PlexJDB vs Other Java Driveby Generators

Spoiler (Click to View) (Dec 18, 2013 04:23 PM)DarkShadowz Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) As to how it's different with several of the Java Driveby Generator's on the market, there are a couple of notable differences.

Differences:

- Website Redirect (After execution of driveby, the user will be redirected to any site you choose that will make your actions seem more legitimate to the user)
- EXTREMELY Cheap (PlexJDB is an ONE-TIME fee of $9.99, which is the cheapest compared to ANY other Java Driveby Generator on the market that includes both the Silent Java Driveby and Traditional Java Driveby)
- String Encryption (Every build you make is unique in some way to your last build, as every single of your builds is encoded according to several factors within your work enviroment)
- FUD Times (The traditional Java Driveby generated from PlexJDB has been proven to be FUD for over 2 years now)
- Client-Based (All of the generation process of your Driveby Build is not done on a website or on our servers, and is done straight at your PC to guarantee that it is your build the way you want it)
- Optimized Execution Times (Our driveby executes faster than several other ones, as it is optimized through the best possible methods of the Java SDK so that it will almost always guarantee your file to be downloaded and executed safely)
- Multiple File Support (Do you want a word document that is exploited, or a jar file, or an installer file to be ran instead of an .exe? PlexJDB fully supports this!)
- Silent Java Driveby Fallback (If the silent java driveby is not ran on a Java version equal to or lower than 7u21, then it will fall back to the Traditional Java Driveby)
- Host-Yourself (For everything generated by PlexJDB, you host it yourself (including the web panel and driveby) so that you have total control over your own files)

Really, there is a lot of differences and I am sure I am missing some, but this is all I could think of as of right now.

Setup Guide

Spoiler (Click to View)

Follow the guide here at Section "To Install the JDK Software and Set JAVA_HOME on a Windows System" to set your JAVA_HOME environment variable (needed so the client knows where your Java Development Kit is in order to compile the driveby).

Re-check that your JAVA_HOME environment variable is properly set through this video. Also, make sure that your JAVA_HOME environment variable does not include 'jre', but rather looks like C:\Program Files\Java\jdk1.7.0_45

[Video: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oblax66nmhU>]

Run "Run.bat".

Fill out the options as careful as possible with no spaces.

Press 'Generate'.

There will be a file 'index.html' which you can use with your generated.jar in order to put your driveby anywhere you want. If you generated a Silent JDB, please include the generated.jnlp as well.

Enjoy!

FAQ:

Spoiler (Click to View)

When I generate my driveby build, why does it pause halfway? This only occurs if there is an error in the middle of building your driveby. This must mean either you have not run the client from 'Run.bat', or you do not have JAVA_HOME set, or you do not have the JDK installed properly.

How come 'Run.bat' does not run the client? This means that either you do not have JAVA_HOME set, or you do not have the JDK installed properly. Please take very careful note of this.

How come the program doesn't open at all even though I have the JDK installed and JAVA_HOME set? This means that your system has failed the HWID check, therefore the program closed itself automatically.

I want to chargeback or get a refund. The program itself is already being sold for very cheap, and if you have any issues whatsoever, feel free to PM me and I will try to help you out. If you are to still press on about charging back or demanding a refund, I will hold a scam report/deal dispute against you both on PayPal and on Forums. All logs are kept accordingly for transactions.

Vouches

Spoiler (Click to View)

(Dec 7, 2013 12:25 AM)Gunz™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Vouch for DarkShadowz, would recommend PlexJDB to anyone. Excellent features.

(Dec 6, 2013 07:26 AM)SoftButFirm Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Edited to feedback.

I'm putting my vouch out there right now: Fantastic :D

Support is great. It took about 2 hours for him to activate my license, which was no big deal. Had a problem with it not working (It was an error that was 100% my fault), but I PM'd him, got a response in 10 minutes and after chatting on Skype for a few, had it working perfectly.

The program itself works great as well. Website redirect works fine. Tested the website cloner and when I opened the HTML file it looked 99% the same (Minus some ads and what not.)

It outputs the FUD .jar file and a driveby.html. You can of course edit the driveby.html to make your fake webpage and everything.

Looking forward to the new update which will have the statistics thing. Should be pretty cool :)

This is the first JDB I've bought, so I can't really compare it to anything else. But in terms of features, support, and price (Especially with the Christmas deal right now), this product kicks ass.

As the method of execution is the same as double clicking a file, this is compatible with just about anything.

Sorry, but if you would like to pay with Perfect Money, please convert them to 0.05 Bitcoins first. It will be hard to manage too many payment methods at once.

Until I find a way to manage it, I will have to accept PP and BTC only.

(Oct 7, 2013 11:37 AM)Man in black Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What is the execution rate level on this one?

The execution rate is equivalent to that of a regular JDB. The exception is that this builds it flawlessly with customized options that are not normally given to normal JDB's :).

Also wanted to note that I'll be considering limiting the amount of free HWID changes, or atleast date limiting it.

(Nov 30, 2013 02:12 PM)G??gl? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What java version is requiered to run this ?

From Java SE 1.5 it is supported, which pretty much covers 99% of Java users online these days. I can't imagine anyone running on a lower version than it.

All functions used in it were made to be as backwards compatible as possible.

For the builder itself, just update your own computer to the latest Java with the JDK.

I've now got a PHP Web Panel update in the works that will be coming to all previous customers for FREE!

Haven't done programming in PHP for years now, though it'll still be fine overall :D.

Here's a small preview regarding how I'm doing with the web panel, everything is working fine right now :). Just have to 'beautify' the overall panel and perhaps add some more statistics.

Looks nice, do you have statistics for the executions?

If not you should add some :)

Yep, will take me a few days figuring out a few PHP Graph API's since I haven't touched PHP for 2 years hahah :D.

Though hopefully I can push out this update by next week.

Here's how it looks so far.

SIM-1097664 - December 6, 2013, 6:26 am

Edited to feedback.

I'm putting my vouch out there right now: Fantastic :D

Support is great. It took about 2 hours for him to activate my license, which was no big deal. Had a problem with it not working (It was an error that was 100% my fault), but I PM'd him, got a response in 10 minutes and after chatting on Skype for a few, had it working perfectly.

The program itself works great as well. Website redirect works fine. Tested the website cloner and when I opened the HTML file it looked 99% the same (Minus some ads and what not.)

It outputs the FUD .jar file and a driveby.html. You can of course edit the driveby.html to make your fake webpage and everything.

Looking forward to the new update which will have the statistics thing. Should be pretty cool :)

This is the first JDB I've bought, so I can't really compare it to anything else. But in terms of features, support, and price (Especially with the Christmas deal right now), this product kicks ass.

Just finished up the PHP Panel just now, only have to make it more user-friendly and I'll be finalizing it for the next update to include the new PHP panel. Sadly will have to add in the option for multiple downloads later.

Also, I WILL be adding in a silent java driveby (compatible Java 7u21 and lower) in the future coming updates for FREE for all previous customers!

I've hesitated implementing in the silent java driveby since launch actually, because really the infection rate for it is severely low (same for any other silent java drivebys on the market). However, since many users have been requesting it, I will be making the update later.

EDIT: The PHP panel update is going to be coming at the end of our X'mas sale.

The PHP Web Panel update is finally available for all customers, and they should have been sent to your PayPal e-mail! If you did not receive the e-mail, simply PM me asking for the update :).

Also, the Christmas Sale is now off, and now the price has been reverted to $9.99.

The sales thread has been updated with a small picture of the panel, and the price change!

Mainly due to competition coming over from other Java Driveby Generators, however I can assure that this one is completely unique as everything was built up from scratch and tested accordingly :).

In addition, FUD times are still at its highest and it has yet to be detected in 2 years.

So the new PHP panel update is out. Had a little trouble, but I contacted him on Skype and then got everything working quickly.

To those wondering about the new panel, you have to upload the panel.php and then enable the setting and add the link in the builder, and then make a new .jar file.

As for the panel, I tested my JDB in a VM and it showed the successful execution. For some reason, the graph isn't working and I get some error text on the screen. I'll send you that on Skype in a sec.

Will edit this after we talk on there.

DarkShadowz - December 10, 2013, 2:46 pm

Code An emergency update has been issued to fix a few outdated methods called that gave errors in the latest PHP web server updates!

All web panels should work fine now as intended.

Also, I am currently working on the Silent JDB addition as of right now which will work for Java 7u21 and lower! Really hard to FUD this thing as it has to do with memory overflow of object native arrays, and so far I've brought the detections down to 4/33.

If everything goes well when it comes to simplifying the Silent JDB and FUD'ing it, I may plan a release for the addon within the next 2 weeks. The exploit used is CVE-2013-2465.
The silent JDB is almost fully FUD! The detections right now is 1/33.

Kaspersky is quite a pain to deal with, but hopefully I can get out a working version by day after tomorrow.

SIM-1097664 - December 11, 2013, 12:32 pm

Alright, sorry for the late feedback on the new PHP panel, but between my job and my virtual machine being a pain in the ass, I didn't have time to do this.

But on to the panel, it works great. Shows successful/failed executions with the country, IP, OS, and time/date. There is also a graph showing runs and executions, and the execution rate in a percent format.

It's a great addition - Thanks.

Dös this come with a Traffic Panel to Monitor Traffic and executions?

Dös this come with a Traffic Panel to Monitor Traffic and executions?

Yes, a web panel is available to monitor your traffic and executions :).

As to how it's different with jSerie, there are a couple of notable differences.

Differences:

- Website Redirect (After execution of driveby, the user will be redirected to any site you choose that will make your actions seem more legitimate to the user)
- EXTREMELY Cheap (PlexJDB is $9.99 of a ONE-TIME fee compared to ANY other Java Driveby Generator on the market for both the Silent Java Driveby and Traditional Java Driveby)
- String Encryption (Every build you make is unique in some way to your last build, as every single of your builds is encoded according to several factors within your work environment)
- FUD Times (The traditional Java Driveby generated from PlexJDB has been proven to be FUD for over 2 years now)
- Client-Based (All of the generation process of your Driveby Build is not done on a website or on our servers, and is done straight at your PC to guarantee that it is your build the way you want it)
- Optimized Execution Times (Our driveby executes faster than several other ones, as it is optimized through the best possible methods of the Java SDK so that it will almost always guarantee your file to be downloaded and executed safely)
- Multiple File Support (Do you want a word document that is exploited, or a jar file, or an installer file to be ran instead of an .exe? PlexJDB fully supports this!)
- Silent Java Driveby Fallback (If the silent java driveby is not ran on a Java version equal to or lower than 7u21, then it will fall back to the Traditional Java Driveby)
- Host-Yourself (For everything generated by PlexJDB, you host it yourself (including the web panel and driveby) so that you have total control over your own files)

Really, there is a lot of differences and I am sure I am missing some, but this is all I could think of as of right now.

International Manager - December 18, 2013, 3:41 pm

still not sure why ppl pay then 30$ for jserie instead of 10$ for this.

also do u have a execution rate statistic?

Really, I have no idea why people are paying so much for other Java Driveby Generator's hahah. For all of my customers, I attempt to provide the best support I can, and try to implement features requested by my customers.

As to where you should buy traffic for this, really the Service Offerings section on HF provides some good traffic.

As for the statistics on execution rates, it really depends on how your traffic is as well. For the traditional Java Driveby, it's a guaranteed 100% execution once they confirm the dialog. As for the silent, you can check out how many people have Java 7u21 or lower here:

<http://mcstats.org/global-stats/#Java+Version> The pi chart should give a really good estimate on the percentage of executions possible :).

EDIT: Heading off as it's 7:44AM and I have had no sleep at all. Gonna handle all orders in the morning.

Tes it on yourself. Visit the site and if you get a Java notification, it is working. Depending on your bot/rat and crypter settings, you may just want to run it all the way and see if you get infected, then just uninstall the server.

And you can always test in a virtual machine.

Whatever it is, it is most likely just a setting you are doing wrong. Just add him on Skype and he should get to you really quick. He is fantastic with support.

--- The following will be edited in a minute ---

I've been working, so I haven't had a chance to try the new update. Doing that now and will edit in a sec. Have to test some new crypter stuff too.

Vouch for this JDB. Unlike nearly everything else on HF that I've bought, this actually does work.

And does so nicely. Easiest thing to use and understand ever. Fast, no bugs. Good looking panel. 10/10. :)

eCoLoGy - December 19, 2013, 9:12 pm

This JDB seems to be amazing.

The only thing that it's not attractive for me is the silent jdb to just work until the 7u21 and java is already in 7u45.

But I understand that its not easy to get a 0day for newer versions.

For those looking for a JDB this one seems to be the best around here.

Right, as of now there is no exploits available for the Silent JDB that enables silent on any versions higher than 7u21. Same goes for any other silent java driveby generator on the market. However, once there is some CVE information of an exploit that supports one of the latest, I'll do my best to support it and release an update.

Also, thanks a lot for the vouch for my generator :).

In addition, a new update has been released for PlexJDB, with two amazing Silent JDB-related features! Here is a snippet of the e-mail:

Code I added in something very special that no driveby generator out on the market has so far, and that is Silent Driveby Persistence and Security Window Bypass.

The Silent Driveby Persistence keeps requesting the user to accept the security window (if they have a higher version than Java 7u21), until your file is downloaded and executed on their computer.

The Security Window bypass aids with the exploit in the Silent Driveby, so that the infection rates for the Silent Driveby are significantly higher. Generally, the Silent Driveby was made to infect only of users Java 7u21 and below, but the problem is the exploit only bypasses one of the Security Window's. This is the same case for SEVERAL OTHER Popular Java Driveby Generator's out there that they claim are silent. However, with the addition of this feature, PlexJDB now bypasses both of those windows if the user's Java version is 7u21 or below, so that the infection rate is much more higher.

Many special thanks to a few people for contributing towards these (will be claimed as anonymous), and I hope all of you enjoy this awesome update.

Also, tomorrow's New Year, so Happy New Year in advance :).

Bought it, its the best JDB and cheapest in HF (and I know, bought most of them)

what I really liked about this jdb is the fact he gives you the web panel statistics that you can host yourself

Unlike other jdb that host themselves the statistics and clearly say in their TOS they WILL give your info to the authorities if required by law (or too scared?)

vouched big time for PlexJDB!

The silent driveby security window bypass is almost impossible to find in the present market of Java Driveby Generators here in HF.

In addition, the persistence grants better rates of infection as it will continue executing your file until it is guaranteed to have run.

Best you can buy.

Activation was completed within minutes after Purchase.
Handling of the Program is very easy, everyone can use it.
SUPport is Very Very good. I had a Problem with my Setup. DarkShadowz helped me immidiatly via TV and solved the problem.

I would buy even for more than just the low 10 bucks.

It is worth every Penny of it.

Really great product! Works prefect! Just setup Java_Home right and that's it.

I like web panel, only one problem i'm having it is that every Hit goes to Failed Executions, but on my bot they are online :) So I have like 15 hits, 15 Failed Executions and 15 bots online :D
This is not really important to me.

Digital™ - January 9, 2014, 12:32 pm

BIG BIG BIG VOUCH!

I have always wanted to learn JDB but I learn so much other stuff I have never got round to understanding it and have absolutely no knowledge in Java. This product is fantastic and the support is perfect. Within 5 mins of buying and installing, I had setup the JDK and the JAVA_HOME and built my first JDB. I thought it might be too easy to be true so opened up VM and installed xampp copied the HTML and JAR file into a folder, then ran the site, allowed java and boom straight in!

This product is easy to use, does what it says and an amazing bargain at 9.99! If your thinking about JDB buy this, it works great.

I had one issue when installing the JDK as my system is 64bit and so installed 64bit JDK but then my BS Stealth stopped working as it needs 32bit. So I pm'd and asked and within 3 mins I got the response and now all works perfectly!!!

And to make it even better I just realised that I am now ub3r! Yippee my first +3

Plus using BS Stealth server at only 84kb it is so quick!

The web panel page will hopefully be updated around the end of January, got exams at the moment. It is working somewhat properly at the moment; if the execution failed it won't be logged in the panel at all. If the execution is successful, it will place itself in successful or failed.

As soon as an exploit is released for this, I will be implementing it in ASAP for it to work on the latest versions.

I have heard of other attempting to gain code signatures in order to fix their driveby. This will only either let the driveby for them on the latest version work temporarily, or not at all for many reasons. One of them being that Oracle disables certificates if they find them to be used for malicious purposes, for example on Java Driveby's.

Ah, about the HWID, it is generated so that the driveby generator can detect that you have a license to PlexJDB :).

When you generate and hand over your HWID, PlexJDB will be locked to that machine.

Yes, however as stated in every driveby generator, there will be an issue of the user's having to set their security level lower.

This is only bypass-able if you have a certificate for the driveby with Oracle. However, it's stupid to even purchase one, because companies regularly check the applications that use the certificate you buy, and deactivate them if its used for malicious purposes.

Hence why I've not bought a certificate for PlexJDB, and am on the lookout for exploits to bypass it right now.

Well I currently have a JDB where there are problems, I am not bothered if it's silent, just as long as it work's with the most recent version of java.

I understand the certificate thing, but who actually changes the security level of there java, I know I don't.

I mean, using an exploit that is just a couple of versions back and I seem to get nobody as they all have java updated, mainly due to the annoying pop-ups that come up every time theres a new release.

Many people whom actually regularly use Java applications change their security level.

But by all means; really there is no way around it unless an exploit comes out.

I'm having trouble with launching the .jar file. I've set my JAVA_HOME in the environment variables however, when running the .bat file it doesn't do anything, Could you perhaps assist me on Skype or provide me with some support?

I have some trouble running the .jar file, it's got something to do with the %PATH% variable. Think you can help me with what I need to set that too?

For some reason my post doesn't show so i'm posting this just in case.

I bought this yesterday however, I'm having trouble running the .jar file provided. I set the JAVA_HOME & installed the java JDK. However, there seems to be something wrong with the %PATH% variable in the .bat file. What should I set the environment variable: 'PATH' to? or any other idea's?

it's resolved, however you should consider adding a visitor counter so you can see how many people viewed the site

That's what the panel.php file is for. Upload that you your host and add the address in the builder.

Stats are then tracked at the panel address.

The website panel does do just that, however I may also consider adding an on-site counter later on just as a bonus feature.

No JDB generator works on the latest Java update (7u51), unless the user has their Java security settings turned down.

Epic Java tried to get a certificate to bypass 7u51, but their certificate got revoked a few days ago and last I checked, they haven't gotten it back.

So every JDB, including Plex, still works fine, but only on 7u45 and lower traditional and 7u21 and lower silent.

nunes - January 29, 2014, 7:31 pm

Yes you can buy it. Just click on the thread design I believe.

Silent is 7u21 and lower. And it is of course, everything is FUD.

hi,i just sent you a pm ,, i buy your product but the HWID who i download is not executable

DarkShadowz - February 5, 2014, 7:11 am

It is still purchasable, and note this driveby works as expected against 7u51 like all the others. I am committing towards research of potential exploits for it at the moment, and until then, please stay patient.

Also, as I am currently firewalled from HF on my main computer, please send me the information requested on the confirmation email to my PayPal email.

DarkShadowz - February 10, 2014, 8:54 am

I can vouch for this JDB. It is very easy to use and works flawlessly. I honestly expected less for such a low price, but I am very pleasantly surprised. Definately worth the money.

0x03a8 - February 15, 2014, 1:04 pm

How will we be notified of the update? Through mail? or do we have to download it from a certain place?

kouakou47 - February 16, 2014, 3:28 am

I am really very happy to have bought plexJDB and I think this is the best on the walk

DarkShadowz - February 19, 2014, 8:37 am

The update will be sent out via e-mail around tomorrow.

There are still some minor issues with the silent JDB as I will be recoding the generation method, but a new update will be released tomorrow to further the FUD on the traditional JDB while introducing a polymorphic encryption algorithm!

?Panda - February 19, 2014, 9:04 am

Is there any news on the Java 7.51 front?

17ROLL - February 19, 2014, 9:14 am

Hello guys, I have never used Plex, but I see it has some potential. Are you throwing out the U51 update any time soon?

craftmagic - February 19, 2014, 3:47 pm

If I choose silent and they have a newer version of Java, will it still work and be FUD?

badwayz - February 19, 2014, 4:06 pm

This is the perfect price point, anything more and I usually shy away since I can do without. Thanks, I will probably get with you on this for sure.

craftmagic - February 19, 2014, 4:14 pm

By still work, I mean not be silent, and still prompt them.

GyroErbin0 - February 20, 2014, 3:32 am does this support the new update yet ?

USPS - February 22, 2014, 6:27 am

I have pm'ed you regarding something, hoping to get a response from you :)

DarkShadowz - February 22, 2014, 7:29 am

Just replied to everyone's PM's! Been away for the past few days due to work and school.

Also, a new minor update will be released today as promised to ensure the FUD time. However, there may be some issues with the silent in terms of FUD; but rest assured it still should work 100% when infecting users.

As for issues regarding the web panel, on the next update after this which will be a major update, it will be completely recoded. The web panel sometimes shows a failed execution despite the execution working successfully, and that is mainly due to a minor issue with error handling in the driveby code.

The traditional JDB is guaranteed FUD 100%, and will definitely last for ages to come to continue the FUD record :).

craftmagic - February 22, 2014, 8:47 pm

Vouch for this! Great price for this. Had a little problem, but I talked to DarkShadowz on Skype, and he helped me right away. 10/10, would recommend to anyone. Cheers! ?

They are dead, long time ago, there have been 5+ java updates which are not exploited... the silent java works for people who updated java like a 2 years ago...

this product is literally worth $1 if that, as its never going to be a good spreading method.
