

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Youtube video removed

Best In The World - September 26, 2013, 1:58 am

After posting links to my video on 5 other videos and using other youtube accounts to thumbs it up, my video has been flagged, and removed. Was this a bad idea? Should i make a brand new channel now? My channel has a strike. Never experienced this, so would appreciate what you guys think. Thanks.

Flareon - September 26, 2013, 2:22 am

If you were advertising your vid on videos of the same niche, then that was expected.

If you want to stay safer just rely on ranking for your views.

Mommy???????????? - September 26, 2013, 2:23 am

Well if you took a video from someone else that could be whats wrong or you had something in the description.

Best In The World - September 26, 2013, 2:55 am

I had no problem, until i went to the videos related to my niche, and linked it to my video. Then thumbed it up. It happened 5 hours afterwards. So is this a general bad idea to attempt to get traffic?

Flareon - September 26, 2013, 3:58 am

(Sep 26, 2013 02:55 AM)Best In The World Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I had no problem, until i went to the videos related to my niche, and linked it to my video. Then thumbed it up. It happened 5 hours afterwards. So is this a general bad idea to attempt to get traffic?

Use your common sense to tell whether its good or bad...

It got your video removed, does that sound good to you?