.NET Streamer

by TRANSLU6DE & Mavamaarten~ [Video:
<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=c-siBv7isEI&feature=youtu.be>]

About

.NET Streamer enables you to watch your favorite TV shows on your PC and get updates on the latest episodes, so that you don't miss any of them. With a stylish look and a user-friendly layout, it enables you to avoid having to search for a new episode or waiting for it to be broadcasted on TV.

Watch new episodes of various series

It displays a list of the available series and TV shows within its main window, showing you which ones have been recently updated and a short description about the plot of each show. It grabs data from watchseries.biz and if this website is offline, the application will trigger an error message and fail to load the video list.

In order to add a new show to your playlist, you must simply double-click on it. .NET Streamer retrieves the episode list and displays it in tree-view, for easier navigation.

Integrated player with full-screen support

Relying on the power of the popular VLC, the integrated player can stream the selected episode, enabling you to watch it in the comfort of your PC. It features play and pause commands, while also allowing fast forwarding to jump to a specific moment. In the attempt to enhance your experience, .NET Streamer supports full-screen viewing and picture-in-picture mode.

Subtitle downloading and syncing

.NET Streamer includes options for assigning subtitle files to the playing video, enabling you to load a locally stored SRT files and synchronize it with the video. You can easily customize the font and color of the text according to your preferences. It also features a built-in subtitle downloading tool that you can use to search for and grab SRT files from the Internet.

Enjoy your favorite TV shows and series

Designed for anyone who enjoys watching series, .NET Streamer can be of use in getting access to the latest episodes. Finally, it provides satisfactory buffering speed and enables you to watch your favorite episodes within a modern-looking interface.

Rayquaza™ - August 23, 2013, 12:24 pm

Any TV show on the internet? So basically anything that exists then?

Weakky. - August 23, 2013, 12:26 pm

Read the title and read the thread again. It is written "almost any TV Show".

Malcolm???????????????? - August 23, 2013, 1:12 pm

Vouch, thanks for this great release :)

Ashlanfox - August 23, 2013, 1:40 pm

Oh my god, I saw it on your channel a few months ago but you said the project was down..
I'm so happy you finally release it!

Taking a look now thanks a lot guys.

edit: just tested it, works like a charm! It's so amazing :O

Pristine - August 23, 2013, 1:43 pm

Going to try this out for sure, i love mentalist!

Well, again, good job guys, excellent software

iVision - August 23, 2013, 4:23 pm

Some 'bugs':

Spamming the first node pops up a message: There's no episode available.
When the episode is not loaded yet and you spam the start button the Theme crashes I think?
(Arithmetic overflow)
Loading a show is quite slow, probably its the host.

To maarten: alles goed, die 'gradient' (geen idee hoe dat heet..) van licht naar donker, zie je echt de overgang van strepen van 1 cm (als een slechte kwaliteit plaatje op een hd scherm). Verder vind ik het thema gaaf (wat je misschien nog wist van een ander programma) maar als je twee forums/dialogs open hebt, ik weet niet maar het is niet echt wat.. Misschien als je de form die op de achtergrond staat donkerer maakt of iets. Nouja dit is denk ik gewoon mijn mening dat ik het niet mooi vind.. :P Nog wel een foutje trouwens de form kan te veel shrinken:

[img]http://www.lensert.com/at.png[/img]

Nog succes er mee! (als je deze thread niet leest faal ik..)

Translation: just some little stuff about the theme in Dutch.

Cool program, how did you stream the videos? (Just in some keywords :P)

Good luck further developing!

Sajuuk - August 23, 2013, 4:25 pm

I thought this was an English-only forum. ?

TheVBNetwork - August 23, 2013, 4:55 pm

What site does this use to get the videos?

Evident - August 23, 2013, 6:09 pm

I remember when this first came out, it was not threaded and only had one video host.

Then, the major updated release came out and I thought it was so cool, however it stopped working a few days later (because as you said before the sites all got shut down or something like that).

I was wondering why or when it would be updated, and I hoped it would because it is such a unique release.

Congratulations on the new release, it's a very HQ application.

Good job TRANSLU6DE & Mavamaarten~.

TrackPro+ - August 23, 2013, 6:31 pm

I remember using this once to watch Everybody Hates Chris, xD!

Thanks for letting me know about the little bugs. I don't really understand what you mean with the 1 cm stripes, I'm not really experiencing anything like that. Setting the MinimumSize is a good idea and so is making the form a little darker.

HyperCloud - August 24, 2013, 6:02 am

It's quite nice really. But when you switch episodes the program stops working.

pow3rful_UP - August 24, 2013, 6:44 am

It looks awesome and is an awesome idea, but it is very laggy and could need some multi threading so the controls dont freeze...

calvv - August 24, 2013, 6:47 am

Looks awesome, gonna use this to watch the last episodes in the walking dead

King of Clubs - August 24, 2013, 7:37 am

It's not that you. I was just messing around with the program and when i was searching for "Lost" which is a very popular series the program gives me "lost Girls" for some reason. There is no way for me to actually search for my own. Seems a bit weird.

Yeah man, just realized that Lost wasn't available on watchseries.. That's really odd, sorry ?

Uh, why does it freeze then whenever you search for a tv show (like the mentalist) and select one episode? It freezes like 5-10 seconds then loads the video...

But in that time the gui is not responding..

Mr smith, i was to forms way before the guy you bought your first crypter from, i assure you that.

How do you want to leech a source? Seriously? You make some changes and then release it as your own, but then people view the source and see that its based off of this source.

Also, there is no point in leeching since you cant get anything out of this..

Weakky. - August 24, 2013, 12:04 pm

Nothing streams for me through the program. When I try to watch the series online it says I need to download some FLV player which I have already done twice yet it still forces me to download it. I also try to play the flv through the flv player by putting in the link, yet it says it can't do it due to some crossdomain

You don't need a FLV player but the codec, read the first post carefully there is a link to download that will install this codec.

Looks nice the new design, going to test it tomorrow. Just in case someone reads this before I try; how are the search results displayed, the same as the previous version? (Talked about this with maarten, wondering what he did.)

What kind of bugs existed? (Except the ones I've reported, just wanting to help you testing. Knowing previous bugs can help find new bugs.)

Last question is the UI freeze already fixed?

Goood work!;)

Vizual X - August 24, 2013, 7:33 pm

Well just a random guess but I don't think WMP doesn't work when you have multiple codecs installed.

I suggest uninstall all codecs, reboot and install the one linked in the thread.

To webb: you get an ACCESS_DENIED so you probably need to run it as administrator.

To panda: its a custom control made by mavamaarten using GDI+.

1. Are you sure you have installed the codec pack and can play .flv streams correctly?
2. Try changing the streaming site in the preferences. You'll need to try out different services, some will keep on connecting like they probably do for you now. That is an issue with the websites we're streaming from and not with our program.

Hey, so I found a bug (not performance changing at all, kind of just an aesthetic) in which the minimize, maximize, and close button aero effect is still visible under the theme which if I am correct is an image right? I think I remember Mava saying he did that for his VK Search, and it's the same style. Anyways, just thought I should point it out as a 'bug'.

Hey, just a suggestion. For the search field, you should try making it so that more then one series can be fetched with the corresponding name. For example, if I wanted to watch the show called LOST by ABC, and I try inputting it into the search field, all I get is Lost Girl.

Just an idea so that multiple shows with the same keywords can be listed.

SUGGESTION

Hello there first of all i wanna thank you for sharing this with us (watched some episodes of prison break now :L)

Any how, I have some suggestions (you have probably already thought about this)

My suggestions was to add the "time bar" and such when the streamer is in full screen, but it shall only be visible for like 3 sec after you have moved you mouse cursor (Like in VLC player)

And then a feature which I think all of us would agree on, Hiding the cursor after x sec.

The Play/Pause function is already handled by hitting the space key. However, we already thought of that, and i'll implement it soon.

Hm ?

The Play/Pause function is already handled by hitting the space key. However, we already thought of that, and i'll implement it soon.

Can you make enter key to be able to play/pause too, this is important to me if you don't mind please, or add an option for it or something please. Also make the arrow keys, up and down control the volume, while left and right would go back or forward for few seconds, instantly like in MPC (media player classic, CCCP codecs, much better than VLC). And regarding the time bar you should do it like in netflix, when you move your mouse, the time bar would be shown for few seconds and then disappear together with the cursor. OR when you move the cursor and touch the borders of the screen the timebar would disappear instantly together with the cursor, same as on netflix.

This shouldn't take you mroe than 1-2 hours to make. By the way, you don't provide source code do you, so that people could customize it for themselves? Maybe there's an open source project you used to help you or something that I could start off with, since there are so many customizations I would like to make for my personal needs but I don't have the time for coding it all from the beginning, especially since it would reinventing the bicycle.

Weakky. - September 6, 2013, 11:05 am

I'll implement the arrows shortcut, but not the enter one, space is enough.

If you had read above, you'd see that I already said that i'll implement the timebar soon.

Regarding the source, it is private and it'll stay forever. Thanks for all the suggestions sir.

Miyata - September 6, 2013, 11:14 am

If you would read my post, you would understand that I was reffering to how it should be functioning for the best user interaction, not to just fucking implement it.

And is it really so hard to implement enter? You are not even using it for anything else. Netflix has both space and enter, so what's your problem with it? You could include an option or something, I don't see why you are so stuck up about it. Its not like this is a private player for you, otherwise you wouldn't be sharing it, and you are sharing meaning you are providing for the community so you could accept the advice you are given by someone who wants to use your tool, not just reject it without any reason at all, except "its enough", since then you should just keep the player to yourself if you won't even listen to the people's advices. I used many players, and shared the few small things which could change the user experience from the complete horrible one to an amazing one. I didn't even ask you to compromise and instead of using enter for something else to do this, its unused button as far as I am aware, so why not just do it, why be so stuck up about it? Like I said if it would be a player FOR YOU I would perfectly understand, but when its for people, for users here, with different taste and preferences, including an option which takes <1min to code and doesn't include sacrificing anything, only gives one more benefit to your player you should do it. Thanks for reading.

Ok so i have tried this apps a few weeks back and never worked so had a check up today and noticed you have added a codex so installed that and now the apps is working. I have found it laggy once you click play on a video. Also once i pick a video it will add all the sessions to the left. I then move to a new video and then that one gets added. So ill try and explain better i clicked on supernatural all session got added to the left i watched session 1 and then moved to watch futurama but all 8 sessions of supernatural was still there.. So i had futurama and supernatural in the left box. If i was to watch 100's of different things the text box would be way to fill..

Uh. You're going to calm the fuck down to start first. Then, you're not "people", you're one, and only one person. And you are actually the only one who has been asking me for that until now. If netflix is that good for you, then go for it, i am for no reason, forced to accept your suggestions. If you want an application perfectly as you want, then make it yourself. Now please, stop crying as a child for a shitty shortcut. Our goal isn't to imitate others. Netflix is netflix, we are what we are. Dialog closed. Again, thanks for your suggestions.

I have allowed it in my firewall and everything. How do I fix that? You can try out setting the streaming service manually, try them until you find one that streams properly. I have the same issue, for breaking bad DaClips seems to be working fine.

Are you sure that you installed the codec pack man ?

Sir, if you would like to hit me up on Skype: jonte.dez I have a proposition for you. It involves the adding of an API that tracks the TV shows you've watched and what you need to watch. I could help you accomplish that.

By the way, I fixed the problem. I hadn't configured the codec correctly.

Some minor bug: (not in state to explain my self, but want to help to this great work.)

- when maximized. if i go back to the top series from a show, the panel seem to have a size premade. it don't get all the height. same when i select a show then. (have to maximize after selecting a show.)
- if i open the preference and pass in the panel of the top series the preference form 'disapear' (the main form get the focus).
- some times i select the series to show and for 40min it's all black. (havn't tried to select an other streaming link).
- full screen (not really fullscreen, my bar is at the right ,more like you used screen.workarea)(double click to enter fullscreen, esc to escape fullscreen (can you put the double click again to escape.), nice one for the mouse who disapear now.)
- stop responding when have a low connection or internet is low.
- after the last update, i have a message box always appearing after seiling a episode, form visible continue.

(nice choice for the treeview.)

(sugestion) you could also add an back and next button smaller than ther other two on the top of them, near the play/pause.

Great work, keep it going, add publicity somewhere to gain money with it. Like(office or others. ads who do not interfere.) or a donative option at the preference form.

Hi man, thanks for reporting/suggesting all that things, it really helps you getting that shit better, so really, thank you.

Regarding the part of making gain from it, i've never made any profit for any of my application, so I'm not really apart of that world. By the way, if someone would like to help us monetizing the application without interfering with the quality of it, do not hesitate to PM me.

To all the others, as always, thanks for your feedback.

Envyous - September 10, 2013, 9:16 pm

Works pretty good.. except:

- When clicking an episode/movie that doesn't load/fails and then attempting to exit or load another episode results in crashing.

- Have to exit application and reopen to watch the next episode/movie otherwise freezes up!.

- A buffer Percentage would be great to indicate how long you have to sit around for!

- Also when in full screen, theres no option to get out of it if you do not have your keyboard with you (hooked up to tv)

Apart from that. Brilliant!

About the publicity what i do is (i have not found any thread about this) a webbrowser somewhere who do not disturb, a site(ours) with all the pages some publicity of the size what you can show on the form, (and some ads where you win money for showing the pop up, without showing the scroll bar.), and wich with some javascript you change the page all the 4 minutes , without the show script errors of the webbrowser.

I was subscribe to a website where you can search all of the many publicity to shows, faster to change and to earn. just one website.

But well my programs never had such audience. (so better ask or search someone who know this very better than me. sorry can no help other than this.)

Well great work one more time :) will try to share when i found some bugs.

I know about that bud, but the fact is that WMP doesn't buffer when it is in pause, and because of that, we can't do much about it. Moreover, as far as I know, the component doesn't allow us to pause when it buffers. Sorry.

This happened to me the other day, but it wasn't instant. The 'update available' form showed and if I let it just sit there then the app went unresponsive and eventually crashed. If you select update as soon as that form appears you should be able to get into the actual app.

The first component used by net streamer was VLC. But almost all the users complained that they were having an issue because they did not registered the VLC dll's, even installing VLC itself. Thus, I decided to use the WMP com, even if VLC has a better one.

Evident - October 15, 2013, 6:12 pm

Hey TRANSLU6DE, just thought I would bring up two bugs that are present at least on my end with the new version (2.4.0.1).

The first one is new to this version in which on startup the debug screen appears describing an invalid parameter as seen in the image below. This I feel is referencing to the favorites function as they are cleared at each startup.

As well, this bug I have seen since around the version 2.3.0.0 when favorites were added. It is an odd rendering from within the favorites tab which only seems to appear when clicking on the favorites tab and not moving the cursor over the window. You can see it in the picture below.

As I have been doing since the reboot of this project, I shall continue to look for any more possible bugs, and as always would like to congratulate yourself and Mava on this project and its success.

Thanks for reporting all this man, it really helps me improving the app. The invalid parameter at the start is pretty odd, as no one reported me that in the past.

Did it come only in the last update ? Cause I didn't touch anything about that control. Regarding the favorites tab, I did know that bug, it doesn't seem to invalidate correctly, I'll see what I can do. Again, thanks.

Yeah, this is another thing I already noticed too. The fact is that it only happens on W7, and works perfectly for me on W8. Because of that, I'm not able to reproduce the issue, as there's absolutely no errors or anything, it just doesn't seem to respond. I'll try to work on it anyway. Thanks.

As Earth stated above, this is probably due to the fact that you did not install the VLC codec pack linked on dotnetstreamer.com :)

Update Available: 2.4.0.2

[img]<http://screenshotr.us/images/66590907.png>[/img]

I'm now using XML Serialization as I should have done from the beginning.

I'll add the application's settings into that XML on the next update.

In order to be sure that list are loaded properly, I'm now downloading the TopSeries and NewSeries shows consecutively. Thus, it may be longer to load, but the result is much better.

Back for my daily bug report.

So I have no idea why, but I updated to v.2.4.0.3 and at the end of the installation and at each startup I get the following error.

As well, for the past 15 minutes the program has hung like this.

It is responding, however the bar rendering at the top occurs and nothing is loading. I am able to click on the other options and load the preferences and everything, however no actual content is being shown.

I have a fully connected internet connection during this time as well, and what might have been helpful before are my specs.

I'm running on Windows 7 Home Premium, 64 bit

Update Available: 2.4.0.6

[img]http://screenshotr.us/images/46154942.png[/img]

- All settings are now XML Serialized
- Added ability to automatically download subtitle
- Fixed Movshare hoster (wasn't working anymore)
- Improved a lot the function to get videos link. It is now much more stable.
- XML Serialization error should be now definitely fixed. I hope so at least.
- Many other bugfixes.

Futur update: Add a dropdownmenu on the search function to avoid wrong show name query.

Weakky. - October 26, 2013, 2:48 am

How long will I need to say that I WON'T add any other streaming service, for three main reasons:

- There's too much work to do, and this project is slowly starting to be boring. Fixing errors isn't the fun part of coding.
- I am now working alone on it, as Mava is most of the time busy.
- I do not earn anything with it, and thus, my only motivation is the pleasure of coding.

Change the streaming service and then sell it or give out the source code for free, would be my advice. Also, I'm sure #.com would like something like this, that might be worth a try.

What does 'Apart from the quality' means man ? Are you talking about the episode quality ? You can not expect to have a 720p quality on every episodes.

Oh yeah, giving the source code of months of work to a shitload of leechers that are simply going to release it as an other name is a nice idea.

Mava already made something for # that he did not release.

If # wants an application, they're widely able to code it themselves.

And finally, why people would pay for something that you can find free on the web ? Nobody. Just my two cents.

Well, I'm definitely aware of that, the fact is that I can't do much 'bout it.

The UI seems to freeze when I start streaming videos with the WMP component. As I can't run the component on a separate thread, my only solution would be to use something else than WMP, like VLC or something, but i'm still stuck at programatically registering the DLL's for it. Therefore, I can't resolve the problem atm.

However, if you notice anything else that having the UI frozen when you load an episode, please report it.

(Dec 14, 2013 05:29 AM)TRANSLU6DE Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well, I'm definitely aware of that, the fact is that I can't do much 'bout it.

The UI seems to freeze when I start streaming videos with the WMP component. As I can't run the component on a separate thread, my only solution would be to use something else than WMP, like VLC or something, but i'm still stuck at programatically registering the DLL's for it. Therefore, I can't resolve the problem atm.

However, if you notice anything else that having the UI frozen when you load an episode, please report it.

About this issue, it's quite likely you have looked into it already, but maybe ffmpeg would do a better job ? But then again, you might encounter the same issue.

Like I already said like twenty times, NO I won't make net streamer use another website. It's like starting everything from the beginning, and I'm starting to become bored of that project.

This is a very decent program :) Been using it since I started watching series lately, and it works very well! Loving how easy it is to get subtitles. And it has a lovely GUI ofcourse ;)

But am I blind or is there no way to exit the full screen mode once entered? And is it normal that full screen isn't really full screen, it doesn't go over my windows taskbar?

Hey man! I just decided not to put a button to exit the full screen (just to keep the GUI really light), and preferred to only set a shortcut. Just hit Escape to Enter/Leave the fullscreen mode.

Regarding the fullscreen issue, not it's not normal, it should normally go over your taskbar, actually, nobody ever reported that since.

I'll work again on that function anyway, cause I'm using the same since the beginning, and its completely messy.

Thanks for the compliments!

Very Nice, I'll be using this in my project and also to watch ;P

zyvox - December 27, 2013, 9:26 am

Holy shit, this is fucking amazing.

Edit: The ONLY thing that could be changed is making the fullscreen view a little more visible. I spent a 3 minutes looking for it. Now that I know where it is it's alright though, but I think you should add a button for it next to the other player controls.

Nevertheless, amazing work! I will be using this.

I just downloaded, its a very good program, very useful. Monetize the shit out of it there is money to be made from this. Introduce ads like YouTube.

I know I commented previously, but I've been using your application since I downloaded it. I do have one bug, every time I load it up it tells me 'unable to load shows', but yet when I search it plays anything fine. Also, 360 Internet Security found some malware when I ran it off my USB. But other than that its brilliant! Any chance of making the player go fullscreen? Or is there a way to do that which I don't know about?

Well guys, the app definitely requires an update atm. If the top series tab doesn't work anymore, it is just that the top series tab from watchseries.biz has been removed. HOWEVER, the new series

AND the favorites tab are still perfectly working. I'm gonna remove the top series tab for the moment. Regarding the fullscreen, go on the video tab > Click fullscreen, or simply hit escape to go/leave the fullscreen mode.

Finally, if it doesn't load any video, for the 18372819th time, INSTALL THE DAMN CODEC PACK. THE LINK IS ON THE THREAD.

PS: No, I won't share the source code.

Well guys, it's been a while that I did not work on dotnetstreamer. I got the motivation back a 2 days ago. Things have changed a lot IMO.

First, I can finally proudly say that it is not using the WMP component anymore. VLC's here, bringing a lot of stability to the app.

Second thing, (a huge thanks to Pathogenix who setup everything for me), the app is now completely self-deploying. With ClickOnce, it'll automatically install the .NET Framework 4.0, and I also implemented a quick system to automatically download, install, and register VLC's dll.

Third, I added two more hoster: Videoweed and Vidup. I also fixed putlocker, that has now changed to Firedrive. Becareful, videos uploaded on firedrive seem to be mostly be .MKV files (at least 1GB).

And finally, I fixed the main series panel, so you don't have the annoying message "Unable to load series" anymore.

As usual, just launch .NET Streamer and it'll make the update for you. Do not hesitate to report any bug you found, I'm sure there will be a few after all this changes. Cya guys.

Hey, so I am stuck in an infinite update loop. From the quick glimpses I am getting, it says updating to 3.0.0.6

I run the program from the installed shortcut in my start menu, and then the update window comes up saying "Installing update" it closes, and then immediately reopens, and then closes about a quarter of a second later doing this in a loop. It's not blocked by my firewall, I have a working internet connection, etc. (If fact turning off my internet has been the only way I have found to stop it)

Has anyone else experienced this? I'm going to uninstall and then reinstall it to see if that fixes it. I also have Windows 7 64-bit if that helps.

EDIT: uninstalling and then installing it again fixed the problem. Maybe the installer could uninstall the old version first then install the new one.

I just noticed you took my suggestion, Thanks for that!

Suggestion: Maybe you could add a button to some out of full screen/picture in picture. This is not necessary at all and you should add it if it does not clutter the UI

Bug: Cannot Add The "Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D" Program from the New Series tab.

Milking your idea? You're not some genius that was the first person that came up with this shit. Considering you needed help figuring out how to use a BGW with a control that already supports async operations, couldn't figure out how to Google some code to use different colors in a RichTextBox, and made one of the worst ways possible to replace letters \(ever heard of a dictionary, or, you know, not remaking a static list every time you need it?\), I'm going to say that even if you did think of this idea first (which you didn't), you're nowhere near skilled enough to create something a fraction as well-made as what Mava and TRANSLU6DE have done with .NET Streamer.

(Mar 8, 2014 04:58 PM)TheBarret Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How is "Streams almost any TV Shows" and "Completely free and without ads" a feature i wonder.....

"Streams almost any TV Shows" is actually the whole point of the app, so I do think that it is indeed a feature. Regarding the "Completely free and without ads", it refers to the amount of ads you always get trying to watch something in streaming. The app offers you a way to watch any TV shows without getting any annoying ads. I don't really understand what are the problems here man.

TheBarret - March 8, 2014, 4:08 pm

Options , functions...not "almost" a tv shows, thats not a feature or completely free and without ads?? thats not even in the same idea of functionality.... my problem is that you have false "features" , i call that nice words with no meaning.

Thats my problem.

Weakky - March 8, 2014, 4:18 pm

It's not written "almost a TV show" but "almost ANY TV show", because indeed I can not assure that you will find ALL existing shows. That'd not even be possible man. In my opinion, you're just playing with words. The video is enough explicit to understand the point of the app. It's not like I was selling the app. In a nutshell, it allows you to watch almost any TV shows, automatically synchronizing subtitles, without ads and for free. If you do not have anything else to say than criticizing the written features of the app, then you're not being useful in any point. Please, make constructive criticisms, because this honestly seems ridiculous to me.

Just a little suggestion (I haven't used it in about a week, so maybe you added this), but you should set it so that if you have a specific host set (like PutLocker) that ends up not having a link, you should display a dialog to say so, and then change to automatic temporarily to find a working link for that episode.

Weakky. - March 13, 2014, 5:11 pm

Alright guys, updated .ns again tonight!

Update log:

- Added ability to buffers video before they play. Go to the preferences and check it out :)
- Fixed the little notification that was showing before the video started
- Fixed some shows that wasn't loading at all for weird reasons (NCIS & Adventure Time especially, but there's others)
- As usual, other minor bugfixes.

The new option to configure how long you want the video to buffer before playing really change the whole app IMO. It doesn't pause ceaselessly anymore as is used to do sometimes, especially with HD video on Putlocker.

I allowed you to change between 1 and 60 seconds, tell me what you think about that. The buffering progress is therefore working properly as well :)

Last thing, I really apologize if you're still getting an infinite loop every time you make an update. I do not manage to reproduce that issue for the moment, i'll try to fix that as soon as possible guys. Meanwhile, just hit Alt + F4 if you get that infinite loop to close the processes. Sorry again.

Watchseries is back online again guys, sorry for the inconvenience.

EDIT: UPDATE: 3.0.2.2:

Well guys, from the beginning the subtitle parsing system was annoying for not being accurate sometimes. That's why I completely recoded it. It is now much more stable, optimized, and accurate when it comes to find the right subtitle when you go forward/backward. CPU usage is also reduced by almost 30% on bad cpu.

EDIT2: UPDATE: 3.0.2.5

- Worked a lot on the stability of the application. I've noticed a huge memory leak on the app, and fixed it. It now stays around ~60-100mb. Same goes for the CPU consuming, it's been decreased a lot again.
- Fixed VLC seek position issue. I'm now handling it with a Stopwatch to get precision. As the time wasn't updating properly, it was causing issues with subtitles as well.
- As usual, there's many other little bugfixes.

Just started checking this out and gotta say its pretty amazing. I do have a complaint though. I have multiple monitors and your window popups do not go to the monitor the main app is in. It is a simple fix :D.

Suggestions:

Maybe have some theme choices oh and let it run in the background and notify you when your favorite shows are available to watch and maybe even have an option to have a popup to show so if your away you will see it later.

Also is this open source?

Hey, thanks for the feedback.

I'll try to fix your issue ASAP man, thanks for letting me now. Regarding the notification system, an e-mail system would be better, otherwise it would force people to keep .NET Streamer always opened, and that's not an option I can consider. I could easily use an existing web service, but they would notificate the user on the real air date, whereas I want the notifications to be sent the day after they're released. This is going to be an issue, and I need to figure out how to solve it, because you're not the first one to ask me something like that.

I don't see the issue with it always being open? If it is because of system resources make a small checker that always runs. As long as people can choose to let it run all the time it shouldn't be an issue. Also it should check if a persons favorite show has a new episode once an hour IMO. Just have a popup that won't close until exited on the bottom right letting people know.

I don't think it is really hard considering google documents well, here is the sdk;

Do you really stream btw, or just setting the link to the vlc component and that will do all the fancy stuff?

Well, this is just not the most important feature I have to implement for now. Just my two cents though. Regarding the stream, yes I am just setting the link to the VLC component. There would be no point in making my own streaming system while there's such advanced and stable system like VLC.

First time I tryed this it didn't work a 5-6 months ago... Second time it worked but was buggy so wasn't really worth it 2-3 months ago.

Now I tryed for the third time and it works PERFECT, really you made a good job on this! There is only one thing I dislike which is the grey borderline on fullscreen it pisses me off, if it just were black, so it didn't draw so much attention. But really great work! Watching Friends right now :3 god I miss it from when I was teenager.

Edit: and the sub size not scaling correctly when in fullscreen, is also a little sad.

Man, you have no idea how this kind of messages are encouraging. I've been spending days trying to improve this project for more than a year now, and this is like a reward for me. Regarding the few issues you mentioned, I'll quickly fix the gray border soon. Nobody complained about it so far tbh :P. About the sub scaling system, I actually never implemented one. I might do it soon. As I always watch my shows in fullscreen, I just always keep the sub size to 48 pt, and it doesn't disturb me. It doesn't look pro tho. I'll work on that as well ASAP. Thanks for the suggestions. ?

SO i opened it just a few seconds ago and said it can not find a file and i need to update i updated and got stuck at 100% for 3 hours. I closed it nows its been removed from my desktop the download button on your site just says connecting.. Plz fix

Foxes - April 22, 2014, 7:44 pm

I forgot I had this installed and I saw this thread again so I just had to update my older version of vlc and this program and so far this is absolutely the best.

An episode of marvels agents of shield aired earlier about 2 1/2 hours ago and there's already a pretty HQ link for the episode.

The were only a few things that bother me, one is that you're unable to resize the program, I usually just pin the movie to one side while I do stuff on the other side.

Second problem is that I'd like to be able to watch movies without having them stopping every few seconds due to my poop connection being unable to buffer the video quick enough, What I'd like you to do is to add the ability to see how much of the show is ready to be viewed without interruption.

Also an extremely minor thing is that if you click a show or something it automatically adds it to the right sidebar and it just stays there until you restart the program.

Thank you for actually letting me be able to watch all of my favorite tv shows :) and sorry for just giving you more stuff to do :p

edit: just thought of some suggestions that might be extremely useful for others.

What about adding features like when a new episode is going to air kinda like this website does here's what mine looks like and when searching for a show it could take you to a synopsis of the show.

edit2: I kinda take back the first suggestion, it'd be sorta pointless as a show isn't always uploaded straight away, so it would fit a live stream of shows instead. As the name of the program suggests streaming shows hopefully in the future it could live stream the shows as well? obviously that could lead to some legal issues and what not but in this case it doesn't hurt to hope :)

Weakky. - April 23, 2014, 1:34 pm

Trans I know you said you'd do some stuff for multi-monitor so I just wanted to add to that list of

Can you check your PM please? I need to know your answer about what I asked ;)

Weakky. - April 29, 2014, 3:19 am

@Eeeeh. No, I actually added this a few updates ago. It allows you, depending on the node you click, to download either a single episode, a complete season, or a whole show. Everything is separated by folders, and all the subtitles available are directly downloaded.

The only reason I did not implemented it yet, is that due to the direct download hoster, our bandwidth is restricted A LOT. And I came up downloading episode @60kb/s. Which isn't possible.. :(

@Vysse. That's funny. I just dreamt about this tonight. At first I thought i'd have to detect whether the user had multiple screen, make a list of them and all that shit, but I got the solution in my dream, which requires to change something like.. 10 chars in the code :3. Silly me.

@fknhippie: Sorry, I forgot to answer you. I'll do it a bit later in the day.

- Added Picture-In-Picture mode back.
- Added a cross to exit fullscreen and PIP mode with mouse
- Now supports multi-screen.
- Better shortcut handling with global hooks.
- Other bugfixes

EDIT: Made another little update: 3.1.0.1

-Just discovered that the subtitle system were bugging if there were missing subtitles. So I made a little function that assure the subtitle integrity, and fill it if there are holes.

User is warned if subtitles are missing by the text "Missing subtitles" in italic. Enjoy guys!

Picture In Picture Mode with little cross drawn over the video to easily quit it. Same is available for fullscreen mode.

For me the cursor moves jittery when hovering over the images from the New Series tab.

Also the subtitles don't seem to sync perfectly, they're 10-30 seconds off. The Sync Subtitles tool doesn't really help, either.

The subtitles synchronyze themselves depending on how the writers synchronized them.

If there's an offset of 10-30 seconds, it just means that the subtitles were synchronized for another episode. The same episode, but maybe with a recap sequence. The SRT Synchronizer works nice as well, but isn't meant to resynchronized such offset. It's too hard to find the perfect offset when it's that large.

Therefore, if you enabled the automatic subtitle download system, reopen the download subtitle form, and try others available subtitles. If there's only one, then google the subtitle you're looking for, and load it through the Load SRT function.

Regarding the jittery mouse, that was because of the mouse hook. It is fixed now.

Anyway, thanks for taking the time to report things. It's the best way to contribute to the project.

Cammy - May 5, 2014, 4:21 pm

I'll try to get the subtitles working later, it must be a problem on my side then or else the subtitles themselves. If I don't succeed well too bad for me then :P

As for the mouse jitter fix I'm glad I could contribute to your project by reporting that.

I'm looking forward to future updates and eventually some new features!?

Perfect solution when it comes to streaming shows. I've been watching House M.D with this thing and it works like a charm.

My only notice is that on some episodes there is no blue bar in the VLC when selecting putlocker

Love and Peace - May 11, 2014, 11:04 am welcome :) my suggestion is when a tv show is done it goes to the next episode cause I get too lazy to stand up and click the next show and make it wait 2sec before playing cause the video freezes sometime

Weakky. - May 17, 2014, 6:59 am

UPDATED: 3.1.1.1

- Added buffering progressbar over the video
- Added pause symbol over the video as well
- Bug fixes

Screenshots:

Evident - May 17, 2014, 10:22 am

Nice addition with the circular progress bar for the buffering, as well as the overlay for the pause button.

Psychogenic - May 17, 2014, 9:30 pm

Vouch! Like Netflix, but better. GUI is great and it's so easy to use. Just what I was looking for. :D

Dangerous Beef - May 24, 2014, 4:17 am

I love this, thank you guys so much. Below are some feedback on the project.

Possible bugs:

VLC - If the video is paused for too long (5-10 mins) the video will stop streaming. I also have experience with this when streaming with uTorrent

Poor streaming in Norway (Tested with videoweed, movshare seems to work without the stream stopping)

Suggestions:

Double click video to go full screen.

Add a "Don't show again" button to the blue bar when you go to full screen, it's kind of annoying.

When the mouse cursor is over the volume bar, scrolling the mouse wheel will change the volume.

Shortcut to enable/disable subtitles.

The option of changing streaming service when the video is paused.

Edit:

I tested it with Putlocker and the quality increased and buffering speed increased as well.

You should only have to download the installer, as it automatically install VLC for you. If you have it installed, uninstall VLC Media Player and then try running the setup again.

It should normally detects if VLC is already installed and ask you to uninstall it, but yeah there could be some issues.

Zone Sirius - June 5, 2014, 6:31 am

It actually helped me when I got the error.

Solution as stated above:

Go uninstall VLC Media Player.

Download Net Streamer.

Let the setup download your VLC and enjoy .ns! :)

Josh? - June 6, 2014, 2:59 am

Fucking legit. Getting this as soon as I get home :D

Weakky. - June 6, 2014, 1:12 pm

Here are the latest updates guys:

Version 3.1.1.4 (Latest)

- Fixed XML serialization issue.
- Fixed buffering progressbar issue.
- Bugfixes.

Version 3.1.1.2

- Supports uncompleted subtitles file.
- Wrote the srt syncer again.
- Fixed subtitle issues.
- Improved overall stability.
- Bugfixes.

Screenshot: If you load up, for example, a half completed SRT file, it will fill all the missing subtitles with the time remaining before the next subtitle happens. It also prevents from all possible issues due to missing subtitles.

Brilliant user-friendly, especially features such as downloading things you need in order to run for you, without any extra user interaction - Something which most HF apps lack, awesome.

You guys still amaze me, how the hell can this thread still be alive after all this time, even when stopping to update it! We decided at the very beginning to keep it free. Not to mention that we could have some serious legal issues if we were about to make profit from it. That's why I never exported the app elsewhere than hackforums. Thanks anyway!

I have this error when I launch .Net Streamer :

Weakky. - November 26, 2014, 11:54 am

Alright guys, .net streamer has just undergone a major update! Watchseries became worse and worse these months, and I almost decided to gave up the project recently.

Nonetheless, I recently discovered a whole new website, thanks to Jagster™, which gave a complete new life to the application. Before you all ask, that new website is primewire.ag.

It is much more filled than watchseries.biz, and has a shitload of hosts on every episodes of every mada fucking shows, even those from 2001 (~30 hosts per shows).

So, how did I handled the new website? Well, the main interface is still the same. I kept watchseries.biz to inform you about the latest series update as it used to do. But then, all the requests are sent to the new website. Shows are a little longer to load, but then, once it buffered, it almost never buffers again, and that's awesome.

Feel free to ask any question, do not hesitate as well to report your issues, cause I basically had to recode a large part of the app. Btw, that website also support movies. Therefore, .ns is also gonna be supporting movies soon!

As usual, thanks for your support guys.

Well, this is a temporarily issue. I was so excited to implement the new API that I almost recoded the whole thing in one night. To solve it, just double click again when it tells you that there's no episode. Sometimes it doesn't find it the first time, I'm currently trying to figure out why.

EDIT: Wait, no. It looks like they just added a new protection. Wtf, they're fast :'(

EDIT2: Updated to 4.0.0.1:

Update log:

- Fixed major issues on all hosts. They weren't working anymore due to a protection added by primewire.
- Forcing users to update to latest VLC Version (2.1.5)
- Fixed several others issues
- Thevideo.me host isn't working anymore. We'll be again soon.
- Added some notifications on tv show loading/buffering/reconnecting(if errors) over the video..

That's already what i'm doing. The issue was due to a little check I made for debug purpose that was looking for the vlc exe, but I provided a direct path to test. Thing is, I forgot to remove that line later. However, that line appears above everything, so people who made the update can not update anymore as the exception is thrown before the app can do anything.

EDIT: Update: 4.0.0.3:

- NOW SUPPORTS MOVIES !!
- Added one more host (promptfile.com)
- Fixed several issues

For some reasons, the streaming stops sometimes for no reason. I coded a method to automatically restart the streaming, and set it at the same position you were. If it does happen, a message saying "VLC Error: Reconnecting" should appear ;

So sweet that you've updated this, and added so many of the new features! How long have you been working on this again, as in how long did it take to recode the core sections of DotNet Streamer?

Also, got some suggestions/bugs like always. SOOO..

For the installation of VLC Media Player, I know that I would benefit from being able to select the path for the install, as I run my OS on a separate SSD and all of my applications on a HDD. It's a little thing, but being able to have the option to change the path for the install would be nice.

And for a bug I found, I cannot mark an episode as watched or select one as not watched. I was able to reproduce this on multiple shows, after a reload of the program and a reinstall just for good measure. Amazing job Weakky like you've always done, im so happy to see this program coming back to life!

I'll fix the marker method, and i'm the one thanking you for using it, the project would've been abandoned long time ago without kind support like this. Have a nice day sir?

Btw, app was updated yesterday, I added a movies tab as requested. I'm using TheMovieDB to fetch the latest popular movies, so it's possible not to find the selected movie on primewire. Last but not least, I couldn't filter movies and tv shows on search, and I don't think it'll ever be possible in a reliable way :/..

Another bug report!

Date: December 15, 2014

Version: 4.0.0.4

Description: When no video link is found, the program is stuck in an infinite dialog loop. This problem is not able to be fixed until terminating the program.

How to Replicate: I've been able to replicate this by going under some shows that have an informal episode as a listing (like a promo or webisode). It can be recreated with the show "Sherlock". Under Season 1 select 'E0 - Unaired Pilot'. This will cause the loop since there is no link to that reference.

Possible Solution: A possible solution to this problem would be if there was no episode found using the automatic video stream option, display a dialog saying there is no link, and then end the request. If people are not using the automatic option, then a dialog could possibly be shown asking if they would like to try other services, where if the user selects to perform that option, the program would cycle through the remaining services ONCE, and if no link to that reference was found then end the request. If the user denies the option to search other sources, then it would end the request as well.

If you need any other information, please feel free to ask.

In this form, form name is the default one

And after i close .net streamer, clickonce process keeps open and i have to manually close it using task manager.

When it hit v4.0.0.0 back on November 26th. WatchSeries.Biz is still used for the new series system, however streaming is now handled by other websites as WatchSeries.Biz has become not reliable, and didn't have as many titles as the current ones, including movies!

According to all of the information that @Weakky. has decided to share with the public, that is the reason why it changed.

I invite you to visite watchseries.biz, and see how many links and hosts there are per episodes of show.. It's barely one. The site is now completely useless, and .net streamer was slowly dying because of the poor content ; I still have the class and could easily bring watchseries back but that would be useless as the website has no content anymore.

The program is actually really nice

Tedd - January 5, 2015, 12:54 pm

Never used this before, just opened it up a few minutes ago. Works good, found two bugs on accident, nothing crazy just a little technical bullshit..

When I clicked on "The Drop," I'm assuming it couldn't find it, and instead looked up the description on the bottom of the app for "Drop Dead Divas" (maybe the next result it found?) and did NOT add the drop to the left listview

When I pressed the next movie, "A Walk Among The Tombstones," it added it as a child of "Drop Dead Diva" (which suddenly appeared)

Other than that I mean it's a great app, it obviously works great. Haven't found anything else that works. Only suggestion would be a "check for updates"?? I didn't really read, I'm not sure if it automatically updates or what, but that would be nice.

Oh and one last thing, when I went to "New Series" I couldn't scroll all the way down? Again probably just some bs coding with the scrollbar/theme itself.

It's great to hear nice comments from members like you man, I do appreciate it.

Let's see your bugs: - Yes, it does automatically update. I implemented ClickOnce, so I can easily update the app from inside VS. It works like a charm.

Regarding your Movies issues. In fact, my system is kinda tricky. All the datas aren't grabbed from the same website.

The data from "New Series" is fetched on <http://www.watchseries.biz>

The data from "Movies" is grabbed from <https://www.themoviedb.org/>, a popular web API.

BUT, all the links, the movies, and the tv shows comes in fact from <http://www.primewire.ag>.

Those websites are just database informations to have the latest tv shows/movies, their title, and then, I just take the title and make a request to <http://www.primewire.ag>.

You might wanna ask, why the hell am I doing that? Well, because primewire.ag basically doesn't provide all that content. So, based on that, you gotta understand that I'm always taking the first answer from primewire.ag when I query from a title of the panel.

So if you take a look and search for "The Drop", see what comes out: (The results coming out of the dropdownlist COMES from primewire.ag)

[img]<http://screenshotr.us/images/98073490.png>[/img]

Yeah, first result: "Drop Dead Diva", which is what .net streamer returned you.

As for Quote:it added it as a child of "Drop Dead Diva" (which suddenly appeared)" No, it actually did not. If it did create a child of Drop Dead Dive, you would have to expand the node to see it. In fact, .net streamer was initially created for TV Shows, and only for that. The treeview control is PERFECT for this purpose, but when I could finally add movies to it recently, I didn't know how to handle it. So I just decided to add a single root node with the name of the film, so you'd have to click on it just as regular tv shows.

Finally: Quote:Oh and one last thing, when I went to "New Series" I couldn't scroll all the way down? Again probably just some bs coding with the scrollbar/theme itself. I always had trouble with the custom scrollbar we implemented with Mava long time ago. It seems I can't find a way to find a maximum value depending on the numbers of items I have. This is a known bug I can't solve on my own. The Maximum property can not be higher than 100 if I remember well, and I don't get the relationship between the height of my items, and the maximum value of my scrollbar :/.

I hope I answered all your questions man, if you're planning to use it quite often, I'd highly appreciate if you could report anything you find, that'd help me a lot. Anyway, have a nice day man ?

Oh no the app is great, and I didn't realize how useful it was. I had always loved the theme when you first created it, looked so fucking sleek. I would love to see your code behind it.

Honestly, I've viewed .NS thread probably 20-30 times myself, but only commented yesterday. It's not because the app or you, it's just because I don't usually download/use peoples shit here unless it's to help them fix an error or something. This is actually really useful though.

Oh yeah, that's really weird actually ; I tried to debug it and see what was happening, and I can't even tell you why the hell it's not working ; The link is properly grabbed, VLC tries to read it, start buffering, and then all of sudden, it just stops reading "EOF Reached". Maybe the files are corrupted, which is quite weird because it works perfectly when you try to stream it from the website itself

It doesn't stream for me. I bet that's because I am from UK and my ISP blocked primewire or w/e website you are using. Can't you check if the user is from UK and if he is use mirror links instead of direct ones?

Just let us paste a link in settings which the program should use. That way if one of links gets blocked we can just find working one ourselves and update it in the settings. It is same site, so it would work perfectly as long as we provide it in the correct format.

The one which works is primewire.unblocked.pw

Or when I go to primewire.org it redirects me to primewire.ag but everything still works. However if I try going to primewire.ag directly it says it is blocked by the ISP.

Well, I haven't been updating it since several months. The project is starting to become boring. I can't find a damn descent video player that won't take up to 1mn just to load the codecs and start buffering the video. I can't find some proper video hoster with some descent bandwidth either, and i'm starting to become tired of recoding half of the app to make it working with new websites, full of differents video hoster each time.

Maybe rebuild the core to rely on peer-to-peer instead of a central server? Sort of popcorn time but with TV shows instead. I reckon you of all people are experienced enough to take on a challenge like that.
