Hentai? - July 5, 2013, 9:48 pm

Well old thread had over 1.4k posts and it was starting to glitch, so here is new one.

You can continue discussion of anime/manga/vn/etc.

I never thought we would need another one, hopefully there will be enough discussion for a third one some day. :)

Zapu - July 5, 2013, 9:48 pm

Finished FMAB, one of the best animes i've seen in awhile.

Anyways, what are some animes you guys have finished?

KinGxKeV - July 5, 2013, 10:11 pm

Trust me there will be enough for a third.

Anyways got some more shows to catch up on :P

Hentai? - July 5, 2013, 10:19 pm

I plan on watching Hellsing and Fate/Zero but I've been busy with work and other things so it's hard to find the time.

Zeke Yeager - July 5, 2013, 10:20 pm

If I remember correctly around 20ish?

They are fantastic in my opinion, Elfen Lied is my favorite anime.

(Warning though there is nudity for first like few mins in ep 1)

26 for Mirai Nikki. 13 for Elfen Lied.

Both are fantastic pieces of art.

You really don't have to watch the original Hellsing, it pales in comparison to the OVA series. Really surprised you haven't watched any of the mainstream and known series out there though; such as Hellsing. Makes me wonder which 500+ series you claim to have watched are. ?

On a different note, holy fuck I just realized they've made two OVA adaptations of YKK, 4 episodes all in all. How in the world did this go past me for all this time..

I really recommend you watch it.

Just caught up with Zero In...and Ao no Exorcist, and just...like 20+ other series I added to my list.
Like continuous reading for days. And now I have no more...I don't know what to do with my life.
Feels so empty.

20+ series is definitely too big of a dosage. Feels like PADS from having just finished an anime series. Fuck. ;_;

They have really struck down on camrips of movies in theaters since Disappearance. Same reason why you haven't seen any rips for other movies like S;G and such.

It is the Blurays with official subs.

Been reading Yuria 100 Shiki, its okay and the beginning was really comedic but it just drags into pointless and senseless ecchi which makes it.. Meh.

Unknown Cheater - July 27, 2013, 1:01 pm

I recommend these animes... Sekirei, High School DXD, Demon King Daimo, Kampfer, B Gata H Kei, School Days (be careful as it's ending follows the H-Games most popular end.. google is your friend..), Campione!, Chaos Head, Dakara Boku wa, H ga Dekinai, Date A Live, DearS, Akikan, Ef a Tale of Melodies, Ef a Tale of Memories, Girls Bravo, Guilty Crown, Hentai Ouji to Warawanai Neko, H2O Footprints in the Sand, Hagure Yuusha no Estetica, High School of The Dead, Seikon no Qwaser (tons of boobs..), Mirai Nikki, Muv-Luv Total Eclipse... Yeah I know a semi-big list I could add a ton more but meh I may add onto this post later.

Music Helps - July 27, 2013, 1:19 pm

I've been watching a fair amount of anime in the past 3/4 days, Since then I've calculated that I've watched over 32 hours of anime...77 Eisodes, 1 movie. I've enjoyed it a lot. I've seen Sora No Otoshimono, Sora No Otoshimono: Forte, Sora no Otoshimono: Tokeijikake no Angeloid, Kiss x Sis, MM!, and B Gata H Kei in the last 3/4 days. I'm now just starting Ore No Imouto. I honestly can't wait till October, Season 3 of Sora No Otoshimono comes out. It's honestly my favorite anime right now. If you're into a bit of ecchi/harem, I recommend you go watch it.

Kind of pissed too, Kiss x Sis, MM! and B Gata H Kei all only have one season, and they were decent animes. Sucks that they had to end so quickly. In all of them, I feel like they could have easily had a second season because of how much potential they had to build up more of a story line with the relationships between characters. Oh well, They were good while they lasted. Anyone else seen any of these animes?

B?nny - July 27, 2013, 1:56 pm

KissxSis has ongoing OVAs still and the author of MM! died a while back.

So bad it's masochistic.

Take a shitty Hollywood action movie written with every cliché known to man, shove it into a highschool anime setting with nauseating amount of blatant fanservice and each and every character representing one or the other shitty stereotypical anime archetype. What do you have? An action harem taking place in a highschool where all the teenagers are for no real reason studying warfare, with the cliché "hidden powerup" male lead, and the even more cliché tsundere loli female lead. Then we have the seductive loli antagonist, the melon tits childhood friend, and of course the nefarious criminal organization blah blah blah. Now all that's left is to absurdly plagiarize some classic characters such as Sherlock Holmes and Lupin III to form the series' anencephalic plot core, and we have all that that Hidan no Aria is. In other words, it's a shitty money making machine aimed at brainless consumers.

Now you have my opinion on it, and of course you are entitled to your own. I only lay things before us from a critical standpoint.

#28 is the only one that'd get you any if your pp is over 4,000. My friend doesn't even get pp from top 50's on insane maps these days. shit's gonna be like that until the next change in pp which is really big.

o and your 28 was on a normal difficulty map as well as your accuracy was 99.4, you might've gotten pp if it was 100.

K, so this anime is new-ish, it finished about 7 months ago and I've watched it a few times since it first finished, but I really feel the need to suggest it to everyone right now. :3

For those of you that are into slice of life, drama, romance, and things of those sorts, check out Say "I Love You" It's pretty much the most realistic take on how highschool relationships actually tend to play out. (Ignoring the fact that who goes for who isn't as realistic.) :3 Really enjoyed this one.

I stopped watching bleach at 318 because it got so stupid. The episodes kept skipping around to different stories and then going back. The beginning was soo good but got stupid. Also most of the action didn't focus on ichigo. This disappoints me so much. But now I am going to watch naruto and hopefully it is better.

Oh yeah it took me like half a month to finish 318 episodes lol. Maybe like 2-3 weeks

Filler episode? This was like the first long anime series I have seen. Most of mine was 4 seasons the longest. It goes to main story then another story that was like 12 episodes long about the future problem with soul society. It had nothing to do with the main story or the characters. I am not talking about the ones who tells about the past and stuff. It was legit a whole different story

Yes, it's called a filler, they stray from the main plot entirely and are only for x amount of episodes, look up a filler guide.

Ok, so here is my topic of discussion.

In what cases would you prefer anime over manga?

Personally, I almost always prefer manga over anime, and only watch anime when it has been specifically said to be better than the manga, or if there was no manga version, or if the anime came first and then the manga came and started milking the cash cow.

Elfen lied? Only read the manga.

Death note? Manga.

Master Kurosawa? Manga.

Claymore? Anime (Unfortunately.)

But that's exactly the reason why I prefer manga!

It has nothing to do with mental concentration. Manga requires more physical interaction, whether it be a physical or digital copy, I have to turn the page every half minute or so, depending on the amount of dialogue. Where as with anime, I have to either click to change episodes every 24 minutes or so, or if I have it downloaded, after the series is done. Also the fact that I don't have to move my eyes as much. I can read at about 1800 wpm, so I can easily glance at the anime to read the subtitles; they're always in that one single spot. So even if I get distracted, I will never forget the physical location of where I'm at. It's dozens of little things that make it more efficient and end up saving me time. Sure it may not be hours, but it's more time; and I sure as hell value every minute of my days.

Actually using a tablet gives more precise movement, control and a better range if the field. I'm not even remotely used to it but I can play hard maps without a problem, it's like magic.

I only resulted into using my tablet again since I had to reinstall my OS and because of that, my mouse lags like 0.2 milliseconds behind. It feels strange and slow, so meh.

I think anyone who uses a tablet will be a better Osu! player than when they originally used a mouse.

When you say 'skills', which skill do you refer to? In Osu! I see a variety of skills, observation, clicking in rhythm, clicking with two buttons, hand-eye coordination, wrist movement, reaction time and many more which I can't think of from the top of my head.

Obviously a mouse limits you, using a mouse means you use your arm, fingers and your wrist, using a tablet will focus more on your wrist then anything else. We as modern humans are used to wrist movement at a faster pace because of our ability of using a pen. Obviously tablets are superior in this case.

I think your being a tad biased for a reason that you haven't presented yet. Using a tablet does make you superior (once you get used to it of course), I don't think you can argue with what I said. If you can, throw it at me ?

Tablets are for people who can't play decent maps efficiently with a mouse, a mouse doesn't limit anyone it just separates the bad players from the good. I just personally find no skill in using a tablet when compared to a mouse, (I own both, fyi), it's that simple. ? I also believe #5 global is better than cookiezi. -and he's #1 because of tablet, because he's trash with a mouse and resorted to the "easier" approach.

Again, your only giving me your opinion. The fact is still present, people who use a tablet proactively tend to have better performance. You hate tablets for your own reasons and claim it is for 'noobs' which is just an opinion. Why use a match stick to keep yourself warm when you can use a radiator?

This entire thing came from my opinion, I couldn't give a shit about your "facts" considering osu! is entirely skill based and there are tablet players with 30,000~ playcount that even I'm better than. Some people are better with tablet some are better than mouse and I believe that mouse players are the better players. ?

I need to stop reading these fucking romantic mangas or I'm gonna end up hanging myself or something... (cough) http://myanimelist.net/anime/17741/Kimi_no_Iru_Machi (cough)

The amount of fun they provide is not worth the anguish caused by them...

But now that I've started reading it, could I really just stop? that might be even worse. Wait no, it definitely wouldn't be... Too bad I'll keep reading anyways, hoping they end up together. But it has ~200 chapters left... that tells me it wont go smoothly.

Is there any benefit to watching 1080p over 720p on crunchyroll (in general)?

Most of the time, anime released in 720p, and 1080p releases are upscales. Sometimes there is true 1080p though. Does crunchyroll use upscales for most of their 1080p releases? If so, then I would rather download 720p and have my player upscale it.

I know... I hated soul eater, animation was shit and the only thing I liked was ONE character and that was just because of his dubbed voice, and I usually hate dubs.

I've been thinking about.. Not really sure what to call it, but I guess perma-cosplaying? I've always been more interested in semi-extravagant looks like ones you can find in anime. Nothing too wild like the look of some characters in lets say Bleach or Naruto, but when you look at the outfits in Attack on Titan, some Naruto characters (Hinata, Neji, Sasuke (pre-ship), and so on) their outfits are a bit more out there than normal, but not so much so that I would feel like a total freak for wearing it daily. Opinions? :3

For action anime I suppose that's a viable argument, but for slice of life most of the story is in the text and dialogue, not particularly in the art. They are very slow moving, you're not going to miss anything if your stuck reading the text for any given scene.

If the japanese voices are better I normally watch sub, but that's not always the case. There are a few anime I've watched where the dub is on par or better than the original.

I've re-watched it twice now. it's not that bad if you used to these types of shows. I've found the series to be mildly entertaining in the past when I feel like shit, but that's probably just me. I'm sure there are hundreds if not thousands of better anime with the same themes and genre's that are much better than this but it all boils down to your opinion and personal enjoyment.

Overall I didn't mind it but I doubt I'd watch it a third time ;)

Our conversation started when somebody mentioned that unlike breaking bad, one piece is never going to end. I brought up SAO and how I wished it ended faster because of the last 5 dodgy episodes [and the whole second ark]. One guy said he felt violated from the last episode, then another said that the toothbrush episode from the mono series was a lot worse.

And thats how we started talking about anime for 20 minutes.

The original FMA anime was terrible. It got ahead of the Anime so 20 episodes in the storyline started to fall apart. Brotherhood is based on the actual manga and is currently rated as the #1 anime according to half a dozen anime lists and anime review sites.

It's back and forth in my opinion. The arcs pre-Bount were actually pretty good. The Bount arcs were... horrid, I would advise you skip it entirely. The final arc is also pretty interesting and has some amazing fight scenes, but I feel it was drug out way longer than necessary.

Trust me, it's really good animation; the fights look intense and forceful and everything is detailed... Though to me there seems to be a slight... Messiness? I'm not too sure, it just seems a little messy in the art itself. The animation is good, just not a fan of the art style in my opinion.

Plus, some sequences in the anime are far outclassed by others. For example, the driving sequence with Irisviel and her Mercedes Gullwing is far outclassed by almost any Initial D driving sequence (a cheap shot, I know.)

I just prefer another art style is all.

Kotei - September 27, 2013, 2:20 pm

Ignoring personal preference, F/Z is one of the best anime in the world. The sounds, animation, writing, fight scenes, voice acting, everything about it is so damn near perfect.

Well, there is quite a lot of dialogue, it isn't exactly too much action, but it is great, the characters are well-developed and the series has a great story, with fantasy and adventure, it's not boring, yet there is quite some dialogue, and it really sets the mood

Just watched coppelion, it seems like a good serie.
Its about some girls who are 'puppets' genetic made humans they are used to explore areas with much radation where normal humans cant go.
This happend because of humans made something very terrible etc.

That's rather, erm, ignorant to suggest. It's as popular as it is internationally for a reason. It is the most popular anime in Japan for a reason. Although I do not think it is one of the top 10, nor even top 100 anime out there, it is a very good anime and if you have the time to watch a few hundred episodes, then yes watch it.

I just finished zetsuen no tempest. First off there was not so much action actually going on. Though the season 1 intro got me motivated and thought the words to the song were good and actually resembles the anime like near the end of season 1. I have to say this anime was very suspenseful. That was the reason why I kept watching this(I actually finished season 1-2 in 1 day). So if you are watching this at night when you have school the next day, I would not advise you watching it. Like seriously despite how barley action was going on(I thought some of the action was boring but pretty cool) I thought this was probably one of the most suspenseful anime I have seen so far. Well maybe it was mood that is why I think of it but you have to watch it if you did not. According to wiki it says "Romance", I would say nah. I would say there was actually more comedy than romance. This anime was so hilarious especially samon. LOL i laughed so freaking hard.

Well Fate/Zero is really the only one to have to.. pay attention to? lol

(And kill la kill just started)

Watching Garzey's Wing for the lols (Is so shitty that it's hilarious)

Watching Love Live with 2 friends. I don't know how it started, but we just joke about everything in it. Fun times :)

Miss Monochrome is 3 mins per episode and is just comedy xD

I don't usually watch multiple serious shows at once (Unless they are airing).

Yes, there is Fate/Stay Night and Fate/Zero.

Fate/Stay Night was aired first and takes place 10 years after the events of Fate/Zero.

I really recommend you pick Fate/Zero again. It's my favorite show now.

Where did you drop it? The first ep is painful (not bad, just nothing happens and all the back story) and the second ep is kinda slow, but after that, perfection.

About F/SN, I didn't hate it, but it was not my favorite and defiantly had flaws. Maybe it's because I haven't really seen too much anime yet, but It was still generally entertaining.

The Fate/Stay Night and Fate/Zero fanbases are relatively distinguishable. F/SN is a shounen whereas F/Z is a seinen, just because he likes one doesn't mean he'll like the other.

The Oculus isn't much worth in it's current state. Yes it's cool, but the pixelation is simply too bad for me to really like it.

Since I got it I haven't had the time to use it a lot, I might set it up to work with minecraft since I would be able to play HackerCraft with it then, but other then that not really. When 1080p hits it though! Oh man.

I liked stay night and it actually is one of my favorite anime of all time. Did not like zero though. Theres also the original fate stay night (forgot what's it called). It is about saber being a guy (more realistic if your going by history) and a girl as the summoner. There's also one about that girl who dresses in red and knows magic when she was little

The girl you are thinking about is Rin Tohsaka, but I have no idea what you mean by "Original Fate/Stay Night" or Saber ever being a guy..

Also, King Arthur has not been proven to have actually existed, so "going by history" doesn't really apply (It wouldn't matter anyways...) :3

You should watch No. 6. I just finished it and although I would change a lot about it, it was refreshing to watch an anime that:

1. Didn't have fan service
2. Wasn't about high schoolers (at least not in the sense we're used to)
3. Had amazing characters, relationships, and development of both.

Cost's round £600 to go to Tokyo and back. Throw in another £800 for expenses considering a 1 week trip. That's like £1400. Pretty cheap and a lot of cash to spend. Consider sharing rooms and we get even cheaper prices. Down it to £1200 maybe? So, whens the trip?

Just finished High School DxD New and got multiple feelings on it. It actually has two arcs, the first arc had a good story but the way it was introduced was horrible. It felt as if I was missing an episode or an OVA from the first episode I watched. The second arc was good but it was rushed. Pretty disappointing, not bad overall though.

Here's a part I did for an MEP, if you guys could give a little feedback that'd be awesome! :) I'm thinking of adding in one more mask at the end and also adding color correction to clips so that they look a lot better. Anyway any other things I could do to improve?

I really enjoyed Rosario + Vampire, but you've probably already seen that. Maybe "I Couldn't Become a Hero, So I Reluctantly Decided to Get a Job."? It's currently airing, and actually had a decent plot.

It's about guy that couldn't become a hero, so he reluctantly decided to get a job.

The heroes slayed the demons and evil shit before the demon king was killed, and then the main guy (who couldn't be a hero anymore) got a job at some magic department store. A new employee, also called the main fanservice girl, is the demon king's daughter.

Yumi Miru Kusuri is good. Though it's weird.

Grisaia no Kajitsu is probably my favourite. It's really long, though.

It didnt really give the exact same feeling as Clannad did although it was close to the feeling but this was on another level. This was so much better than clannad, all the feelings and emotions, they express them in the right way. It feels like its real actors and they are pro actors like playing their role so good that it feels real. I hated the MC after a while and then seriously wanted to kill him because of the way he was. It gave out such good feelings that you think it is real.

One of the best anime i have seen, i give this 9/10 minimum.

It's really fucking annoying when she's obviously making a horrible choice and you rip out your hair yelling "WHYY JESUS CHRIST."

Other than that, it's okay.

I'm at episode 17 at the moment.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Up to episode 12 it was very serious and calculated. Right now, it just turned into a weird love comedy where they suspect Yoshino of being the mage without any solid reason or proof. Hakaze is rather cute though. It's not one of those mindblowing shows that can get into someone's top list, but I'm definitely finding it enjoyable.

Yeah but the end is crazy, it will make you like it more but still not one of the top anime. After ep12 it became so boring but soon you will see something amazing.

You seem to be under the misconception that there's only one stereotype for anime. See, the "kinda fat fuck" stereotype is just the general stereotype people associate with anime fandom as a whole. The rest depends mainly on the fandom of anime you belong to.

The big three fandom, for example, breeds the relatively annoying "obnoxious, self-righteous weeaboo" stereotype, which is the most common of the bunch.

The ecchi/hentai fandom breeds another stereotype I really wouldn't want to associate myself with.. The very one I was referring to in my previous post, which includes having next to no real knowledge of story-driven anime and does it's best to enforce the hentai preconception, which leads a lot of plebs to see the whole anime medium as silly cartoon porn (used to be loathed in this section, no idea what happened to that).

Your personal life is completely irrelevant. In the end it all comes down to what fandom of anime you fall under, and I can imagine that aside from hentai and series with tits flying all over the screen your knowledge would be severely limited. If you intend to keep that all concealed behind the anonymity of the internet I don't really see a reason for you going to cons.

Just checking. Because if you were getting 2-3Mb/s it would mean your bandwidth would be almost as low as when the ISP caps my internet for surpassing the foreign download limit (in other words shutting it down).

So what connection are you currently on?

Naruto is SO bad. Can't believe that the manga turned out so awful. The only thing that could save the series would be Spoiler (Click to View)a plot twist in which this all "friends" bullshit and their victory are just an illusion and that Obito has already succeeded in his plan and is just making them see this so they don't suspect anything. Not even Madara going full berserk and killing everyone would help the series anymore. Kishi made a huge mistake by reviving the dead characters twice. (Nagato arc, and this arc where the Kages were healed, like wtf)

Most likely because a bond isn't made between you and the characters in the movie. I think that's why most of us enjoy anime to the extent we do, the way anime is written, the acting, it forces a bond to be created between the characters and the viewers.

Original (?) Video Animation. It [tends] to have nothing to do with the plot, and is the equivalent of a beach episode. In manga, random panels that add nothing to the plot are denoted with chapter #.5 or #.1

And Phantom: Requiem for the Phantom is my favorite anime. If you don't know what the title means, I suggest looking it up after watching the anime. While it is 26 episodes long, every single one is worth it.

Also, don't drop the anime after episode 1, it is a bad starting episode but you should watch it nonetheless.

Tentacles? Check! Sleepwalking into a boy's room while naked? Check! It's like they're gathering achievement points. Just finished Gankutsuou. There I was, four hours ago, getting ready to write a marvelous review on this and put it in my favorites list, but they had to ruin it with an ending that's complete crap. So much potential and such a tremendous story has been overcast by the shadow of a poor conclusion. It always makes me sad to see that... Could have been a perfect ten...

crazyycast13 - November 25, 2013, 6:15 pm

Does anyone know a harem ecchi anime such as IS or HighSchool Dxd that is somewhat good and has some faint resemblance of a plot? I'm both bored and tired so a really deep plot such as Zetsuen no Tempest's plot would kill me.

Controversial view, but does anyone else here like Kyousoougiga? I feel it's reminiscent of Mawaru Penguindrum, with all of the half-truths and symbolism that it contains.

Anywho- back because I just got back into anime thanks to this current season and can't get enough. Helping me get through a tough time right now of general loneliness and stress and the romance always keeps my heart doki doki. After having my recent discussion with Dark Sniper made me realised how much I missed this section when, when shit was rough I always had the ability to just zone out and giddily discuss the latest waifu or anime. Xypher, imma let you finish, but Happeh had the best rage ever, EVER!

But you're wrong, it does negatively affect the section. Since I enjoy analogies ever so much, please enjoy this story.

You are a contributor at a local art museum in a bad neighborhood. The museum is trying to hold itself above the standards of the rest of the neighborhoods lest its visitors be dragged down by the rest of the community. Within the museum are many fine pieces of work and some just slightly above average, regardless, the original creators of the pieces put a lot of time and effort into their craft and enjoy seeing the community enjoy and interact with the art.

Above the entrance of this museum are some rules or guidelines which are there to help the flow of traffic through the museum as well as to help guide those seeking something specific directly to their desired craft or exhibit. These suggestions are very well worded and much thought was put into them so everyone can have what they want without stepping on each others toes. A few of the more popular exhibits are even outlined in this guide.

One day, a visitor comes in. You can tell the only art he has ever seen is poorly done graffiti and some of the most well known pieces out of all history (Mona Lisa, Starry night, etc.). Basically, he isn't well versed in our kind of art. So he walks in, walks right past the guidelines and proceeds to defecate on his hand and smears it all over the wall. Horrible thought I know, but read on.

The janitor was on break and couldn't wipe the feces from the wall in time before another casual walks in and writes his name in the stuff, just sticks his finger in there and very poorly writes his name. Few moments later even more morons walk in and do the same. Then, even worse, some other hoodlums walk in and also smear crap on the walls. The janitor tries to keep up as this goes on for days but there is just so much crap that the other contributors and artists aren't even getting any attention because this pile of filth either turns all potential visitors away or keeps their attention entirely. Pretty soon the janitor is so sick of the crap that he doesn't even show up for work anymore, and he quite enjoys looking at the art in between cleaning up minor spills and messes.

Pretty soon the section is full of these quick, feces flinging temporary visitors. So much so that most of the other art isn't even getting a passing glance and the artists no longer want anything to do with the museum. The museum becomes just another run down facility in the crappy neighborhood.

It is an injustice to those who put time and effort into their art just to be shown up by some kids who would rather fling crap at each and circle jerk for a few moments before leaving the museum completely and never returning.

You're comparing simple discussions and questions with fine works of art. That would work if they were similar in any way, shape or form. Oh and even if they were similar, you're arguing an ego thing. Not wanting your hard worked on threads to be shown up by people making new threads asking about exactly what you just tried is your own personal issue. It doesn't detract from the section, it detracts from the attention thrown to you. That's it.

Is it wrong to only look through the section, not posting at most things because I can't see the fun into it? I don't give two shits about what anime you've watched. It's not a competition. If you want a good discussion, say so. Just saying "i watchd dis anime u shuld watch it" makes me kinda sad.

I actually am a pretty big fan of SAO. I don't know why I just really like it. Have you seen Btooom, Ixion Saga, Mirai Nikki, Deadman Wonderland, Black Rock Shooter, .hack, and Tower of Druaga?

I've seen all except Ixion Saga, .hack, and Tower of Druaga and they are all good but the three I named above are recommended on MAL so I can't picture them being really bad.

Watch sub because it makes the anime seem so much more better. The Japanese voices really get you into whats happening, dub just ruins the anime especially if the voices are terrible.

Although it depend on the anime because some are better being dubbed.

I just finished FMA

AND MAAN LET ME TELL YOU

That was a pretty damn good anime. I've watched episodes before when they came on AS, but I never bother to follow it.

And I just watched FMA: The Sacred Star of Milos; it was okay. The animation quality look liked it was produced in Adobe Flash, but it was decent for the fight scenes. Plus it made me upset that they didn't use the same voice actor for Alphonse from the series. Pretty good though.

I'm going to watch Brotherhood next week.

I didn't like it because I was expecting too much from the start before I even watched it. Yes action and stuff was good but idk why I just hated it. But first it was pretty good until I think episode 6 or something.

I did not get how amazing the legions are. The girl(Main characters child hood friend), pretty sure Spoiler (Click to View)By open ending, I'm comparing it more to how Clannad ends. In Clannad, they get married, have a kid, live happily ever after. Not much more could come after that. Where as with Toradora there is still the what leads to the wedding, what trials and tribulations do they go through, etc. I guess that could be said with most series, I just felt Toradora! had a fairly open ending.

I just finished watching Toradora! for the second time last night and man, the feels. It definitely is one of my favorite romcoms. What I liked about watching it this time was that I was able to notice a lot more development between Taiga and Ryuuji throughout, as well as the fact that everyone else could see it and were subtly pushing them towards each other. It's really a well done anime, if you haven't seen it, I highly recommend it. Plus, it fits the season!

Now I'm going to re-watch Clannad because I feel like taking my heart and squeezing it until there is nothing left. Preparing waterworks now.

I'm just too impatient. Really my main problem is that when I'm not watching anime, I pick up a book and start to read. And when I'm reading a good book, I can't make myself put it down and watch anime. Same concept applies in reverse as well, when watching a good anime, I don't want to stop to read a book. My two greatest material loves and I can never decide between the two. Manga helps but it isn't the same. I've never read a light novel though, maybe that could alleviate the issue a bit.

Lelouch had everything planned, as you see when you see the 'flash back'. He had planned it all, and did it all to remove the hate between people and countries. But if in his plan he would be able to survive, dont you think he would do that?

Lelouch died but he planned that he will survive as soon as he heard about shitsu's story about how she is immortal and why.

He then knew that there existed another code bearer vuitsu.

Then in his plans he added his survival by reciving the code.

Even though he did not physically kill his father he was the one commanding it and responsible and behind it so its speculated that he recived the code.

Then the Mr. Okouchi one of the CG creator said in a interview that Lelouch died and the requirment for the code to activate is once death.

When Lelouch is dying and Nunally touches him she sees his past, just like the same as when Lelouch touches Shitsu.

And Lelouch swore to Shitsu that he would make her happy instead of killing her because she had nothing good in life.

Do you think he would just leave her after giving her a reason to live?

Well thats pretty much the ending of my theory, ive rewatched CG many times and thats the only theory i think fits the best.

Yes it does, the anime completly changed after a while.

I personally think only 1-8 are ok and rest are very bad.

Its like saying the only part worth listening to of the song at minute 0:00 to 3:00, its first about adventures but after that it becomes a romance song, which isnt even good.

But the only reason you know that is because you finished it. Lets take Code Geass for example, don't any of you dare lie to me and say that there was no point in the anime that you didn't lose even a sliver of interest in. But if you gave up just because it wasn't as good as the beginning of the anime, you'd never know how spectacular it was.

I hate being the guy that says people should think one way or another, but I don't get how anyone can be content with a mentality of "oh I don't need to finish this anime because the part I'm at right this moment is less interesting." Yes, SAO stayed uninteresting and rather dull throughout its ending episodes, but you can't know that unless you find out yourself. Listening to others opinions is pretty pointless as it all comes down to taste and the little things that bring up certain emotional reactions from you. No one, no matter how similar of a being to you, can perfectly suggest anime for you.

I followed SAO when it aired, i liked it until around EP 8 or something. I then gave it 2 episodes and just couldn't like it anymore, it went complete shit and changed the direction it was going.

Its like it was going to New York, and i wanted to go to NY but then suddenly it changed directions for Texas.

Watching something you don't have a slight interest in is just a waste of time even if you liked half of it.

Its like saying that i have to buy a car even if i only like half of the features and dislike the rest, when i can either buy another one that's better or wait for one better to come out.

Kotei - December 19, 2013, 1:08 pm

My point is that you don't know if you'd find the rest a waste. You didn't even get through half of the entire series before you dropped it, how can you say that you will hate the rest? Because one fifth of what you saw was unsatisfying?

jour - December 19, 2013, 1:16 pm

With the SAO thing I just meant that the first episodes was the best(In SAO game)

The whole serie was great, but I just didn't like how it was in the second game! The story in it was great.

I know how it went because it changed directions, i saw it stay at the direction it changed.

The plot that i was looking for had faded and something else started, something i did not like.

From the episodes i watched i could make a conclusion that the rest would continue in that way and they wont be focusing on the game itself anymore, and that was the only thing i liked about it.

As i said before, it changed to something im not looking for since it wasnt even good drama and it was all bullshit, especially the way he defeated the creator of the game.

It became bullshit and therefore i dropped it.

Its like playing a FPS game that then becomes a mylittlepony game, and you say that i cant say that mlp is bad because i didnt finish the game.
