Thread: Epic Java - #1 JDB | Autobuy | Tjdb7_45 | Sjdb7_17 | Templates | Hosting | MultiOS

NoodleBot™ - May 10, 2013, 12:25 pm

We will be adding the latest version of Java to the Java Drive by Generator when it is available. For now, the JDB's work for Java Version 7 Update 45 and unde whilst silent works for Java Version 7 Update 17 and under. Please be patient.

Hello,

FUD stands for Fully Undetectable, if the Java Drive-By is FUD it means that when the user goes to the site/executes the file their Anti-Virus won't pick it up as a RAT/Keylogger and will successfully execute.

and yes, the JDB is FUD.

Your server is recommended to be FuD as well. I offer crypting for those who do not have it their first few times around.

Yes, it will still work, but there is always a chance the victims AV will just remove your server after the JDB successfully launches.

Java drive by and your RAT/Keylogger are two separate pieces of malware.

You have to worry about both being correct.

Is a great generator works fast and new updates are fantastic!!! thank you so much noodlebot and omgrazza!! amazing and fast to use.

NoodleBot™ - June 3, 2013, 11:43 am

Hello guys, we're back after a short ban for spam ing.

We've added some new features as you can see on the thread and we are still FuD.

You're now able to use the custom injection on Epic Java, this will save most of you from needing to have a crypter that has injection.

We're open for sales, glad to be back and up and running.

Contact us, post here or PM or simply use the autobuy links to purchase this amazing tool immediately.

Regards,

NoodleBot (Epic Java Reloaded Admin)

NoodleBot™ - June 4, 2013, 10:30 pm

We apologize for the downtime and slow reacting netseal.

This is not our fault and will be dealt with ASAP, you can read more about this issue here:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=2206993&pid=33087457#pid33087457>

Code The Net Seal servers are currently under attack, unfortunately for said attackers I've prepared for situations like this and the attacks have been mitigated.

That being said, some things won't be available at the moment, this includes..

- Remote API's
- Exception logs before the attack started
- E-commerce shops

Also, the startup time for programs and the panel will probably be slow. Everything should be running properly again within 24 hours. Thank you all for being patient.

Thank you, and if you wish to purchase, please PM me as the Autobuy links might be down or too slow to access.

Razza™ - June 5, 2013, 12:59 pm

-- New Features --

HTML Encryption:

Upon building your Java Drive-By you now have the option to encrypt the HTML code on run-time with Java Script.

Remotely Hosted JAR:

We now host the JAR file on a trusted looking domain and is no longer required to be on your host. When the applet appears it will come up with the trusted domain in the "From: TrustedDomain.com/Applet.jar" label.

New Template:

I've added a cam site template, this is available in the "Templates" tab.

Hey guys, our host is having a few problems. You can still use all the features (Generating, Downloader, etc), however, you cannot upload the files to our host.

We've contacted the host and they're sorting it out, every user will get 2 extra days on their license, hosting will be back up today.

NoodleBot™ - June 24, 2013, 2:47 pm

Please be patient folks, we're doing as much as we can but we can't move any faster til the hosting replies to us.

We'll be back up soon!

Please pm us or use the autobuy links to purchase

Razza™ - June 25, 2013, 3:52 pm

A little update guys,

I've added a feature where you can upload the files to your OWN host straight from Epic Java using a random number as the directory name. This is an alternative to using our host because it's not up at the moment.

Our host will be up soon, Please be patient, extra time will be added to your account when hosting is back up.

Things you can do when our host is down:

Generate Java Drive-By's.
Generate Downloaders.
Use Templates.
Upload files to your OWN host.

Basically, the only thing you can't do is upload files to our host.

NoodleBot™ - June 26, 2013, 12:40 pm

Hey guys, we'll be adding a new tab on the program to display some good places to host your files while we try and fix our hosting connection.

Thanks for purchasing everyone, we'll be back up and online soon.

To contact us for this amazing tool, just post here or PM us or use the autobuy links if you don't want to wait.

I've now removed the autobuy links form paypal from the thread.

I feel this will help combat fraud and recent chargebacks. All chargebacks are instantly banned, recorded and IP addresses reported to payment processors.

If you want to purchase this amazing tool, simply post here asking for the autobuy link or PM me, if you are eligible I will give you the autobuy link.

I will be home from work shortly.

I've removed the autobuy links. PM me or post here to get it.

Now, finally I could test this one too. My computer was broken, so I had no time, but today I could.

It's really great. I don't have any negative points about this one, except that it's not silent. That's also the reason, why I won't rebuy this one. Next month I'll buy a silent one. But for everyone, who does not need a silent JDB, I recommend Epic Java.

Oh, and thanks for the nice support. That's a big plus point, too ;)

Thanks for your review.

While I see the silent exploits being offered around HackForums as just a scheme to make money, there is more work involved answering questions and dealing with complaints of not knowing how to use it, then I believe worth it.

Thanks again for being a customer, hope maybe you change your mind once you've tried a silent your self and have seen what I mean first hand.

On topic; our hosting should be online sometime today folks.

douloveme - August 2, 2013, 4:17 pm

Alright, I would just like to say a few HONEST things about this tool.

1. The owner of the tool told me the crypter I used was the reason the java driveby wasn't executing.

2. Me, not being too smart with programming and what not did not know this made no sense, so I contacted iRtehLeet, the owner of iRtehCrypter.

3. He came on my TV, and realized that the drive by builders default drop name of 'WinUpdate.exe' was causing the problem, because anytime you rename a file name to anything with 'update' in it, it requires UAC permissions... renamed it and the file ran fine through the java driveby..

Let me just say that the owner of this tool told me multiple times that it was the fault of my crypter, when infact it was the fault of the java driveby builder (like come on, your default filename has update in it, really?). I even had to bug iRtehLeet to prove him wrong with his own software (which he did)

Pretty sad and very unprofessional. Probably going to get alot of derep for being honest here, but whatever.

P.S. Omgrazza told me to get the days back that are used upon now.

1. The owner of the tool told me the crypter I used was the reason the java driveby wasn't executing.

2. Me, not being too smart with programming and what not did not know this made no sense, so I contacted iRtehLeet, the owner of iRtehCrypter.

3. He came on my TV, and realized that the drive by builders default drop name of 'WinUpdate.exe' was causing the problem, because anytime you rename a file name to anything with 'update' in it, it requires UAC permissions... renamed it and the file ran fine through the java driveby..

Let me just say that the owner of this tool told me multiple times that it was the fault of my crypter, when infact it was the fault of the java driveby builder (like come on, your default filename has update in it, really?). I even had to bug iRtehLeet to prove him wrong with his own software (which he did)

The crypter you are using is obviously naming your file in a detected manner.the word update does not mean UAC at all that has nothing to do with a name.

I'll respond to this outrageous claim when I am home.

Everyone should have their malware fully working and confrmed working before inserting into epic java.

As fr the problem with win update, change the name if thisis possibly true and there, problem solved. The injection is a custom option, customize it.

Some websites do not allow files to be uploaded or downloaded with suspicious file names. That's your choice (you create the file, you create the name.)

What the hell are you on about? The crypted file executes perfectly before running it through your JDB. When running through your builder, if you use the default name 'WinUpdate.exe' nothing will run at all.

Maybe you should go into Windows Explorer and rename a file to anything with 'update' in it, and notice it now requires UAC. After changing the filename in your builder to something that doesn't contain 'Update', it executes fine.

There is no errors on our end, our Java Drive-By will flawlessly download & execute your file. WinUpdate obviously doesn't need admin privileges because it's worked for most of our customers, if WinUpdate doesn't work with your crypter then it's not our fault.

Also, I didn't say get your days back yourself, I said I would add days to your license.

Spooky is now making a video to demonstrate that it works with WinUpdate.

thank you & goodbye.

The reason I said it was your crypter is because it works for nearly every other crypter, but all he needs to do is not use WinUpdate. You called me a retard because you thought WinUpdate needed admin privileges, spooky will prove it doesn't.

I understand and that's fine. I just asked that you don't blame others when you don't know whats going on. My customer has one more of your customers on his Skype with the same exact issue, using a different crypter. We also informed him not to use the name 'WinUpdate.exe', and now in his case it runs too. So it's more of a general issue, has nothing to do with my crypter. ?

Omgrazza Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You thought WinUpdate needed admin privileges, spooky will prove it doesn't.

All cases are different. Go ahead and prove anything you want. My point still stands that I know of 2

PC's already that it won't run on with the name WinUpdate.exe. If you prove something, it doesn't mean much when it won't solve the problem for 2 of your customers that I had to inform of a fix.

Okay, now I understand it's not your crypter and users just need to change the injection name, problem solved.

Me not knowing his exact settings or being there watching him I could only suggest his crypter or computer was causing an issue. That is in no way shape or form any type of negative feedback. Some crypters are not compatible with some files. I did not mean that may be the case, but was certainly a possibility. Again I do not possess your crypter and I am unable to test. I wish for everyone to stop being hostile and picking each other's comments apart. That's the thing about fighting on a forum you will just read the reply and keyboard warrior gets unleashed from there. Just leave it. Change the file name and be done with it. This is completely unnecessary.

If there's any file dropped that contains the word "update" it will still prompt UAC. It doesn't have to do with injecting bytes, it has to do with writing files to disk.

Guys, we've had a lot of new people wanting to be support for us. NoodleBot and I personally would prefer that if you're going to try and get help using Epic Java Reloaded; you simply contact us, and if you can't reach us, another customer of our product would be a great "support buddy" and can help you learn together.

I am saying this because of the amount of support requests we are getting, this is currently a volunteer position, and is completely up to them.

That being said, the current members who help as well as new ones who may come and go are not staff of Epic Software™. We take no responsibility for their actions, and we cannot be held responsible in any way, shape or form for damage caused by a support member or somebody who has told you that they are a support member.

Remember - we have no official Support team as of right now, this is volunteer work. NoodleBot handles Support & Sales himself, and is the first person you should contact to purchase, or to get help with this program. Another customer of our products is recommended second if you cannot reach me.

Just wanted to stop by and give a huge VOUCH for the EPIC product and the support the guys behind it give.

Omgrazza spent as much time as I needed answering all my dumbass questions until I had it all down cold. He even made me a downloader for my .jar RaT.

I love these guys!

Unfortunately there are no single day trials available. This software has been on the market for quite some time and has nothing but absolutely positive reviews. We hope you can reach a decision on your own, or by talking with staff.

It works. All you have to do is make sure you build your server properly (I'd suggest minimal settings in your configs) , and crypt it was something that isn't a piece of shit ?

I'm using it right now. ?

chick3nman - September 1, 2013, 5:42 pm

Anyone have a direct file host that doesnt distribute the files? The suggested one in the application is down right now.

NoodleBot™ - September 1, 2013, 6:49 pm

Ge.tt works greeat, some people use directxex.com as well as sharespace.com or sendspace.com

chick3nman - September 1, 2013, 7:18 pm

Alright thanks, I'm pretty sure ge.tt scans and distributes files btw. I would stop using that.

There is no proof of such distributing, just like how people used to claim dropbox does it as well. However even websites that say they do not distribute will most likely distribute eventually. However, that's why files are supposed to be crypted, and replaced every once in a while.

I assume every site distributes when i upload unless they state otherwise i just heard ge.tt specifcally in a few posts. ge.tt has been denying more files(than before) after it scans them and they come back infected. I think people assume its ge.tt making the files unFUD and not something else.

Ge.tt is a smart website that does not allow people to upload shit like server.exe virus.exe and other obvious names. This is common sense and I support their decisions.

Yeah it does make sense. They have to cover themselves as much as they can so they dont get in trouble.

At Epic-Software we do not offer a silent JDB.

We feel that this is very misrepresented as a product and is only sold to people with the intention of making money and delivering them a broken, detected, or useless product.

I feel you should be aware that with all Silent java related exploits, there is only a small 5-7% infection rate (Some users claim up to 11% MAYBE if you have C++ malware + Crypter) , it only works on specific versions of java that the exploit affects, and as well as not being FuD.

If you however change your mind about needing this 'silent', please do let us know and we're happy to help customers.

This JDB is really excellent. ?

Since I bought this software to date are truly a happy customer, great support!

The Coder and support are always ready to give it their assistance, even if that software does not need to care because a good software does not need to support interventions ..

My vote on Epic Java remains Always 10/10

This remains FUD really for a long time, also its operation is always Baring

Guarantee to this purchase, I am a happy customer with a license for 6 months ..

Enjoy .. ?

No, that is just a Java Drive-By generator without hosting & templates, you don't know how reliable it is as it's a new product, he may not be able to reFUD it, etc. We have many features, such as 3 custom made templates, 9 premium domains, free offshore hosting and more.

Their silent Java Drive-By might be cheap but the execution rate would be like 5%.

Hmm. The only problem with you providing hosting is that if your domain/IP becomes blocked by AV vendors then the product falls flat on its face

This is not an issue and we have been up for about a year now regardless. There is the option to use your own hosting and domains.

Our hosting is flawless and our domains are not something to worry about.

What versions of Java does your SJDB work with? does it also pass google chome?

We do not offer a Silent Java Drive-By. We feel that SJDB's are a waste of time. no SJDB will work on chrome, and they only have an infection rate of about 7-10%, you have a much greater chance of infecting someone using the traditional Java Drive-By and the price people charge for SJDB's is ridiculous.

We do not offer a silent JDB as of right now. We feel it is overly sold without due explanation of what it really is and does.

Yes, you can use our applet on your forums.

Epic for me has always been the best Java Drive By I have ever purchased.

The old version was excellent, now with the new online version is almost perfect!!

Now it can also place files in Java, this option is very important ...

My vote continues to be 10/10

I can confirm personally that Google Chrome reacts quite slow with a JDB with a huge server, but it does keep it going unless the victim closes the page by that time.

Yeah I figured that out after some testing. It will work eventually but the slower the person running the applet's internet is, the longer it takes. For me testing on myself, it's nearly instantaneous no matter what the files size is, but that's due to my internet speeds. Slow down your connection speed and it has a noticeable effect on the speed of the execution(if the file is a few mb).

This has nothing to do with Epic Java, or any other JDB on HF. Since this is depending on the users internet speed. Which variates from person to person.

It is more related to the stub you made, and depending on your crypter settings. What you could do is contact our live support to assist you, and trying to make your stub as low as possible.

However, we are working on update 7_21.

Keep in mind that this counts for the Silent Java Drive-By, Our Traditional Java Drive-By works on all versions!

Is it possible to create the silent drive by and then embed it with the traditional version that way if there usin the new version there's still the odd chance they will be infected and if there using an older version the silent one still does the job. Sorry in advance for the confusing wording, had to read it twice myself lol.

NoodleBot™ - October 19, 2013, 5:26 pm

We are working on that and will hopefully if all goes well be out soon.

ComatoseD - October 28, 2013, 12:01 pm

Here's a question, if you guys provide domains/hosting why don't you provide a service that lets you upload files for direct download? Wouldn't this be better for customers so files don't get deleted or distributed (if they use the wrong website)

NoodleBot™ - October 28, 2013, 12:07 pm

We have had this service before as a bonus included in Epic Java but people tend to attack competition file hosting websites.

It would not be too fair on behalf of our customers if we offered you a service to upload files but it was constantly getting DDoS'ed.

Is the sJDB still FUD? What's the rate of execution per thousand? If sJDB does not work on a computer, does the normal JDB show up?

We currently have not tested this with bots in the thousands because it is not an exploit kit - It's a Silent Java Drive By (there is a difference), therefore it would be difficult to gather an estimation like such. However you will gain access to your own personal sJDB graph on the Epic Java Online Panel and be able to make your own accurate estimates.

You can see our Traditional Java Applet scan below, as well as the Silent Applet below that.

On the silent JDB, users who visit your website with Java Version 7_17 or Lower (such as 7_16) will be infected automatically/instantly.

Hope I've answered your questions, thanks for your comment.

I have purchased the lifetime plan, but I don't see the option for a sJDB. When I click "My Add-Ons" it says: "Note: You have not yet purchased any Add-Ons!", but it gives me the option to purchase sJDB for 10$. I thought it was free for lifetime users..

Do i need to Host the sjdb jar by myself?
Couse i can only choose local on Settings.

Does sjdb work on every Java Version?

When i try to Open it the Applet is showing up..

Is it like a mix of both? Like - When silent Works Java dont ASK if Not the Applet opens and u will be asked?"

Right now the red writing is an official warning on all Applets from Oracle.

In the future we will have this removed after the next few Java updates, and we will remove the "UNKNOWN" publisher.

Foxy and GalaxyJDB is $20/6months. What makes this special to be more expensive?

Razza™ - November 18, 2013, 12:24 pm

(Nov 18, 2013 12:53 PM).Anon Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Foxy and GalaxyJDB is $20/6months. What makes this special to be more expensive?

5 Custom Templates, 7 Premium Domains, offshore hosting, amazing support and very long FUD times and even when it's detected, we ReFUD it within an hour.

How is $50 Lifetime (Which includes silent) expensive? cheaper than Galaxy's and Foxy's 6 month silent package.

Great product. Love it. Here's a suggestion though that can maybe be added on. Have the execution status grouped in such a way that identifies which ip got infected by a certain jdb link.

Example being like:

A) randomdomain.com (here could be a space where the user could add a description, such as where the links were posted)

1)653.22.785.45

2)812.78.14.965

Etc.

That would make it alot easier to identify which spreading is most successful.

I have to be heading to the hospital in a couple minutes.

My father is in the hospital for what was from simple leg pains and is now being moved around from hospital to hospital, and most recently our cities hospital that is usually for heart related incidents as well as emergencies.

I'll be leaving for the hospital in just a few moments and will be trying to do my best via iPhone. I think the hospitals here block wifi, haven't been in a while. But this is some time I need to spend with my father incase it takes a turn for the worst.

That depends on if you choose a traditional Java drive by or a silent Java drive by.

Traditional will always show the applet, whilst a silent will not show the applet.

The Silent JDB is for Java Version 7_17 and lower, any users visiting the website with that or under will have their system instantly execute your payload.

Silent is an exploit so it cannot just be made. We will release higher versions when possible. You can't expect latest version silents however.

We've just updated the thread and we now accept litecoins as a method of payment.

"You may only use the templates we provide on Epic Java for the Educational Java Drive-By's you build." So I can't use my own templates or pages?

Do I need to use the hosting and domains you provide or can I download and upload the files I create and put them on my own domain and host?

Edit: What version of Java does the silent work on? When will you get a new CVE?

NoodleBot™ - November 28, 2013, 6:36 pm

You can use any template you wish.

This just means you or any other JDB company cannot be using our templates, as they are ours.

You can host on your domain/hosting if you Download the files.

If uploading the files through Epic Java, it will go on our hosting with our domain.

Silent is applicable to 7_17, more information can be found here:

You can use our templates anywhere you like but it must contain our JDB.

The silent works on 7_17 and lower. We may be getting a new CVE soon to work on 7_21 and lower.

Okay, I think you mean yes when you say you can use them anywhere, but just to make sure:

Do I need to use the hosting and domains you provide or can I download and upload the files I create and put them on my own domain and host?

I need to confirm this before I purchase.

I am considering getting this. I have had a couple SJDB and the support was awful and they couldnt answer one simple question. But after reading the thread it seems you guys give great support. I just need to get back into things and get a crypter and a couple other things going. I do plan on getting lifetime within the next day though.

Just a question, Is it fine using a dynamic VPN or is that restricted? Wouldn't want to get account locked:P

Good to see you guys joining with us. We have been online for more then a year now, and we are not planning to quit at all.

As in fact our product keeps getting updated daily, montly and on a year based.

They variate from small updates to big updates such as the online version of our JDB with an awesome and new control panel.

We're very experienced when it comes to user/customer satisfaction, as this is our number one priority. We take critism and feedback as much as possible and always strive forward to improve! So with this being said, if you have tips, ideas, or anything that we could improve or add to our new Epic Java Online edition 2.0 then please tell us. We will try our best to add it to our product. As we try our best to be the most innovative product on HF.

Once again, thanks for the vouches and if there is someone else that needs help with a RAT setup or regarding to our product, then please do not hesitate and contact us!

You can get in contact with us by sending a PM to one of our operators, or check out our awesome 100% live support at: <https://epic-software.net/chat/client.php>

Kind regards

We will be adding this feature in the next coming updates and will be seen very shortly.

If anyone wishes to purchase meanwhile, the buy now page is offline but you can purchase regardless by sending me a message.

Just cooking right now, skype is not cooperating with me so I am going to do some irl stuff til it works, but I can answer pms and take any sales whenever ready.

Sorry about this guys.

Epic Java is still online, however the support link and buy now pages are temporarily offline.

I just bought Epic Java, and just logged into the web panel and am extremely please with my purchase. The web panel is extremely clean, and the support is great! Huge vouch.

NoodleBot™ - December 19, 2013, 4:40 pm

Thanks for the vouch mate! Appreciate it.

I will handle as much as I can via HF til my skype is working again. Sorry guys!

Sorry for the inconvenience I have not been able to get my skype running.

The support link has been fixed and is located at <http://epic-software.net/chat/client.php>

Please come in if you have any questions.

I just purchased this so far looks good. Just in add ons it says none i thought the silent java was an addon?

Pieced - December 23, 2013, 7:41 pm

Bought a couple weeks ago and the silent wouldn't work for me but the traditional works perfectly. It's actually the only JDB that worked properly for me. Can get slaves like a boss with this. Amazing product!

Vexane - December 23, 2013, 8:08 pm

I'm confused, what does it mean by $15 for a silent addon for life. Does that mean $15 will get you the silent drive buy for life? If so, that sounds amazing! I'll buy ASAP if that is in fact true.

Hi, the best way to contact us is on our live chat, however, v2.0 will be out in 2 days which will include a fallback method for the silent. Meaning if the victim doesn't have 7_17 or lower it will show traditional.

We don't want to rush things and introduce bad coding, it will definitely be out in 2-3 days from now and if it isn't I'll personally add lifetime to everyone's account and add PRO status (on v2) which allows you to change the directory when uploading.

You aren't even supporting our members anymore because your exchange service is getting in the way. I coded the application when it was a client and I coded the web panel for version 1 and now I'm coding version 2.

Also, you can't refund the JAR anymore and you were supposed to be the JAR coder, yet I'm the one refunding it, we don't need you.

This character is very manipulative and is just waiting for me to hit enter and post before I can post, using my words against me.

I advise all to steer clear from Beslim and do not waste your time.

You are not part of the group anymore.

The thread will be changed when we have a second, from you stopping posting here on our thread.

both the traditional JDB & Silent jdb is made by Me. you cannot longer use it.

More like the metasploit exploit code with the download/execute code on the init method and then obfuscated using some paid obfuscators. You didnt even changed the class names:

Nice sales trashing attempt idiot. Silent isn't our number 1 priority, the traditional is. This is because silent comes free with every package and they don't need to pay $70. The domains are not detected as fuck and at least we offer hosting/domains to our customers.

Also, Beslim did not do more than me.

Its a java project, all the java coding and teaching was done by him, so i think he did more than you 2.

Your silent goes for free because you cannot refud it.

The domains/ip are detected you can trust me, specially the one where the .jar is, and that is the reason i dont offer domains and hosting.

Spoiler (Click to View)

If any users have suggestions what you want adding to V2, please do post here.
That sir, is god damn sexy.

As far as suggestions, I do have one. Perhaps it would be possible to group the execution stats in such a way that correlates the domain said victim executed the drive by from with everything else. This would be very useful in tracking which drive by links are working the most.

HawxHF - January 6, 2014, 7:45 am

There will be a fallback method in V2 right? Which opens a silent when the java version is lower then 17 but if its higher it just lets him click run and downloads the virus.

III_Nye - January 6, 2014, 7:46 am

Also, to go along with that, it would be cool to have like, a mini profile for each drive by created. Basically a spot for infomation you can add about the specific drive by, such as details on where it's posted. A title and description would be all.

So that way, when you get an execution, it would look something like this:

Admin
127. 0.0.1
Windows 7
(date)
Domain.com/fguhf - (domain profile title here)

Then you could click the domain title to see a full description if you so choose.

Just a thought. But if you could make this happen, it would be extremely useful.

We should have kept the v2 a surprise. XD

The reason it's taking longer then we anticipated (besides the recent attacks) is we want it to be as precise as possible. Amazing service.

Core effectiveness 10/10

Pricing 9.5/10 (Unless you buy Lifetime 10/10)

Do you get what you hope for? : Yes plus more

Easy to use? A few options are a bit confusing at first. But overall Easy.

Support : 10/10 support is amazing and is VERY helpful

Recommend? INDEED

Well at EpicSoftware we guarantee you an epic experience. You'll be able to track your progress as well as build custom JDB's within seconds that suit your needs. We've been on this forum for roughly 2 years now selling an amazing reputable product which has governed many favorited customers and clients from all across the forum. We are well known for our outstanding customer service and I'm sure everyone can vouch for that. As well as this we also provide the highest content available on our product, and strive to keep adding more whenever possible.

In my experience.. Not many people update their java and plus, I've yet to see personally anyone offering Silent Java drive by's for anything over 7.17. I'm not yet sure if anyone offers this (without paying 70+ dollars a month). Considering this service is 40$ for a lifetime.. I kinda think it's freaking amazing xD Plus the support is un-beatable.. So that itself is worth the 40$. Personally I think this service is under-rated. It's something can - if used right, be almost priceless o.o

It in fact I think so, this is one of the best products and services that I've ever purchased.

I purchased this several months ago, I paid over $ 40 for 6 months.

Today I am a customer for life, I can only say that the support was always present and ready to solve all the problems, also the coder is truly a beautiful person, helpful and polite ..

The product they are selling and always very stable and functioning, it remains FUD for a long time, when it is detected FUD is made only after a few hours ..

So the time UD and almost zero!

I'll never stop repeating:

This JDB is fucking awesome. I have used it for a month now, and am wishing I had bought a lifetime license. Why, you ask? I refer to my first statement in reply.

No but seriously, the support is amazing.

E.g.: One time my friend told me the .jar was 4/59. So I pm the Omgrazza and let him know, he replies within a minute or two saying it is 1/59, but has not updated yet and is currently working on the last detection.

This is truly the best product I have purchased on this forum; or any forum at that.

Do not hesitate to buy!

In FireFox and Chrome it will ask you to 'Allow' Java, there is no way to remove this, however, they won't see the applet itself.

IE is fully silent.

Unfortunately exploits such as silent cannot just be created. They have to be discovered and if there is no discovery there is no exploit.

We of course plan to be adding future exploit versions for customers to use in the future.

Don't worry, we're already on this and were waiting for this update, it was only a matter of time.

At the moment if you are experiencing troubles, be aware that most visitors to your JDB have not auto updated their java and the JDB will still run on them. Currently, the new versino is 7.51 and we are working to add our custom signature to the java applet.

We will post again with all news and updates, this should be resolved by tomorrow night (and then you can all build latest version traditional JDB's again)

Thanks, and thank you all for being patient with us. We've had a bit of trouble this week (realizing the countdown timer we had on the thread only opened up us to DDoS attack from our competitors.) Please bear with us and you'll be seeing the good old Epic Java you saw before.

We're here to stay.

We are adding the certificate for the latest Java version when we get it.

Vouch from me here. Bought a different JDB, couldn't get it to work, even with helpful support. Epic Java worked for me first time! I tried their online support anyway before I posted a vouch, and the live chat on their site worked very well with quick responses. I love that you can download the files, or be given a link to a hosted site.

My initial subscription has run out, so I'm looking to resubscribe right now.

Guys.

The traditional JDB and silent JDB are working for:

Traditional JDB = Java Version 7 Update 45 and lower

Silent JDB = Java Version 7 Update 17 and lower

We are working to add the newest version of Java to the Traditional, which is Java Version 7 Update 51. You have to understand that this is a NEW release from Oracle and we can't just add it right away - it was updated by them for a reason and we have to change the way some things work. We are combating this and we will be back on track with the updated Java version shortly.

Keep in mind we are the only JDB that offers as much as we do while providing constant updates and fixes, just bear with us and you will be compensated for your time loss.

If your error is relating to Java Version 7.51, please do not post on the thread and instead please stay tuned and wait patiently.

If anybody need's support regarding EpicJava please feel free to PM me.

Hmm i think Oracle is make strong security for tradicional java for all time.

I recomend epic java team make download somting like adobe flash update (server.exe) and make templates for stream fake sites or clone too,that will be work.

I know java is batter of that but Oracle is bitch!

What u think guys?

Nikolasi - January 24, 2014, 11:21 am

Well if they got new Certificate that will be again blocked. If thay can find any new bug in last version for tradicional java, then that will work.

Basically a good idea if someone wants from HF make something like that and sell.

I think you will always find a solution to scrub Oracle.

Perhaps seeing the various protections it will take more time, we'll aveda how things will take place.

I just would like to point out that until we find a more appropriate way to add the certificate it will most likely be blocked again. In all honestly it was probably not a good move on our part to release the certificate first - as our competition here on the forums surely would be able to take advantage over that.

That being said, we know how to do it now, and are working on a way to get it added in a much safer way, less easy to report and higher chance of staying online.

Silent JDB works for Java Version 7 Update 17 and LOWER

We know you all are waiting patiently - but so are we. We should not rush such an update for disasterous reasons.

Also to a comment a few posts/pages above, the "Adobe_Flash_Player" themed JDB would be heavily reported and pretty much about any system connected to the internet will be able to ID the real Adobe from your server Adobe, weather it's MSE or their firewall or their AV. Suspicious file names matter a LOT.

i had to dispute. it bothers me how the sales page is still up, even tho you cant even log in to the product.

i wouldn't be in this situation had the sales page been removed when seller started to have issues. i purchase this three days ago, too use three days ago, not a week or two weeks from now but three days ago.

this could have been easily avoided, had the sales page been removed till its back up.

your asking me if it was worth disputing 50$ for a product that i have not been able to use?

do you expect me to be a mind reader and know that your in the hospital with your father?
god bless your father. i hope he gets well.

There is a good chance it will if the user has customized their Java security level for games and other Java based apps and web experiences.

You bought a product without checking the most recent posts to see if there were an issues... it also never claims it works with the new java, so dont expect a refund

Sorry, when I went to the hospital the other couple days, I had not been on skype and had gotten over 60 requests. I'm still working my way down the list, trying to add from the bottom up and communicating with customers,

I'll get to you as soon as possible! Trying to do it as fairly as possible.

We will most likely add this again shortly but we are going to have to do some preparing for an idea I have.

SIM-1079811 - January 28, 2014, 5:02 pm

Your site does have alot of downtime recently, or atleast when im tried connecting to it

NoodleBot™ - January 28, 2014, 5:04 pm

Server was lightning fast all week, that could possibly be your VPN/internet connection loading our theme (if you see the loading bar often).

We're back online now. Don't be surprised if offline shortly. Compensation will be placed on customers accounts.

Everything is working fine, we are fixing a small issue with downloading the files (if you wish to use your own hosting)

If using our hosting, everything is rolling nicely.

Traditional JDB works for Java Version 7 Update 45 and lower and silent for Java Version 7 Update 17 and lower

Traditional can also be run on 7.51 under certain circumstances.

New silent updates will be released whenever the new exploits are found or released, as always!

Our main focus is the traditional JDB, as it is recommended to spread with a traditional rather than a silent anyways. However we support as much as we can for the silent, and will always add more.

Hello again Noodle.

I see there are no more news about the latest Java update. It won't happen right?

I'm supporting EpicJava 101% but we need some information on that. The new guys that purchased the JDB probably do not care but the old fellas needs the good stuff.

Also i have my own web host i have been waiting for about 2 weeks for the cert update and i wasn't using the jdb that would run below the newest Oracle update but now for about one week I'm waiting to see at least the old one fixed because i want to host it on my web hosting and i do not see any announcements on the thread. Please let us know what is going on.

Thank you!

Regards,
17R0LL ;)

I heard that the latest update java 7 update 51, blocks any load attempts from self-signed java applets, does this mean your planning to purchase a Code Signing certificate and apply it to the JDB's that are generated on your site? Or do you have a different idea your trying out?

ibrahimwwe9 - February 1, 2014, 2:36 am

yes this is good, but more important the java update 51 fix

NoodleBot™ - February 3, 2014, 10:53 pm

The download Java files option has been fixed.

Work on Epic Java V2 has been started again after some delay due to the Java Update. However we will put the traditional on hold for now to roll out V2 as promised. We deeply apologize for any inconveniences and time you may have lost, this will be automatically granted to all users very soon.

This thread will close in about 1-5 posts, so please, if you have a issue please PM me instead. After this thread is closed, look for the new one in Premium Sellers Section. I hope it does not get full tonight.

Can't wait for the release! Well done! Also, wondering what the details are of the new v2. Can you tell more about it?

Awesome product!

NoodleBot™ - February 8, 2014, 8:29 pm

Some features of V2 are as follows

- Page Views Tracking
- Add your own private domains automatically
- Update dashboard stats on refresh instead of re-logging.
- Troubleshooter (Will identify problems with your JDB)
- Fallback method for the silent (will go to traditional if java version is 17 or lower)
- more stability in the software and webdesign

And a brand new unique theme on the control panel, aimed at making things oh-so much easier for beginners when generating.

This is just a little bit of whats coming up.

Traditional will not be released for V2 as far as I know, however if we come across something I'll update this post.

Thanks for bearing with us!
