

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: programs to stay safe online help

ShadowForge - June 10, 2013, 10:37 am

hi i have malwarebytes and comodo av+fw and advance system care pro and ccleaner, are there any other tools i need for safe browsing and being annonymous online like a good ip hider for comodo dragon, as i play warcraft i cant use a VPN, is there a way to be full annonymous online to stop goverment and that taking your info

Corso - June 10, 2013, 10:59 am

Those don't really have much or anything to do with staying anonymous online. Those are security for your local PC and ways to attempt maintenance and cleaning.

The simple answer is: Not really.

The longer answer is much more complex, and well... LONG !

You can obviously use a VPN for certain programs but not force whole program through it. You can also use other techniques like TOR Project when browsing. Now, you should also make sure to stay up to date on items as security patches and holes are constantly taken care of - Making getting into your system or getting your information/data harder to obtain. For instance the new Skype is much more secure to resolvers and so forth.

If you really want to remain anonymous, you'll need to look into firewalls and VPN's further. Also you can get some nice add-on's for your browser, like Ghostery, WOT (not anonymous but helps avoid bad, questionable sites), AdBlockPlus (just nice to have), and misc other items to handle your IP on sites and such. There are quite a few out there, so a little research or posting further in the browser section might do you some good!

Other than that, it's again all about redirecting your network really and covering tracks from the exit node to you.

im abcd - June 10, 2013, 11:00 am

You are just getting paranoid. Unless, you are involved in heavy black hat activities becoming completely anonymous is not necessary. But some programs I would add to your list would be Key Scramber and Last pass.

Regards,
Abcd.

Corso - June 10, 2013, 11:17 am

(Jun 10, 2013 11:00 AM)im abcd Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You are just getting paranoid. Unless, you are involved in heavy black hat activities becoming completely anonymous is not necessary. But some programs I would add to your list would be Key Scramber and Last pass.

Regards,
Abcd.

Some great recommendations there! Though I will point out both of those are again for local security, just so everyone's clear.

GlitnirSwan - June 10, 2013, 11:26 am

Keyscrambler for encrypting keystrokes

Spotflux for free VPN

Spysshelter for anti-keylogger/anti-screencapture

ShadowForge - June 10, 2013, 12:24 pm

so what is the best browser ip hider as i use comodo dragon

i found this browser dunno if its any good

Corso - June 10, 2013, 12:39 pm

(Jun 10, 2013 12:24 PM)ShadowForge Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) so what is the best browser ip hider as i use comodo dragon

i found this browser dunno if its any good

Comodo Dragon is a good browser, have a look at the link below and some methods to stay more anonymous. . .

<https://help.comodo.com/topic-120-1-279-2558-Configuring-Advanced-Settings.html>

Here are a few methods:

<http://www.onsecrethunt.com/misc/top-5-ip-hide-extensions-for-google-chrome.html>

Site lists 5 good add on options.

<http://superuser.com/questions/351482/google-chrome-extension-that-hides-my-ip>

More discussions on hiding presence online.

Code I found this one, not sure if it works FYI... Seems straight forward though.

1. Click the Comodo Dragon Logo on the top off left side.
2. Than select Options >> Under the Hood >> Network.
3. Check Use this proxy server and keep IP Address with port.

undefined

4. You are done.

ShadowForge - June 10, 2013, 1:43 pm

well my dragon extensions are adblock,lastpass,WOT, donottrackme, and maskme (mask and donottrackme are by abine)

Corso - June 10, 2013, 1:50 pm

Honestly, I don't use a Chrome based browser. . . I also don't use the last two items you posted, I have other items. So I wouldn't be the one to properly answer this. There is a browser sub forum here though, you should go post there and close this thread. They'd be able to help a LOT more! Hopefully at least something I've done or posted has helped, if not oh well - I tried haha.

PurpL Kush - June 13, 2013, 12:55 am

Although a lot of users are mentioning to use Keyscrambler, theres always going to be a way to just disable it from Startup if you're being Infected with a RAT. Also, there's really no way in staying 100% anonymous on the Internet but a VPN would be your best bet. I'd suggest nVPN, it's great & fast and for the most part it's cheap!