

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Malware Bytes PRO, good enough as a lone antivirus?

CBF1 - September 26, 2013, 3:24 pm

Is the paid version of Malware Bytes good enough for a solo antivirus? Comes with realtime website/file protection features.

Or should I just use it as a scanner and use another program for realtime protection?

Halo reach4 - September 26, 2013, 7:37 pm

Malware bytes and comodo firewall is what I use, and I haven't gotten anything in a long time.

T e s s e r a c t - September 26, 2013, 7:40 pm

You need another programmer as a realtime scanner, I highly recommend ESET NOD 32

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=3774735> Check out this thread please.

DeadLine - September 26, 2013, 7:41 pm

This pretty much tells you what you need to know:

<http://hackapps.net/ScreenShotr/showimage.php?id=80>

It's not ment to replace your full antivirus.

CBF1 - September 26, 2013, 9:04 pm

Ended up downloading Kingsoft AV, very clean AV.. would recommend to others.

Edit; might end up changing since its features aren't fully compatible to run w/ Malware Bytes

T e s s e r a c t - September 26, 2013, 9:21 pm

(Sep 26, 2013 09:04 PM)CBF1 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ended up downloading Kingsoft AV, very clean AV.. would recommend to others.

Edit; might end up changing since its features aren't fully compatible to run w/ Malware Bytes

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=3774735>

Have you checked out this thread mate?

....check me out!