Thread: Raised 175 \(\$263.76\) For Cancer Research!

Cherry. - July 4, 2013, 1:53 pm

Hey im bragging about my run for Cancer Research i did :)

Why i did it (My Nans Story):

Well my nan survived cancer multiple times now and im really proud of her getting through it :) She is still alive now Thankfully :)

Well she had cancer again in her voicebox and they had to cut out her voicebox and she had to have a massive operation. So she has a hole in her neck and she cant talk but atleast she is still alive and wealthy :)

So i decided to do a run for cancer research with my two friends :P

The run took us 2 hours :/ I Was tired after but i knew it was going to a good cause. :) So thats my story!

I Raised: $263.76!

Good job man.

I would say keep doing these, but unfortunately im not.

My uncle died just a year ago from cancer. So i come from a loss. :(

Cancer will never find a cure, and there is one reason to that. The government.

I dont like conspiracies and stuff, but im telling you from first hand.

Most of my family is in the medical side.

They tell me how the department that is in charge of all the medical stuff (the name of the dpt. is in my head, but i cant remember what its) gets messages from them stating to not further development on their searches.

They usually get this notice when they are close or ready to push a final product out.
One of my cousins almost got shutdown for "curing" patience from cancer, the natural way (no radiation or anything like that)
He know has to "cure" people from under the table, because the government will not allot it.

Dont want to keep on ranting, and stuff. Just wanted to get that out there.

Once again, that is a great thing you did there. So proud of you. This is a great achievement.

(Sorry for my spelling, only slept like 30 min today)

OP. I really hope you meant to say alive and healthy... not "alive and wealthy"

BottomNotch - July 23, 2013, 1:26 am

Congratz:) I hope we find a way to cure cancer one day! How does she communicate now?

That's awesome bro, you are a great person for this.

Gold Eagle™ - July 23, 2013, 6:12 pm

That is awesome OP, you are a class act.

It's really great how far cancer awareness has come in the past few years.
