

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Is this a way of asking for Rep without getting Rep Fucked ?

Jesús - April 12, 2010, 8:50 pm

Okay so I've seen this is peoples threads -

Goals for 2010 -
[] Reach 10+ Rep
Etc.
Etc.
Etc.

And then I thought nothing of it until I've checked the persons +Rep and had seen people gave the person +3 or +1 to get closer to 10+.

So I'm not flaming or anything. I just wanted to know is this like another way of asking for Rep and know one seen it so far ?

/Discuss.

? ILL?mI??TI ? - April 12, 2010, 8:52 pm

as far as i know this wasn't allowed, yet i noticed a lot members had it and nothing was done so i let it go

Jesús - April 12, 2010, 8:52 pm

(Apr 12, 2010 08:52 PM)? ILL?mI??TI ? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) as far as i know this wasn't allowed, yet i noticed a lot members had it and nothing was done so i let it go Yeah. A lot of members have it. And I think its just to get more +Rep or something.

NaDe - April 12, 2010, 8:53 pm

Its not really the person asking for rep, thats other users trying to boost them towards their gold so it wouldn't really be asking for it.

Robbin in the Hood - April 12, 2010, 8:54 pm

Do a service for free.

:3

There you go.

Irelandrulz2 - April 12, 2010, 8:54 pm

I have seen about this previously. Omniscient didn't seem to care.

theboner - April 12, 2010, 9:56 pm

I think that it is indirectly asking for rep.. Who needs to know what your goals are. With 150k+ members who in the fuck really cares about what you want to do on these forums. Rep should never be mentioned in any post as if you didn't have [get 10 rep] people wouldn't help you towards that.

iBruteforce - April 12, 2010, 10:00 pm

The 'goals' in your signature is fine. No asking or offering involved.

Asking, offering or suggesting you receive rep is reputation abuse.

Omniscient - April 13, 2010, 4:24 pm

Quote: I just wanted to know is this like another way of asking for Rep and know one seen it so far ?

Not without the risk of a Rep Fuck.