

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [\[REQ\]Learning C++](#)

Vyrkfrir - April 4, 2010, 6:39 am

Hey guys i am looking to learn C++ but i need a very effective and user friendly tutorial that can teach me the tips and tricks to C++ and how it works.

Also what is the best compiler to use, i currently run a Windows Vista 32BIT and i tried downloading borland but have no idea how it works.

All help will be greatly appreciated guys.

Thanks
Stephen

DeanOverloaded - April 4, 2010, 6:59 am

<http://www.cplusplus.com/doc/tutorial/> tutorial

<http://www.microsoft.com/express/Windows/> compiler

I can't think of an better way to learn C++.

BumbleBee - April 4, 2010, 7:59 am

I will give you the best tut(+video tut)on the net!

<http://www.youtube.com/antiRTFM#p/c/1D10C030FDCE7CE0>

enjoy!

i Slap Kidz - April 4, 2010, 8:11 am

I'm not sure how people learn from antiRTFM...Seems mad slow. Would be way faster if you just pick up a good book...

BumbleBee - April 4, 2010, 9:00 am

(Apr 4, 2010 08:11 AM)i Slap Kidz Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm not sure how people learn from antiRTFM...Seems mad slow. Would be way faster if you just pick up a good book...

Well,idk....but I started c++ about 3 weeks ago,following only antitrfm(so far).And I understand everything...it looks like a piece of cake?

IDK if it's the tut(so cool),or my previous knowledge(,HTMLPHP AND VB.NET)...anyway I enjoy that tut and recommend it to beginners!?

Vi-Maker - April 4, 2010, 6:39 pm

YouTube.com/antiRTFM

I learned the basics there like 4 months ago =) really good tut!

Vyrkfrir - April 4, 2010, 9:50 pm

Cheers for the replies guys im checking out the antiRTFM video tuts now!

BumbleBee - April 4, 2010, 11:16 pm

Good luck, I'm sure you'll learn it.....if you have patience and willness!

Weather Man - April 4, 2010, 11:32 pm

I've learnt from AntiRTFM before, it's very good for 'Visual Learners' like me, downloading a book as well never hurts.

maxiimum - April 4, 2010, 11:47 pm

(Apr 4, 2010 07:59 AM)BumbleBee Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I will give you the best tut(+video tut)on the net!

<http://www.youtube.com/antiRTFM#p/c/1D10C030FDCE7CE0>

enjoy!

let me see.....