Yeah, I figure breaking things down into simple technique tutorials are helpful for more people than longer complex tutorials.

Yea, I mean I knew how to do shadows, but when you read something it helps to refresh your mind every now and then.

I just wanted to say that I'm a big fan of your tutorials.

I've read them all.

It really helped me get a basic understanding of how image editing works and what looks / doesn't looks good.

Keep up the good work. ?

Well it is a problem you have with the image host then. Perhaps you have the site firewalled or something but either way it is something on your end. I dunno, I'm a designer not a computer expert.

Maybe because I'm outside of the US? I know it's a big thing to ask but do you think you could reupload it to a different site?

If you are new to the design game then that is a good idea. They will get you started but remember it is creativity which will help you the most.
