Known issue, you're binding too many files or the file you selected is too large. I'll hopefully have this problem fixed in the next update.

demoakka - March 19, 2013, 11:19 pm

yes i have checked with small size around 3mb and its bind perfect, but with 17mb file its give me error. so its size issus bug, thanks for fast reply and gr8 free tool

Not to be a dick but what's the point of using this? Who in their right kind would waste their native (As most trojans are "native") App into a .NET Win32 app? Nice you're giving this away for free though.

Some binder will execute files in memory but this does not work with every program. This program does not execute in memory and does not alter the files in any way so that they are executed correctly.

.NET 2.0 is preinstalled on Windows XP SP3, Windows Vista, 7 & 8. People who are using these programs for example:

And so many other programs will find this very useful.

BTW all your images are getting blocked avast! is flagging the site.

I have a suggestion. A binder a few years back used to have it, but I haven't seen it since. Now it's just in crypters.

I'd like to see an option, where I can bind a picture, to my exe (server), and have the picture open immediately and have the server run afterward. On top of that, allow us to rename the result extension afterward, with the options of .pif, .scr etc and if you can, .jpg, .jpeg. Looks like you already have icon support.

The option does not work on my crypter, and the coder won't acknowledge it because I have complained too much in the past. Basically I have cried wolf too many times. So I have been trying to find an outlet for this problem and no binders seem to offer it.

You can rename the file yourself using the right to left override char (U+202E) to make it look like a PNG file. ?

I would have to research further. But this is a suggestion for him to add it in.

I want to add, I have tried the binder posted above, and to be honest, it works awesomely! It is literally the best binder I have ever tried. It just needs to work on producing FUD binded material. It's detected, by 5/6 av's.

thanks i need a good bindr to hide a .exe stub file in a .jpg . appreciated michael xxshererxx - June 8, 2013, 4:18 am

Ok, so I'm new to all of this, but could I get a real quick tutorial of how to use this software? LOL, I have a .jpg I got off of the internet and a .exe that I already built. Now I just need to bind it and send it out. By send it out I mean upload on facebook or twitter I think those are my best bet. Will it work? Screenshots would really be awesome so you don't have to go into as much detail.

btw, sorry for the hassle, but I do appreciate you taking the time to read this.

Yes because you need FUD crypter. Buy one and you won't have any problem with detection.

nellylew22 - June 27, 2013, 2:04 pm

I too am new to a lot of this, I take it that you would bind the file then run the FUD crypter on the bound file to stop it being detected?

gizmoguy - June 27, 2013, 3:32 pm trying it out now man thanks for the share :)

The files that you're trying to bind are too large or you don't have enough space on your computer. It's a known limitation and I'm working on it ;)
