You can do as many views as your computer can handle, I've tried it on 1Gb/s servers and I've managed to several thousand. :)

You can have multiple copies open at one time and you can run it on multiple computers.

wasn't actually referring to this bot, but anyways, but my question is, does all the connections connect via your ip?

There are two options, you can connect all from your IP (which is still fully undetected, I've done it up to 8,000 viewers) and there is also an option to use SOCKS proxies.

It's account based, so you can run it on any number of computers, even at once.

Vouch, Good software, I use this on my RDP.

I wanted viewers on my LoL stream because its really hard to get noticed.

I started with 350 FAKE viewers, and I ended up climbing up to 650 so I had 300 real viewers in a few hours! Had 100 people in the chat and got 40 followers from 1 stream!

Currently experimenting with something like this. You would provide an account list and it would connect them to the chat.

I haven't got it working yet but eventually you might see this added to the bot, and maybe even some more features like follow bot. ?

Taiwo1 - August 27, 2013, 4:48 pm

Yes, that would be how I would do it. You would provide a username:password formatted list.

I don't think I would add an account creator, I might try it though. We'll see!

Major Vouch from me, Tested this while a friend was raiding, on a 24 down 3 up connection I had 150 running with net limiter capping it at about half my speed.

Only issue I seen was few Instates of the connections would die off while watching after a while. Not sure why this was going on, possibly limiting network to much but still. 100% legit got back to me very fast after payment.

Also with a 24/3 Line what would you Recommend I cap at? With High views?

Jetrager12345 - August 27, 2013, 11:00 pm

what kind of internet speed you need to get over 1000 viewers, like many thousand?

I have 65mbps down now.. and can push about 700 viewers alone.. just one pc and 65mbps. Is that normal or should i be able to go higher??

700 is pretty damn good for 65Mbps. If you want to go higher you might want to try running it on a remote server. (VPS, dedicated, RDP from HF etc) cURL makes queries to twitch, it shouldn't be capped and it shouldn't ever use too much bandwidth. You can safely ignore it in NetLimiter.

I generally recommend limiting to 90% of your internet connection to make the most of the program.

Really like the program, the only part that I don't like is that the chat is usually so awkwardly silent :D

Hope someone will make a bot like this:

Person makes fake twitch accounts, inserts them into the bot.

The bot has a text file for each account, and will post these randomly now and then. :D

Just tried the software works great!! nice and easy to use interface low ram and cpu and reasonable bandwidth usage! Top stuff!! A++

Note:- to anyone who buys this don't go jacking your streams upto thousands of viewers consistently or you'll ruin the bot for everyone. Once you get enough fake viewers than you should get real viewers and not have to relay on the bot all the time.

Note:- the exe does show up as a virus on my main pc so I just used it on a spare pc to be safe. Naturally a bot like this and the way it operates is going to show up as a virus anyway but just letting people know. That said this software is awesome and works as intended.

That's good for that connection. If you want to go higher you're going to have to run it on a VPS/RDP/Dedicated Server/another computer on another network.

It's a good idea to run it on another computer & network anyway. If your streaming from the same ip that your spamming views chances of getting banned are alot higher.

It's still working on my end. Tried it on three different servers and asked a bunch of people who purchased to see if it's working.

You might want to check if you can still watch Twitch streams on your server via the browser.

Otherwise, check the usual suspects. Firewall, anti-virus, make sure you're not limiting too much, try on another computer etc.

I was using only 90ish bottled viewers when i streamed while i was using VPN, and i got banned after like a week of use. Just a warning... I always had other viewers in chat and talking too, no one suspected. Looks like this is getting a little too popular. One of the reason why i purchased was because the creator said the sales would be limited.

Be patient, I think he's asleep right now.

No, I don't think if you did 50 viewers you would get banned. There have only be two or so reports of people being banned and I don't have enough information on it to make any educated guesses as to what the cause could've been.

I hear the old bot was instant ban or something so maybe they used that? I can't say, all I know is that noone else has told me of bans and they use it pretty much every time they stream and most don't use proxies.

The next update will have more refined proxy support though.

yes, from using only 70-90 botted viewers, and i had people in my list and returning viewers that kept chat alive. I used proxy as well, i made sure and checked for unique viewers. Used it for like a week and half before getting shut down. I can't stream anymore, and i can't type in chat ive been globally banned.

To anyone who is complaining about it freezing;

- It can be caused by a number of things, posting on the thread won't help me to resolve it for you. The fastest way is via PM.

- You may be running other processes that is causing StreamBot2 to freeze.

- Something could be wrong with your bandwidth.

- Not everyone's computer/network can handle the same amount of viewers. Using a server is highly recommended.

PM me if you'd like some more individual help. ?

Hey guys,

Sorry there hasn't been an update in a long time - school started again recently and I haven't had much time to work on the program. Posting a little update here for anyone who is interested in project progress 'cause it ain't dead! :P

Here's the current state of things.

The latest public release is v2.3 and it's old - there are a few issues with it but overall the program is pretty stable. I've noticed recently some people are reporting freezes and such which I'm assuming is down to Twitch taking a long time to respond to queries, still a problem though.

I've been working on v2.4 for a few weeks now, the overall response has been highly positive. I've seen some people use a few EC2 servers and get 10,000 views with it - and personally I've tried it a lot myself and it's far superior to v2.3. This version is a complete rewrite, I found myself struggling to update the code and add new features in the previous version because of the user interface design limitations or something else. Unfortunately, if you liked the current interface - it has changed significantly, However - it's more practical now which is all that matters.

v2.4 is fully multi-threaded, views can be added with up to 50 threads at a time. It won't take you 10 minutes to add 100 views now - you can do it in 10 seconds. Of course, you might want to make it look more legitimate - that's where NaturalViewer is used. More importantly though, I think people will really like the chat bot. At the moment, you can import a list of accounts and they can join any amount of channels you specify. You can tick a few accounts and make them join one channel, tick a few others and make them join another channel. Once they're in a channel, they appear in a list where you can double-click the user and they'll send a message to that channel. The implementation is pretty solid, but it needs some more work too. I plan on adding auto-pilot to the bot as well - so that chat messages can be automatically sent to channels while you have the program running in the background.

Anyway, thanks to anyone who has purchased the program. I hope you're enjoying it, things are about to get a lot better.

I hope I can work on it a lot this weekend and release a new teaser video while testing is under way. ?

Live viewers. That's the objective. And in return, you gain MANY more REAL followers and so on. ?

Linkin Park - October 7, 2013, 3:45 pm

I vouch for this being a legit program, that works really well. Just a note though, I have a pretty beast machine, and my internet connection is top notch, but you will get noticeable lag if you are streaming, and are creating loads of viewers. If you really are going for high numbers, a VPS is recommended. Just remember to be sensible and start from the bottom and work your way up. It took me a few weeks to hit 1k legit followers.

I would really like to see an account creator, with a possible auto subscribe feature. However I know this would be somewhat time consuming, and isn't currently in your best interests, but I'm very sure it would be an attractive feature to new customers. A feature like that would have convinced me to buy earlier in all honesty. But that aside, keep up the good work with the program! :)

For example, the other "bot" for viewing was all over YouTube, every single "hacker" forum known to man, everyone knew about it even Twitch posted about it officially on their forums.

Shadiku took down the migrate page, so we need to wait for his response when he's online.

Posting in this thread so I can find it later on encase I need it. Looks very promising.

This bot should work, I tried it just then. Great work!

WienerNips - December 26, 2013, 6:07 pm

Just bought it and it works. I get hundreds of viewers on my home computer!

FisKer - December 26, 2013, 6:15 pm

I am very much interested in this bot but i hve some questions.

1. How much viewers will i get if i run from my PC? And if I am also streaming from that PC?
2. What if i run from RDP? Will it work good and how many viewers?
3. Is there any automated chat or we have to chat manually all the time .

4. Will i be able to get the twitch partnership with this?

garrit1222 - December 26, 2013, 6:18 pm

does this cost 50$ or is there a 15$ package?

1. Depends on the specs of your PC and network.
2. Depends on the specs of the RDP.
3. Chat is manual, currently.
4. Yes.

All these questions and more are answered on our forums. There you can ask any more that you may have.

is it down? its not working for me..

HerrGee - December 27, 2013, 5:41 pm

yep, site is down.. cant even login to the bot :P

Shadiku - December 27, 2013, 6:46 pm

Had to restore from a backup and move host, took around 15 minutes. The site is back up but your DNS might still be cached for the old IP.

Nath - December 27, 2013, 7:50 pm

Wanted to buy buy never received a confirmation email from the forum :(

Edit: Nvm monthly has gone up to $20 i'll pass.

Shadiku - December 28, 2013, 4:38 am

There is no monthly anymore, only lifetime.

Fixed the mail server though.

Nath - December 28, 2013, 4:52 am

:(bring back monthly.

It's something I can see myself buying lifetime for but I personally wouldn't want to spend $50 straight off the bat. With products like this I normally get a month to test then move over to the lifetime if I like it.

Anyway GLWS it seems like a great program, drop me a PM if monthly ever comes back.

Squidward - December 28, 2013, 3:16 pm

VIP Lifetime is now only $30 through me!

Bitcoin now accepted as well. ?

D4rk0 - December 29, 2013, 1:36 pm

I have just bought this product. Looking forward to it!

Many people have gotten partnered with the help of the program, which is it's intended purpose essentially. Not to view ads (if that's what you meant?)... And its "anonymous" due to the use of proxies, so no.
