KILL LA KILL

Synopsis

The story is set on a high school that the student council president Satsuki Kiryuuin rules by force. Wielding a giant Basami scissors sword, the wandering transfer student Ryuuko Matoi brings about upheaval on the campus. Ryuuko searches for the mysterious figure who caused her father's death, but confronting her are the student council's "four divine kings." Fortunately, Ryuuko is aided by a talking sailor uniform who tells her, "Wear me. When I am worn by you, this power will become manifest."

Opinion

Well just watched first episode and i cant more satisfied, meet almost all expectations, Art style, Voice Acting, Soundtrack were all great. They have a funny ditsy side character (Mako <3) and MC is completely bad ass

+ Her uniform <3 that too.

1st ep was great. I love the art style. I didn't expect comedy, but it had some pretty funny parts in it

Kotei - October 3, 2013, 12:31 pm

Same boat with ags on this. I was expecting a much more fierce theme. Really it reminds me of FLCL in so many ways. The off art-style, the random humor, etc.

smilesnd - October 3, 2013, 2:44 pm

It was better then expected was surprise the amount of comedy in it but was really enjoyable

FerTheWin - October 3, 2013, 3:57 pm

I enjoyed it, truly refreshing. I look forward to the future episodes. I liked the animation and thought the humor is tied in extremely well.

rinluvr - October 3, 2013, 5:27 pm

I loved the first episode. I didn't really know what to expect when I saw it. I'm definitely looking forward to this series

Looks good about to watch right now ... will post my thoughts in 23 minutes cya

Edit: It was pretty good I really enjoyed it

Am I the only one who saw the negative in this first episode...

Animation was far too off and could really be defined as American Cartoons rather than anywhere close to an anime.

The story accelerated way too fast and took itself too seriously with no character attachment time

The concept of uniforms and what not is good however the execution was poorly done

The voice acting was bland across the board

The characters so far are entirely unrelatable unless you yourself have had your father killed with scissors or are just a total idiot like the sleeping girl.

The animation needs to improve as even the scenes that look good are still overly simplified by the animation and holds no semblance to enjoyable violence. This anime needed to spend more time on episode and possibly span it to two episodes to give more time for character and environmental introduction. As of episode one and possibly the rest of the episodes this anime is and will continue to be utter garbage.

I am utterly shocked and mystified that a single soul, let alone the entire thread thus far, is enjoying such an F class production. ?

you should give these low budgets animes a chance ... most of your claims are either opinion or because of them being low budget ... I think that low budget animes are far from perfect but they can be good animes as long as you don't expect them to be on par with high budget animes

Even if it does happen to be low budget, the art style was intentional and not because they couldn't afford "better" art. I like it like this anyways.

yea it all comes down to the watchers opinion and when I meant low budget it wasn't me talking about the art style only I was also talking about fast pace (lack of money for lots of episodes) and "bland" voices (which again is an opinion)

Black Reaper - October 3, 2013, 9:37 pm

Look forward to watch it next :D

Black Hole - October 3, 2013, 10:11 pm

Zeph your idea of "low budget" annoys me. Just because an anime is short doesn't mean it is low budget, in fact, you'll find if you watch closely, that longer anime have terrible quality compared to something in the range of Ufotable or Shaft's work.

That aside, Kill la Kill is a special case. While the artwork in general may seem low quality or low budget, it is merely the style in which they are choosing to use. Look at the action scenes, look at the transitions, look at the first 5 minutes of the effing episode. It was pure beauty, it very closely resembles hand drawn fluidity. While it isn't as modern looking as Fate/Zero or as glistening fabulous as Redline, is it amazingly high quality for the art style being utilized, especially on a series based project.

As for the voice acting, it isn't bland? Idk wtf you're talking about, I find voice acting which you can find in just about every harem out there to be boring, every shounen even. This anime is really going back to action anime/shonen roots. The over-exaggerated male yelling (the discipline chairman) to the high-pitched enthusiastic enemy (the boxer guy), all reminiscent of a time when action/comedy anime was just that, action/comdey anime.

Kill la Kill is really going for an old skool vibe, and I can dig it.

Black Hole hit the nail on the head. I found the art style to be refreshing and quite honestly, immaculate in its own way.

1 I actually like the episode ... 2 i agree with you anime is great so far ... I was just responding to someone who said the anime was fast paced and the voice acting was bland ... I in return said it might be rushed because they don't have enough money for lots of episodes and then I also said that it could be bland because they don't have enough money for the voice actors but I also said that it being bland is opinion meaning I actually thought the voice acting was fine ... So to sum it up I was saying that its prob fast paced because its low budget and that the voice actors being bland is an opinion

I loved this episode. I expect a lot more like this from Trigger.

Does anyone know if this will be 2 cours or 1 cour?

Because on wikipedia, it's 12 but a lot of other people say it's 24 episodes.

I'm not sure which is correct.

the animation is badly done period, the artstyle is pretty nice tough, especially the backgrounds.

After the outfit and the entire blushing face for no reason i started disliking it. will probably watch 2 more episodes before i drop it.

Watch one ep. If it doesn't appeal to you at all, drop it. If it kinda does, watch 3 eps then decide.

Rakshasa - October 4, 2013, 4:30 pm

Have to agree with junii to an extent on this. While the art and animation give a really good old-school gainax feel to it, and the atmosphere feels like a mix between TTGL and FLCL, the pacing is pretty damn bad and the random fanservice put me off a bit.

Meh, I'm going to watch it through. Don't really see a second Gurren Lagann coming out of this, and I'll be damned if that outfit turns out to be a plot element and show up every episode, but it's trigger damn it. I'll force myself through it if I have to.

Purefect - October 4, 2013, 4:59 pm

Just finished watching it, and I have to admit it's got me pretty interested.

For a comedy/action style anime, they've done pretty damn well; where many have failed

I especially liked the introduction of these 'power uniforms' (goku, etc) And the comedy was pretty nice aswell, balanced out the seriousness :)

And, for the art style I didn't expect it to be ecchi, even in the slightest! Not that I'm complaining!

Can't wait for next episode!

Lelouch Vi Britannia - October 4, 2013, 5:34 pm

If I was Mato, when I was giving the final blow to the boxing guy I would have cut his head clean off.

I highly doubt this is a low budget series. I think they did it this way by choice.

Black Hole - October 4, 2013, 9:49 pm

I don't understand why everyone is saying it is low budget....it's Trigger for god's sake. Annoys me almost as much as people saying SnK is full of filler.

It's hard not to judge after only so few episodes, but here goes. The story seems to be quite shallow and rather unappealing, at least for me. Random fanservice is annoying. She barely has any clothes on, if I wanted porn, I'd go watch porn. I didn't like the Goku uniforms idea as it seemed rather stupid. What kind of fucking world is this?

The characters seem to "silly" but I love using word "retarded" instead of that. When those kid gangsters appeared in first episode and their sister came after them I immediately lifted a red flag. The whole "president rules with iron fist" kind of plot is way overused and the fact that they're mixing this with the theme of her father's death is just wrong. I know this anime isn't meant to be serious, but that's just the part that makes it bad for me.

People say that you have to stop thinking in order to enjoy shows like this, but I disagree. I enjoyed TTGL very much and though I found it a little bit silly, this takes you on an entirely different level. If you're not willing to lower yourself to mental age of a five year old don't watch this. Not just because it defies logic and normal types of behavior, but because it downgrades the mental state of its entire society and shows utter retardness. (everyone in this anime appears to qualify for moron award). I doubt anything smart will be said or shown in the entire series. That's why I don't like it.

Finished the first two episodes, I'd have to say it was quite satisfactory. It did exactly as it was made to be, a comedy shounen anime.

I'll approve of this, the ecchi was a bit unnecessary though.

The art style is what I enjoy the most in this show, I think it's great. The premise of it is awkward and ridiculous, but I guess I can roll with it. The humor in it is on-point and actually funny. The one thing that really gets on my nerves is the ecchi, which seems to have a growing presence in the show, and take away from it imo. Still possibly my favorite show this season (granted I've only watched a few), but I don't think it lived up to my personal expectations

I honestly think her outfit suits her just fine. The basis of the school's uniform is a sailor outfit. In case you missed that in the beginning of the anime.

Just because all that happens doesn't mean it degrades the quality of the anime itself.

I'm pretty fine with it not being very serious. I think it works pretty well. I mean it is made by the same people who made Gurren Lagann.

Gurren Lagann started off pretty whacky and quirky too. And then it took on a much darker and more serious tone towards the end. Is it too much to assume that Kill La Kill will follow that same recipe?

If you look at how things have been progressing so far, what with the Nudist Beach people, the unknown woman who lost herself to her kamui's control, and the whole Matoi vs. Kiryuuin thing it kinda' seems possible.

I can totally see Ryuuko, Satsuki, and the Student Council uniting against a common enemy in the near future. ?

Yeah if it does that that is all fine. If it doesn't, even better.

I'm really hoping the anime doesn't become a really serious anime. One of my biggest issues with Gurren Lagann was the relatively random mood change towards the end.

Episode 10 was "unsettling" to say the least.

Spoiler (Click to View)

First, there's that Mako death-flag you mentioned.

Personally, I'm going to cross my fingers that they don't straight-up kill her. The way I see it playing out is that Senketsu ends up regaining his memories and taking over Ryuuko because of the stress of the second Sanageyama battle. I think there's something deeply unsettling about this whole life-fiber thing in general and the Kamui in particular.

Let's face it -- Senketsu LOOKS evil, in a demonic sort of way. The barbs and the whole eye of Sauron thing he has going on is a dead-giveaway.

Berserk Ryuuko-Senketsu ends up destroying the stadium without differentiating between friend and foe, Mako steps up to stop Ryuuko, and Ryuuko ends up injuring her after which Nudist Beach intervenes and seals her somehow.

But I'm getting ahead of myself really. Only time will tell. ?

It's not a "oh mako is going to die", but instead just a foreshadow towards it. Episode 10 had a LOT of foreshadowing in it, another big one was how the computer guy (forgot his name) originally was trying to shut Satsuki's company down. He was never exactly loyal to her.

Thought this was funny, reading the first few pages... It's become TTGL.

Meh, I'm going to watch it through. Don't really see a second Gurren Lagann coming out of this, and I'll be damned if that outfit turns out to be a plot element and show up every episode, but it's trigger damn it. I'll force myself through it if I have to.

Then you're not looking into it deep enough. Multiple times in the series the dialogue hints to her dying by making the watcher ask "what would happen if Mako wasn't there". In the case of episode 10, that was when Senketsu said that Mako calmed Ryuko. That's a huge deathflag, basically saying Ryuko will become uncontrollable if Mako wasn't there.

I wouldn't expect her to die this early. There's 25 episodes so having her die this early is a bit much. However if it is a little later like around ep 16 then that's fine because it's near the end.

Yes and no, Trigger has rushed a lot of things so far (intentionally) and it'd be great for them to end the half-season with Ryuko going out of control because Mako died. Just speculation though, it could be later on in the series too.

Woah woah lets not hope for the worst. I see it going like Ryuuko entering a blind rage and hurting Mako. At this point Senketsu is either trying to calm her or maybe has taken a form of rage itself. With no other choice the life fiber bullet is shot and Ryuuko is recovered and taken to the nude beach HQ. There she learns about the big picture yada yada. Then shes told what happened and what she did to Mako.

Notes:

Senketsus transformation is similar to what happens to Guts in his berserker armor. It will engulf her whole body head toe.

The flashbacks of the fathers death are slightly different.

Thats the end of my speculation lol. Lets see who gets it the closest :3

One thing I didn't like about episode fourteen:

Spoiler (Click to View) Ryuuko got Senketsu's pieces like it was a piece of cake.

I thought she would have to go through a lot just to get them all back.

All she needs now is the glove that Satsuki is wearing.

I was talking more about foreground scenes. Like in the forest when Eren and Levi Squad were on horseback running from the Titan. Also some other things that were more a visual effect than an actual animation thing.

To be honest, despite how sketchy the art seems, it fits the overall feel of the anime quite well. The drawing of thousands of identical students being blown up from an arena adds a layer of hilarity to the plot. It is also extremely technically challenging to "animate rotations" (Buratei, 2012), so with the amount of fly-in-and-around the scene shots they have, you have to appreciate how much time was spent drawing all of that.

The base image of this looks like the main character from Guren Lagann rinluvr - March 21, 2014, 11:53 pm

Finally secured a good chunk of free time and finished my marathon to catch up. Shit is real.
To be honest I'm kinda expecting some people to die but I hope not.
I just can't take another Gurren Lagann ending.

With all this Life Fiber stuff going on and being able to heal rapidly, I'd love to see copious 'dying' in the final battle.

But subs will probably be out a little bit after.

It's not Thursday yet in Japan. I'm 1 hour ahead of Japan's time and it's 10:10 right now, so you'll have to wait a few hours before it airs, then another few hours for it to be subbed (or ripped if you follow HS).

It's gonna be sad when the anime ends but then again I'm not sure how they can make a 2nd season.

Maybe not season two, more like fanservice "OAV"!

I will always welcome another season! ?

For those of you who ship Mako and Gamogorri (idgaf about spelling I'm too sick too care) remember that he is like 20 years old and she's like 16 or 17. She is jailbait. But some of us here like wincest so that's fine.

Spoilers are coming from the RAWWS. No. Stop. Subs pls.

Words cannot handle what I feel right now. Nonon with her hair down. CUTE AS A MOTHERFUCKING ASDJBGFDSGBFD ID ONT EVEN KNOW.

The Gurren Lagann Reference from Gamogori.

Ryuuko's badass jacket.

Satsuki catching Ryuuko and running like an absolute tard.

Harime Nui getting fucked (killed not literally fucked)

The Gurren Lagann reference was here

Crisp 720p. I would have gotten 1080P but there wasn't a download for it yet.

I used to use that video player but VLC lets you take snapshots and I didn't have to setup a fuck ton of stuff.

It was a good series.

Lots of information that was pressed onto the viewer though.

Good moral in the story.

I enjoyed it.

Nobody's going to mention Senketsu? Great character, hoping it would've turned around.

Where the fuck did you buy that?!?!?!?

Also is there gonna be a season 2?

I just finished this yesterday.

EDIT: Yes I revived this thread
