Thread: [?? \[WORD LIST\] FREE 302.6 million word list 3.4GB/553MB \[UNIQUE + NOT RANDOM\] ??](#)

J?mes - January 27, 2013, 2:52 am

I've spent a while compiling this word list today out of some of the best dictionaries that I could find. I thought I might contribute to HackForums some more and I have compiled my megadic dictionary / wordlist for everyone to download. You may see those dictionaries that have 28gb compressed to 80MB but that only happens when it's just generated strings such as 'aa' etc. If you don't want to use 500MB bandwidth then too bad :). I have optimised this list by doing the following:

Deleting all duplicates (All entries are unique) 6GB -> 4.5GB.

Optimised the lengths (Only 15 char passwords and under) 4.5GB -> 3.7GB .

Deleted all bullshit entries that were not proper characters 3.7GB -> 3.4GB

Statistics below:

Code ==List Analysis==

//Info

FileName: megadic.txt

No. Items: 302,672,198 (302.6 million)

==Generated by ULM==

This list consists of unique entries that are mostly non-generated and they are sorted with numbers at the top of the word list. I would suggest using this list if you were looking to brute force anything that had over 50k tries / sec as it has a pretty good success rate.

Link: https://mega.co.nz/#!4pwA2KrC!ciquB1hglnmGbz43Khmn32aTWNy43_eZyT5p_FMy5M

Remember that this file is 552 MB to download and that it extracts to over 3GB.

NOTE: I would credit all of the lists that were combined and optimised to create this but I honestly don't know where most of the good ones came from and a lot of them were just from plaintext dumps. This does contain the insidepro dictionaries, hashkiller, etc.

PMed the link. I also used Unified List manager which is the only thing that I found that will sort large lists and remove duplicates. It's quite amazing really and it uses a small amount of RAM.
