get even better.

Bottom line this kid maybe young, but hes no joke, hes on a mission to prove one day he will be an absolute beast, and perhaps legendary on this board. If your having second thoughts, don't. Get this logger now.

Yea, the next mini-update (or perhaps full update) is going to include:

- Chrome Stealer
- UAC Bypass
- IE Stealer (hopefully)
- New GUI

Those are the main features I'm looking at adding; if you guys can think of any other minor additions let me know.

P.S The built server is currently detected 1/19 on NVT, Avira AntiVir finds it as a Trojan.Dropper; however I'm being lead to believe this is a false detection, as I have Avira AntiVir myself, and it's never detected anything.

P.S.S This new update won't be out for about a week; since I'm not going to work on it for the next 4 days, as I have my finals. Once I'm done with them, I'll hit this thing full on and get it updated ASAP.

Ok, I'm making this post because I'm about to lose it lol.

I NEED to start studying for my finals. If you need an update/support/troubleshooting or just want to buy the product, just take a deep breath, and wait a few days.

I will most likely not be online much at all for the next 3 days. (Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.) After that, I will be online all day everyday.

I strive to offer good support/be active for my customers, but my education is more important than you guys ;D!

Thank you for understanding, I'm going to sign off of MSN now.

P.S. Greg (greg_spurs_14@hotmail.com) has happily offered to take my place while I'm away; please be aware that any sales made by him will be honored by me, and you will receive the keylogger as soon as I come back online. He's also around to offer temporary support while I'm away.

P.S.S If you're designing a GUI for me, I'll hop on in 1-3 days and pick which I like the best and give the prizes out accordingly.

is this pic

what u men by antis and KAV runtime detected

this stealer is Runtime FUD only ?

Erudite - June 1, 2010, 3:12 am

No he is saying additionally he has bypassed the KAV runtime detection.

And also anti's (if enabled) when your keylogger is enabled on the victim's PC. It disables their antiviruses.

akupadamu - June 1, 2010, 3:38 am

hi clasic,

1. i have problem with keylogg start up. I ve bind the keylogg with other program, the pc infected but when the pc reboot or the application close, the keylogg shutdown too, no run automatically. Keylogg start up normally when i m not bind with others.

2. what the fuction of RunPE stub.exe, how can i use it and what purposed this file?

please help.

Erudite - June 1, 2010, 3:51 am

Hi aku,

1. Erm, last i heard binder was 2/19 so I wouldn't recommend using it until it is FUD or their AV will pick it up and it will fuck up the keylogger. But also another reason could be you didn't tick the 'add to startup'

2. the stub should be in the same folder as the builder, this basically keeps anti viruses from being able to detect the keylogger.

regards,

Uhm. No.

Guys, I'm still very busy and I just wanted to quickly hop on to tell all my customers:

DO NOT USE THE USB SPREADER! I have ran some tests, and it will cause your server to be 100% detected, and promptly deleted. (Even Windows Defenders catches it if you use USB Spreader.)

So for now, just stay away from it, once I'm out of school I'll fix the code, thanks.

P.S. James2h thanks for all the help you've been giving me :D!

Samuell - June 2, 2010, 2:42 pm

Hey again guys, only one more 1/2 day of school and I'm all done for the year! I'll be releasing my update soon; but I'm looking for people (customers) who have a range of operating systems they could test my product on. I have already tested it on:

Microsoft Windows 7 Ultimate x32
Microsoft Windows Vista Home Premium x86
Microsoft XP Media Edition

And it's worked flawlessly no matter what options are selected; if you have an OS other than this, please let me know so I can make sure that the new update will work on all windows OS.

Damn those are some fast replies. I can't actually update you guys yet since I still have an English and History final to study for, but tomorrow I'll be working hard to finish up the update, however I want to get it right this time around, the less glitches the better ><.

I'll also be making a new thread when it's released.

ANUDER BUMP FOR YOU MY GOOD MAN!

Samuell - June 2, 2010, 7:12 pm

Worked a little bit on the program tonight; Added an MSN stealer...working on Chrome + IE stealers as well.

Wish me luck on finals tomorrow, gonna go to sleep now :).

Samuell - June 3, 2010, 10:17 am

I just got home from school, I have a graduation ceremony tonight but I'm basically done with school :D!

I'm now looking for suggestions for practical features I should add to the program; so far I am already adding:

- IE Stealer
- Chrome Stealer
- Multi-Downloader

If you have ideas for any other functions at all, just let me know and I'll see what I can do.

P.S. Please only suggest functions that would actively be useful to people... the more functions a program has, the easier it can fail.

Samuell - June 3, 2010, 12:03 pm

Added IE Stealer (both saved passwords and AutoComplete forms), still working on Chrome, it's proving to really hate Windows 7 lol.

I have a few suggestions: more extension options(like com, pif, scr) and maybe a file binder/icon changer.

Alas, the stub will be around 200kb in V3.0 :[.

Frankstare - June 3, 2010, 4:22 pm

I haz suggestion!! but you know it already... but Ima say it again!

I think you should make it show when it sends you a pic of the desktop it also sends you a pic of their webcam. so you can atleast see something and maybe get a kick outa something every now and then!

but I would try and make it so that it automatically detects if the user has a webcam or else or will most likely cause errors

LoL. I'll look into it, although I'm not sure how many people actually have webcams that are fully set-up o_O.

P.S. I hate Google Chrome. I've made stealers for FF, IE, and MSN, but the chrome stealer doesn't want to work. I don't want to use drops in my program, but I might have to until I can get the Chrome Stealer sorted out =/.

Su?ernatural - June 3, 2010, 8:21 pm

You can always just use a.dll for the Chrome Stealer.

Tomorrow if there aren't any complications.

Finished the closest thing I could get to a UAC bypass; should work out well though.

Also, Google Chrome is now my least favorite browser ever. I can't get my stealer code to work, no matter what I try. If I can't get it by tomorrow, I'm just gonna either:

- A. Clear Remembered Passwords
- B. Add a Drop

EDIT: I got the Chrome Stealer to work, however it requires that Chrome itself is closed when the program is run... I could terminate the process but isn't that kind of fishy? XD.

Not if you add an error like

"Google Chrome has experienced a crash etc.."

Make it look professional like sometimes how Firefox crashes.

Snefl - June 4, 2010, 4:31 am

Yeah, like the person above said, add a fake error message modeled off a Chrome message. It doesn't necessarily have to be a message box, but a form that looks like a Chrome error.
