"In order to prevent a security threat like this from happening again, we're completely overhauling our developer systems, updating our server software, and rebuilding our entire database." ... Typical Apple, saving themselves while making it seem like they're putting their developers/customers first.

I wonder if China is behind this...

...why would you ask a question like this?

It's APPLE. A multi-million dollar corporation. If there's a vulnerability present, of course someone's going to exploit it...

What he said.

Basically, just to say to yourself that you hacked apple.

I mean I would be proud of myself ahahah.
