

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Website creation! PROGRESSION!

TBGJ - September 19, 2013, 12:20 pm

Hey guys,

I'm a student at college and we are doing web design at the moment.

I have created this design from scratch, but may use it as a template for a shop online in the future for like Fifa coins or RS gold etc... has anyone got any ideas for this site?

It is still in progression still needs completed bu that's the design of it at the moment :)

Criticize and help please thank you.

Design fully from my imagination, can be customized.

mehim - September 19, 2013, 3:31 pm

I'd step back have a good look at before you go any further right now every is so big, shrink things down you dont need to use the whole area the icons and logo dont match the design at all

god dam it is it generic

Kink - September 19, 2013, 3:55 pm

The nav bar does come off a bit big, but I think that's just because of the font, personally. I've seen just as big or bigger nav buttons flow nicely with similar websites. You could try having the logo as the home button and making the entire nav a single bar, with button spacers...I think that might look a little better. You could also maybe cut the middle picture in half and make another panel such as the categories for social networking links and such.

Good work though :), just some small tweaks and I think it would be awesome!

TBGJ - September 21, 2013, 6:03 am

(Sep 19, 2013 03:55 PM)Kink Wrote: CITE The nav bar does come off a bit big, but I think that's just because of the font, personally. I've seen just as big or bigger nav buttons flow nicely with similar websites. You could try having the logo as the home button and making the entire nav a single bar, with button spacers...I think that might look a little better. You could also maybe cut the middle picture in half and make another panel such as the categories for social networking links and such.

Good work though :), just some small tweaks and I think it would be awesome!
thank you im updating t now with the progression of the new design :)