Thread: [\[Unofficial\] Gangsters™ Black Hat Group \[Unofficial\]](#)

The Godfather™ - June 2, 2013, 8:49 am

Hello sirs. Today I am introducing the unofficial group called the Gangsters™. We are a committed black hatting group dedicated to being HQ and sharing all we know with other members of the group. To join this group, you must fill out the application below. We ask that you are HQ and that you cannot have any open scam reports open. I will review all negative rep and make a choice accordingly. We will first communicate on skype to decide what our main form of communication will be. We may also use ICQ and eventually IRC. I am going to be quite lenient, because I don't know what to expect. Good luck to those who apply. Thanks guys.

Application:

Code What is your name?:
What is your age?:
Can you code in any languages and if so, which ones?:
What can you contribute to this group?:
What do you hope to learn from this group?:
Why do you consider yourself black hat?:
Good luck in all your endeavours.

I would apply but I don;t know if this is allowed and idk if carding is blackhat lol

Z0mbie. - June 2, 2013, 8:54 am

Now , can I ask you a question?
What is your skill-set?

muzzy. - June 3, 2013, 7:00 am

Found a few persistent XSS's on a pretty big website and I'm slowly redirecting them all to a picture of [censored].

I've got 4/5 redirecting at the moment but the other won't go for some reason.

Tried

<script>window.location.href
="http://www.wired.com/images_blogs/threatlevel/2011/07/[censored]-660x412.png"</script>
<script>window.location =
"http://www.wired.com/images_blogs/threatlevel/2011/07/[censored]-660x412.png"</script>

I dunno if an iframe would work though so I haven't tried it. Also on the chat system I changed my name to <script>alert("XSS")</script> via Tamperdata and it just comes up with a blank name instead of the alert. Any ideas?

Yes, this is a test ?

What is your name?: The Godfather™

What is your age?: 15

Can you code in any languages and if so, which ones?: Javascript, command batch, HTML. I am currently learning Java.

What can you contribute to this group?: I can contribute many things to this group. I, like many people on these forums, know quite a lot about ratting, keylogging, ewhoring, setting up botnets, vpns, servers and quite a lot of things that can't be mentioned here. The things that can't be mentioned here bring me an income, and with that, I invest. I would be happy to teach all willing to learn from my many skills. I am also looking forward to learn from the very best that HF has to offer.

What do you hope to learn from this group?: Even though I know a lot about things that can't be mentioned here, there is always room to learn. I feel that if HQ and experienced users can come together, we will accomplish more then we ever could alone.

Why do you consider yourself black hat?: I am not specifically black hat, but it tends to be my favorite. First of all, it is more profitable than any of the other ways. Second, I find it more fun overall. Third, I think it is important for black hat hackers in this world to point out exploits and errors that could then be fixed to prevent problems from occurring in the future.

There you go my friend.

Oh sir. I am not into the exploiting that you may think I am. Actually, I am into exploiting, but not the coding type. I prefer the manipulation of the human mind, or social engineering as many call it. Haha. Also, I don't "test" very well.
