????????Spring Showdown!????????
The Spring Anime Challenge

Hello AA! As most of you know, the Winter series' are coming to an end this week. As these shows are ending, a whole new batch of them are beginning. So, this spring, I decided I would try something bold, challenging, and probably a lot of fun. The idea struck me yesterday when talking with my friend, "What if I watched every anime that airs this spring?". Talking through it with my friend, we decided that it would be manageable, and probably a pretty interesting challenge. So, I would like to present this challenge to the rest of HF as well, so that this may become a bit of a bigger challenge.

We checked the most recent Spring Anime chart which can be found here. After that, we sorted through them, and discarded a small number of them. For the most part, the things we decided to discard were either already finishing up, or they were shows like MLP. But let's be honest, who wouldn't want to watch Train Heroes or Robocar Poli?

As of the posting of this thread, we will be watching 34 series total, however, more may be added within the next 2 weeks.

As a note: You don't have to watch all of the series. You can drop one's that look terrible, but points will be deducted

So, I would like to see if I can get an estimate of how many people of AA would be interested in participating this challenge. I will have a roster set up, and I will make an update thread every week (assuming enough people participate) where we can discuss the episodes that aired that week. If you would like to participate, just say so in this thread. Another great thing is that you can join in the challenge at any time, as long as it's within the season of Spring.

When I have too many to watch I have a hard time following their story.

Also, like Tase said, no way I could sit through some of those series. x)

DoubleRainbow - March 24, 2013, 1:25 pm

This sounds like a horrible idea to me. In an attempt I'm sure anyone would burn out very quickly with that many series to watch. Plus the time needed to watch everything every week would leave a small window to get any necessary work/school work to be finished.

I'd advise anyone with school and/or work to do this unless you either want to fall behind or completely hate yourself and anime for a while.

I'm all for watching multiple series at a time, but 33!?! To me that's way too many. Good luck anyone who tries I suppose.

Happeh - March 24, 2013, 1:31 pm

There's not really a way to "prove" it, especially because it's just for fun. However, each week I'll be posting a thread for discussion, where you can talk about all of the episodes that came out that week. Posting in that is probably the closest thing you can do to proving that you watched it :)

Hey guys, just wanted to know if this anime is part of the spring season.

It's not in your list but it started in the same week as Red Data Girl which is part of this season.

It's not in your list but it started in the same week as Red Data Girl which is part of this season. It's only 2 minutes per episode, so it wouldn't hurt I guess. What do you think? If you think it's worthwhile, it can be a part of it ^.^

And some of you might like it. >< Girl has bro-con.

Yahari Ore No Seishun Love Come Wa Machigatteiru < Might have got that wrong

Devil Survivor 2
Ginga Kikoutai Majestic Prince
Dansai Bunri No Crime Edge
Uta No Prince-sama Maji Love 2000

So far, Devil Survivor, Hataraku Maou-Sama, Yahari Ore no Seishun Love Come wa Machigatteiru (Oregairu).

I think the best ones will be next week. (Orelmo2, To Aru Kagaku No Railgun S) ?

For me it's not really the animation that completely puts me off. For me, it's that there is not really any factor that drives the viewer to watch the show, it's just the story of someone's incredibly boring life. The way art and music was implemented completely supported their clear intent to express the boredom of the main character, and I'm not sure exactly why they are going for that. It seems like the next episode will be a lot better, and the first episode was just to contrast with a huge event that would occur in this boring life - just my prediction.

(Apr 5, 2013 07:23 PM)Crush Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Sorry that I may seem to be an outsider, but may I please participate on this event? I like this idea of AA members watching Anime, waiting for them, and probably discussing about them.

something? What does the winner get, and how do you know that somebody won't just say they watched something when they didn't? But this sounds fun :)

Points would be as follows:

Completing the challenge - 23 points needed

Bonus Points - 8 points possible. These are from the purple series in the OP, which are sequels.

Double Points - 8 points possible. These are from the orange series in the OP, which are longer, and/or have lots a required prequels.

From the blue series, you can get 23 points, however, if you drop a blue one, you can watch a purple series or orange series, and the points from those will still add to your total. As long as you get 23 points total, it doesn't matter which series you've seen.

Also, if you are watching any airing series that isn't on the list, it, unfortunately, won't count as bonus points for this. I've gone through the list and made sure we're watching most of the necessary ones.

As for "winning", the only real prize there could be is to have a "hall of fame" of sorts on the last thread, so that people could see who the best otaku is. In short, bragging rights. The reason for this is that there really isn't any surefire way to "prove" that anyone watched everything. Plus, everything is meant for entertainment anyways ^.^ To answer your question about proving it, I will be posting a thread every week to discuss the current airing shows. If you want to prove that you've seen them, post your opinion on as many shows as possible within that thread.

I'm really just trusting the fact that AA will be truthful on the series that they watched, and that will keep the scoreboard accurate ?
