Most of us here are striving for a passive, online income. What do you do when you're not on the internet?

I work through a labouring company here in Sweden and accept work wherever i am offered work. My labouring company only deals with warehouse work so i've been at Santa Maria, KappAhl, Frode Laurssen, Nelly etc etc. It's not very complicated work but it can be heavy. The pay is good.

I work at an apple farm(I'm 15 so), I work there with my friends and its really fun cause you are with your friends and stuff! I earn €3,- a hour and work 4 hours a day(it is not much but enough for me).

I sell Beats. Once I raise enough capital I'm going to start dealing drugs too.

Spheth - August 6, 2013, 7:19 am

Where do you buy cheap Beats? Sounds like a profitable business.

I work for the Government...no bullshit lol

Get a job. It's legal and probably the most reliable way to make money. =)

You could start out as a bank teller. Easy job and pays pretty good. If you stay there for a while you can work your way up to higher and better positions.

yoghiHD - August 6, 2013, 8:27 am don't you have to study to become a bank teller!?

csrk - August 6, 2013, 12:31 pm

The way i'm raised i don't think i'd ever deal with drugs or anything of the sort. I earn $22 per hour at my job so i wouldn't have to resort to such activities either.

I work 2 jobs and go to school. Might quit one of my jobs though.

andy02 - August 6, 2013, 1:45 pm

Havent really a job.. Want to get one

PimpSlickback - August 6, 2013, 2:04 pm

I got a real job at a water park for the summer, and for tax season i work at liberty tax, planning on applying somewhere else that would be a long time job when school starts! I'm 17

Moon Man - August 6, 2013, 2:06 pm

I work at Walmart, I make decent $ there. :D

CoBrAx. - August 6, 2013, 2:08 pm

I buy guns in large quantities (pistols) and sell them seperately.
