Thread: Small File Upload Service - Direct Link - Encrypts & Compresses - Stores In MySQL DB

Lysandre - August 8, 2013, 12:04 pm

Hey,

So, I recently coded a small file uploader that compresses and encrypts the file and stores it in a database, and gives a direct link.

Any file extension is allowed, but there's a file limit of 2MB. I may increase this up to 5MB if there's enough demand.

And oh yeah, the ID in the link is like 64 characters. Nobody is going to randomly get your file by guessing the URL.

No domain name, I cba to get one.

Code <http://37.59.117.243/>

I use RC4 encryption, and I generate a random 32-byte key. (note I said 32-byte, not 32 alphanumeric characters!)

WhatEvenIsThis - August 9, 2013, 12:00 pm

works nicely.I'll be using this in the future

Ice_mans - August 9, 2013, 12:14 pm

Idiots you do realize it only touch's /tmp on the drive (so you can't shell the site skids), also DDOSing the site will result in the cause of it being blocked have a nice day.

Actually, over 300 uploads.. I'm not sure how many downloads, probably could look at the access logs and check though.

While others may go down..
While others may be easily dumped..
We'll stay up, and free, and ad-less for you!

(Ad-less for now at least.. hopefully i'll never have to resort to ads ever..)

Kye - October 17, 2013, 10:05 am

Thank you for this. Was looking for a small file uploader with a direct download. :) have you moved to 5mb?

Lysandre - October 17, 2013, 11:20 am

(Oct 17, 2013 10:05 AM)Kye Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) have you moved to 5mb?

Not yet, nobody at all has asked for any upload limit increase, seems everyone's been fine with the 2mb limit.

drewkasp - November 6, 2013, 4:24 pm

this uploader is way out of this world, i hope it stays so, maybe you could ask for donations instead of putting up ads.

I'm only asking cause I obviously don't wanna get banned haha, it's going to be a fairly obvious answer, but does this distribute to AV companies?:)

deadlyarrow - November 12, 2013, 6:18 pm

Cheers for that can he really helpful to transfer few files!

fdigl - November 12, 2013, 8:26 pm

Set up a redirect using freedns.afraid.org so I didn't have to remember the IP. I don't own anything, nor does anyone gain from this link.

hoast.zone-it.com (link survival not guaranteed over time)
