I'm not talking about the religious side of the arguement.

Just the two in general.

Marijuana may be illegal in most states but has never actually killed someone.

Marijuana is a stimulant and Cigarettes are a depressant. ? or some shit like that.

They both can cause lung cancer, mouth cancer, throat cancer. They are both addictive.

But i feel weed is WAY less potent to cause such problems as ciggerets. I feel cigerets are worse but i do not think weed is good. should weed be 100% illegal? no. we waste more money stopping it then it is worth.

America should at least DE criminalize it.(small amounts of it are legal)

Hungry Human - April 23, 2013, 10:28 pm

Personally, I smoked weed daily, all day until I got put on probation. Cigarettes are awful for you, but I still smoke them now, they're just too addicting.

Marijuana isn't really bad at all, but with everything, you have to limit yourself. I didn't, and I regret that. Just like you have to limit how much money you spend, you have to limit how much pot you smoke, just as you do everything else in life. If you don't limit yourself, regardless of what it is, bad will come of it.

IMO, weed should be decriminalized at most. Legalization would open up too many opportunities for the large companies to completely fuck everything up and ruin it.

He was making a joke about the psychological effects as the user he quoted mentioned. Which really doesn't even work, as Stephen Hawking's disorder is more of a physical one.

Nah, Marijuana is harmful to our society in the sense that were marijuana and cigarettes to swap places, we'd have stoned people everywhere, an unproductive society and our world would come to a grinding halt in the long run.

However cigarettes despite the health issues spur on economies, they're like 80-90% tax which pays to pave our roads, house the homeless and educate our children, and doesn't make us curl up into a ball giggling when it's time for work.

Well smoking weed isn't good for you either...Vaping or edibles are much healthier alternatives.

Cha0 - April 24, 2013, 2:22 am

I'm not against either, btw if we only look at lung damage, weed is more harmful then cigarettes.

Cigarettes will never be deemed illegal there would be uproar. They are part of modern society.

simon0242 - April 24, 2013, 2:33 am

Weed is also good for people with ADHD. I think that it should be legal to do it at home and exactly with alcohol. It can make the driving a little bit bader. I can't tell since i havent smoked weed. I support weed and it should be legal but as i said, i think it should be only used at home. :)

Please, for the love of god, go read up on what you're saying-.-

Marijuana is 400~ different chemicals, that you burn, and smoke? How the fuck can't that shit be harmful?

Don't get me wrong, I'm a weed and cigerat smoker too. I know it has an effect on you. Both psychically and psychologically.

If you moderate, I believe you can get the worst effects away, but if you smoke on a regular basis you have the bad effects.

Cigarettes have much more negative effects on your health. Theoretically speaking, if someone has never smoked weed or tobacco. Marijuana> Tobacco

Here are some reasons:
Marijuana

You will not get any schizo, or memory loss from smoking marijuana once.

You will get a life changing perspective from one marijuana cigarette.

It is completely natural.

Cheap

More bang for your buck

More social

Medicinal Values from one puff. (Will give you munchies which can help your immune system, stimulate appetite, relief stress, help you sleep, prevent nausea, relief stomach pains, help with chronic pain)

Tobacco

Chemicals adopted to make you addicted and keep buying more product.

May create nausea

No reward like the marijuana high, just a small buzz

more expensive

Even smoking Marijuana once a month would not be bad. You keep referring to daily smokers, and thats just a bad habit. Smoke anything too much and there will be adverse effects too your health.

You do not know about the schizo, my guess is that it's activation of receptors and epigenetics, thus one could fuck you over.

Lel, people seem to report more life changing perspective from LSD and such, natural doesn't mean shit, cigarettes are cheap too, more bang for buck (wat), you'll be social if you smoke cigarettes with people too.

Munchies in an obese dude is not good. Cigarettes (well, nicotine) also has tons of benefits like improving concentration, fat burning, anti-estrogenic, improve memory, etc.

(Apr 24, 2013 09:33 AM)Skywalker Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Tobacco

It's mainly nicotine which in itself is not that addictive if you do it with gums or anything other than smoke.

The same goes for cigarettes, over consumption is the only problem. People on the internet seems to smoke it daily or atleast regular, which will result in all the negative effects (and the postitive effects are most likely not that great if you don't use it regulary).
