Thread: I made and published an iPhone app to the App Store!

iNeedHelpHacking - September 9, 2013, 7:55 am

My iPhone app, "Hustle: Timed To-Do List", was accepted by Apple yesterday! Hustle is a timed todo list with the goal of combating procrastination by urging you to finish your started tasks through a unique timer system. Hopefully my app can help you get your work/tasks/homework done!

I would extremely appreciate it if you could download it and give my app a good rating/review (5 stars) because it would really help me out! Also, please tell me what you think I should change/add. I will definitely implement popular suggestions. You can either click the Hustle iTunes Link to see it or you can search "hustle todo" on the Apple app store. Also, I am currently #5 on todo list search for iphone!

Never stop going for your goals! It may take a lot of effort and hard work, but you'll get there eventually!

One thing you can do with the app, is have it keep bothering you to do something like a pop up. And you can have 2 options. Click "do task later" or "I'm starting task now". Clicking the first means your going to get bothered about it in 5 min by the app more of the same popups. clicking "I'm starting task now", means the app checks on you in 20 to 30 min that your doing it.

I think for the next update I am going to put in a Nagging Mode that allows you to choose whether you want notifications every minute or so. Some super procrastinators need this :p.

What happened to your last thread about this?

iNeedHelpHacking - September 16, 2013, 10:44 pm

Thank you all for the support! I really appreciate it~

Well done! I really like the UI, judging from the screenshots.

I would download it myself if I had some sort of use for it, but I'm sure there are quite a few people out there that will.

But that would break Carrot's heart. :(

If I did that to Carrot, it would kill my cat. 3:

Good app. but one suggestion. (I am sorry if this had already been made) What is the motivation for them? The time? I don't think IMO that a big motivating factor, so maybe add points and stuff if you complete the task on time or something. that you can redeem towards virtual things. That IMO would be pretty damn cool. Hehe

Just a friendly suggestion though.

Nice app BTW!

iNeedHelpHacking - September 18, 2013, 5:57 pm

Thanks for the suggestions! By the way, I updated the app to iOS 7. you guys may wanna check it out again!

Nice app. What language did you write it in? How long did it take you to make the app? How long did it take you to learn how to make apps? How long did it take for them to accept it?

Sorry for all the question. Getting into ios development.

Objective-C language applied to the MVC (Model-View-Controller) design pattern of mobile apps.

2 months (including learning/breaks,etc, should have taken shorter)

2 months learning time I guess. I'm still a beginner.

Took them 9 days but thats because they were kind of busy at the time. Average is 4 days.

just by looking on the screenshot i love your ui im gonna download it now :)

In?sane? - September 19, 2013, 4:58 pm

Really nice app, could you convert it to iPad aswell? Want to have it on both my devices, also it would be cool to sync your list trough both devices.

.BangsOnly - September 19, 2013, 5:26 pm

Nice app good work dude keep it up ;D

Circular - September 19, 2013, 9:43 pm

Looks fantastic. I'll be downloading it on my 5S. Good luck!

You should add a paid version with more benefits, charge $.99, or just add ads to the free version to gain some revenue.

Nuk3 - September 19, 2013, 9:44 pm

It's free right?

I'll totally download it!
