Thread: Ebooks to earn online money = true or false?

SIM-1947090 - August 28, 2013, 3:07 pm

Hello,

Lets get something straight,

This question is related to all people that sell ebooks on how to earn money online. (CPA,PPC,PPD and all similar sites and methods)

Why would a person that earns thousands of dollars per month sell ebooks around for poor 20dollars? (yes, THOUSANDS of dollars per month, as you all say that your unique method works 100% and you can actually earn that money).

If you earn those thousands per month, where is your love and humanity for the sake of poor people? Share your methods for free, anyways, those 20dollars is piece of shit compared to thousands of dollars per month, as you say.

No offense to anyone, im just curious big time. Period.

According to you, school is pointless as well right? Trial and error mate through life, if you end up in jail for being stupid, you ended up there yourself. Why does a teacher get payed? Do they promise you money/job yet you expect to have it but sadly you realize all you learned is just valuable and informative things to use later in life. Wasnt it nice when you asked a teacher how to do something you had no clue about? Now go back to your post and find a difference between a student and a teacher, and newbie with an eBook.

My point of view.

They sell it so they can earn extra money. And people buy the ebook they think they can make money without doing anything. But you need to work to earn money.

Thats exactly right,people buy a 10 dollars ebook and think they will get money pouring in without taking a couple days to set it up.They think while their playing LoL their PP accounts will get bigger

Exactly!

Teachers in school dont promise i will earn money on those things they teach me, but those people (ebooks sellers)do promise money earnings...Thats huge difference out there :(

Comparing to school situation:

Teachers/school do not promise you will get a job to earn money. They dont.

Ebooks sellers do promise methods to actually earn money. They do.

Then why the hell people go to college in order to have higher paying job? There's no difference at all.

You're paying them to teach you how to do a certain thing that will eventually end up with a high paying job. Otherwise you wouldnt even attend college, would you? That sounds like a promise to me.

I dont go in college to learn, i go in college to get diploma. And diploma is like personal ID nowadays, its not proof of your knowledge, but the process you had to pass. (Thats why i have never liked school/college, they barely teach you how to spell your own name, but fill your head with crap you will never use in real life situations.)

So, no, i dont pay them to teach me, i pay them to give me that piece of paper. (Now please dont say you do learn something in college lol)

And dont get me wrong, there are some colleges that actually do teach you, but 90% of schools and colleges do not teach you anything valuable.(Its a fact)

DAMN get told bro ! ?

I like how you said "find the difference between a student and a teacher, and newbie with an eBook"

I do agree as well. You forget to realize that he might be selling it for a mere small price because its probably knowledge that might be already out there.

If you're gonna state a fact, please back it up with sources, or else it'll just make you look even more ignorant.

I feel like people who sell the e-book fluff a lot of the more desirable details and hide the less desirable details but that is what a salesman does.

It might be to keep saturation away?

Sure, it's a measly $20, but on HF, that's 100 people that won't get it.

100 is a made up number.

Nice answer lol.

Im one of those 100 people ?

Though i bought one ebook last year, and believe it or not i still didnt try it! I dont know if it works or not hehe.

I will try it in short time probably, because im too busy right now.
