If you post this on another forum remember to give credits.

Hello there today ill show you how to make a simple notepad in delphi.

what you will need:

- 1 memo
- 1 mainmenu
- 1 save dialog
- 1 open dialog

ok let's begin, first off place a memo which is found here:

on your form, after that go add in a mainmenu which will be found here:

[IMG]http://i40.[censored].com/erylus.jpg[/IMG]

after that double click the mainmenu.

Type in 'File' here:

Next click the little box that pop's up under 'File' and type in this, 'New'
now type in this under 'New' , 'Open' then finally under 'Open' type in 'Save' all without the ' '

now it should look like this:

ok now for the Coding:

double click 'New' and type in this

Code memo1.clear;

Now click 'Open' and type in this:

Code OpenFileDialog1.Execute;

memo1.Lines.LoadFromFile(OpenDialog1.FileName);

Ok now in 'Save' type in this:

Code SaveDialog1.Execute;

memo1.Lines.SaveToFile(SaveDialog1.FileName);

Your application should look like/similar to this:

Good tutorial i rember making a simple notepad in delphi :D
Great tutorial again for beginners :)

Tobie Montana - June 23, 2010, 7:17 am

Ya, its exactly the same but i dont have the same names on my dialogs and memo thats the only thing that is different :S Im gonna look at some more tutorials on notepads so i find the problem :P I just started with delphi and its kinda fun but so freakin hard... U got any tips on tutorials? with is the best ones?

djfshtady - June 23, 2010, 7:40 am i have a tip, dont buy ebooks about it , its best to get someone to help you over teamviewer or something or read tutorials like mine , stuff like that but an ebook for beginners may be a little confusing for you. but once your more advanced in delphi then you could consider buying an ebook.
