Thread: APIs Owners - Please read

Nob - April 26, 2013, 8:51 am

Hello,

As somebody know, i have opened a coding service for booters.

It's the third people i saw today that's asking for a stop button. But, OMG, how do you want a stop button when your APIs haven't got this feature !

Eh, you, API Owners, why don't you implement this damn feature ?

I can even do it for YOU, for a cheap price or even for free because it's just pissing me off. Just PM me, and i'll code this for you.

A stop function isn't something hard to code, god damn. I met someone that wasn't thinking it was EVEN possible ! And it was an API OWNER !

For the people that are a bit long to understand : "You own an API ? Perfect, contact me, and i'll code a god damn stop function for you. For free, just because it's pissing me off."

Thanks in advance

I wish everyone who runs an API will rm -rf their fucking server.

Meeh, create a super h4x0r script Super Mega Giga Enhanced SSYN and type the rm -rf in the middle of the legit code, share it on HF, nobody will look at the code.

People on HF will look at the code, they just won't know what rm -rf does.

DaL33T - April 26, 2013, 9:33 am rm -rf won't do anything. It's rm -rf /* that does the damage.
