"Linking research and advocacy to improve the well-being of Iowa kids"

Why would you even hack something like this?

Trip05 - May 4, 2013, 8:15 pm

I think this is very unethical, atleast you didnt delete everything its easily fixable

Pendragon - May 4, 2013, 8:30 pm

check that again haha u pissoff
just check out

MattiasR - May 5, 2013, 3:13 am

Why would you do that to a childrens care website?
And you got burned by another member.

#Skyline - May 5, 2013, 4:59 am

Those poor children. Lucky you haven't fully defaced it, otherwise I'd go berserk.

YeahBuddyBBY - May 5, 2013, 5:19 am

Why dont you hack some pointless websites instead of these kind of websites you hacked.

Some people do it because it's funny, others do it to be idiots. Defacing gets you no where to be honest.

I think somebody else hacked into it(?):

<http://d.pr/i/Slyx>

Site is vulnerable to blind SQL interjection.

They have a cpanel connected through to port 2082 that can be accessed through CSRF EXPLOIT that the OP can't access. So go ahead if you know how to accomplished the exploit fix the site from there then contact (515-280-9027) too help them further.

xhflhkeuhwguu34 - May 5, 2013, 7:26 am

This site has become a HF playground! This should be fun.

This site was developed by <http://www.captainjack.com>.

There could be other vulns in their sites.

FixAllthis - May 5, 2013, 7:33 am

The site itself is full of blind sql vulns as I said above. With that exploit you're able to get full login details of everything you need. No need to dig further into it. The thing is why it hasn't been fully defaced by another user yet?

?Alexander - May 5, 2013, 7:47 am

Because defacing a site that helps children is pure evil.

FixAllthis - May 5, 2013, 7:50 am

There is also a XSS vuln within the contact.php. Seems no one has caught onto that one.

You can use Iframe if set input state in contact details set to 1 from defined definition such as example #" onmouseover=prompt(940621) // for script it can cause a javascript prompt to pop up.

example that you can transform for javascript:

address=3137%20Laguna%20Street&city=San%20Francisco&comments=1&email=sample%40em ail.tst&fax=317-317-3137&first_name=wrulssrp&last_name=wrulssrp&org=1&phone=555-666-0606
&state=%22%20onmouseover%3dprompt%28901001%29%20bad%3d%22&submit=Send&userstri
ng=wrulssrp&zip=94102

modify to defined definition for own use of XSS exploit.

I understand that. If you read my first post on this thread you will see I gave full details too access the site with admin rights and reclaim the site to give back to original owner.

oops... Too late...

I didn't know that... I put someone name on the admin page... name blaze...

xhflhkeuhwguu34 - May 5, 2013, 8:01 am

BTW, why are there 2 login prompts? Only one works with the creds published.

?Alexander - May 5, 2013, 8:02 am

Alright, somebody deleted all the adminaccounts. No fun for me..

FixAllthis - May 5, 2013, 8:02 am

I am taking it over and giving it back to the original owners. This is enough. For the children.

devilking55 - May 5, 2013, 8:05 am

I made a admin account...

And the owner think you will hack it

Yes I know I made a 198 character password with Symbols numbers and letters.

This site needs to be given back to original owners HF had fun but, why mess with a site that helps children?

Yes that is why I made a backup of the site for the original owner and I am keeping the admin section on lock down so anything that is changed will be set back to original settings with FIXTHISSITE as admin.
