Thread: ### How to change the signal bars to numbers on any iPhone, No Jailbreak ###

Do you want to change this

To This?

I found a way to change the signal bars on your iPhone to numbers.
Most of you are probably aware of this already, but i thought I'd share it anyways for those who don't know.

1. From springboard, Press on the Phone button.
2. From the Phone App type in 3001#12345# and press call.
3. You should see Field Test, this is where you start.
4. In the top left you should see the numbers, now hold the power button until the slider appears. Then immediately after the slider appears hold the home button until the app completely terminates to the home screen.

- 5.The result should be this!

How To Change Back To Bars

- 1.To shut off the numbers and put the signal bar back on, open the field test app from the phone again.
- 2.Tap the signal numbers at the top left and exit the app.

Nice tutorial, even though this was pretty well known for a while... Good to see it works with iOS 7 though.

It's iOS 7 beta, not a theme Han Brosolo.

What's considered good/bad reception with the numbers?

The higher the better, for example -50 is better than -100.

Good to know there's an iOS equivalent of the ###INFO### menu in Android. Thanks OP
