Only Need another $40 HMU ASAP

Hello,

Today I am here asking for a total investment of $100 for a webhosting company which I look to open in the near future. Currently I haven't decided on the name of it, however I have put together a brief business plan in my head, I look to provide quality services based within Europe. I also have plans on how I would expand with minimal investment.

The total set up time for this would not be very long, once the investment has been given. A maximum of 3 days would be needed to get the website and servers up and running, however the sales process would gradually build up. There are 2-3 markets I'm looking at with pretty nice margins, it would be pretty easy to target as most people don't necessarily know what they are doing.

I do have around 3 years experience in the field now, and I know what I'm talking about, I have the knowledge to create and succeed with this project, however I need your investment to do so.

The investment would cover all of the costs, and you would receive an percentage of PROFIT, profit meaning once our total costs have been paid monthly you receive x%.

If you are interested please shoot me a PM.

100 to start a hosting company? Try getting more and getting your own servers. If something breaks, you can fix it right away

The route I want to take with my own nodes would cost $300+ for hardware. Especially if you want that quality stuff, and I just want to start small and expand to be completely honest, nothing much wrong with that is there?
