are you converting these yourself. I just want to make sure you are actually doing it and your not using some free converter everyone can find free online. if you are actually manually doing it then I am very interested because I know those online things are unreliable.

Yes i do all the converting on my own using my brain.....

but i just found out there is a converter that is free... so if you think website is better go ahead and use it...

Do you maybe have any examples of converted c# to vb.net?

hamburg - May 1, 2010, 4:21 pm

anyone see a point i mean going from .net to .net seems logical

There is a website that converts vb.net to c# and c# to vb.net perfectly every time, no errors ever. Won't post the site here because I don't want to ruin your sales.
